Who you are has nothing to do with AID virus infection

The Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, or its acronym, AIDS, is a very serious health problem facing society today.

AIDS is caused by the human immunodeficiency virus — HIV — the AIDS virus. This virus may live in the human body for years before actual symptoms of health problems occur.

The virus affects the body by attacking the immune system, thereby making it unable to fight disease. There are a number of AIDS-related diseases and it is these which kill.

Many people feel only certain "high risk groups" are infected with the AIDS virus. This is untrue. Who you are has nothing to do with whether you are in danger of being infected with the AIDS virus. What matters is what you do.

How do you get AIDS?

There are two ways you can get AIDS:

By having sex — anal, vaginal, oral — with someone who is infected with the AIDS virus and, by sharing needles and syringes with an infected person.

Babies born to women infected with the AIDS virus may be born with the infection, as it is transmitted from mother to child. In addition, some people have been infected by receiving infected blood or blood products (prior to November 1985).

Since you cannot be sure who is infected, your chances of coming into contact with the AIDS virus increase with the number of sex partners you have.

Any exchange of infected blood, semen or vaginal fluids can spread the virus and place you at great risk. Remember — you cannot tell by looking if a person is infected.

Risky behaviors include sharing drug needles and syringes; anal sex, with or without a condom; vaginal or oral sex with someone who shoots drugs or engages in anal sex; sex with someone you don't know well or with someone who has several sex partners; unprotected sex (without a condom) with an infected person.

Safe behavior means not having sex; sex with one mutually faithful, uninfected partner; not shooting drugs.

Why all the talk about condoms?

Condoms are the best preventative measure against AIDS other than not having sex and practicing safe sex behavior. However, condoms are far from being foolproof. They must be used properly and they must be used every time you have sex, from start to finish.

You can prevent AIDS. Remember, who you are has nothing to do with whether you will be infected with the AIDS virus. What matters is what you do. Protect yourself. Be informed.

Snow storm hinders rally driving conditions

By Susan Moscicki
Winfield's recent annual poker rally wasn't a "screaming success, but it wasn't a bombout either," says Doug Goltz, president of the Winfield Lions Club. Registration was down with only 89 participants as compared to more than 100 in the past.

Snowmobilers and

horseback riders competed in the rally, drawing cards at five different checkpoints to complete the best poker hand.

A snowstorm hit the area shortly after the start of the rally, causing difficult driving conditions for a while, but most of the contestants were able to complete the trail.

Four men on horseback were forced to turn back and draw their poker hands at the recreation centre. "They hit it right in the middle of the blizzard," said Goltz.

"I didn't even get to the second checkpoint because it started snowing," said horseman Dwayanne Rigby of Winfield.

First prize was won by Elaine Sims of Breton, with second going to Lloyd Handbury of Winfield, third spot was won by Darold Gulbrandsen of Rimbey and Brian Crotty of Winfield finished fourth.

Winfield Lions donated $178 of funds raised to the Winfield Volunteer Fire Co-op to go toward the purchase of jackets for the firemen.

The supper and dance following the poker rally by the volunteer fire co-op fared much worse. More than 100 people were expected to attend but only 35 showed. Fire co-op secretary Sharon Will said they lost about $230 on the supper.

MD will purchase vehicles

The MD plans to purchase six vehicles from local dealerships.

Council has authorized the deal that will see them buy four vehicles from Woodland Chrysler and one each from Sunshine Ford and Mayhew Motors.

They will get two half-tons, one three-ton and a Ram Charger from Woodland; a half-ton from Sunshine and a one-ton 4x4 at Mayhew's Dwayanne Rigby of Winfield encountered a slight difficulty when his horse decided to play.

A snowmobiler tackled the trail with apparent ease.

Belief can survive Sunday openings

In a society that allows individuals freedom of belief, Sunday closing restrictions aren't possible.

The ministerial association has approached Whitecourt town council and asked that it consult the chamber of commerce with the purpose of restricting hours of commercial activity on Sunday. "If necessary, a bylaw might be considered," it says.

Restrictions of sporting activities on Sunday is also called for.

According to the association, such restrictions would protect both church and family.

In reality and theory, these restrictions shouldn't even be considered.

Guest editorial

The Supreme Court of Canada has shot down the Lord's Day Act, saying that law discriminated against those who aren't of the Christian faith.

The ministerial association says Sunday opening hurts the family — that's questionable, but surely a Sunday closing law would be a colorable device protecting the Christian churches.

Red Deer has experienced the reality of an hours-of-business law — their's was shot down in provincial court. Another reality — how does government decide which services are essential and which are not, which can open and which can't?

The ministerial association has also asked the town (Whitecourt) to set a policy that, in facilities under municipal control, no sporting activities of any kind be held before 1 p.m. on Sundays. Does not the opportunity to have family sporting outings on Sunday strengthen the family?

The family is the basic social unit — it can survive Sunday opening. Belief too is basic to man, and it too can survive shopping trips and ball games on Sunday.

— Whitecourt Star

Cards of Thanks

OUR HEARTFELT thanks to DV Animal Services for being so prompt and kind in picking me up in my home when I had my stroke. To all my friends and family for being so kind, for all your prayers and kind words while I was in the Drayton Valley hospital and the Glenora Hospital. And for the flowers, cards and gifts. Thank you to my little friend Dwight Jones for the flowers and my Golden Ager for the get-well cards and baking brought to the house, my youth bowlers for the card and the tiny Lee Adelle Shykora made and had all the Tuesday bowlers sign. Thank you to my mother all the bowlers for the cards and Dan Denard and Lorraine for the flowers, stuffed toys, cards and visits at home and hospital.

I am not letting any great grow under my feet. I went bowling at Hall and I am making toys in Arts and Crafts - stuffed toys for the grandchildren and leather craft moccasins for the U.S. bowlers and all the bowlers for being so thoughtful. I have a goal to sit at and want to get better and come home. Hope they will have anybody out.

Love,
Laine Steinhilber

WE WOULD like to express our thanks to our parents, Roman and Shirley Carson and Ted and Evelyn Tietz for the wedding dinner they held for us. Also family and friends who helped us to celebrate and for the beautiful gifts we received. We would also like to thank all those special people who helped out to make it such a great evening for us. Thank you Jack and Bev Tucker

What Ever Happened to Sylvia's Sewing Room?

In 1973, Sylvia Rempel identified a golden opportunity. ☒ Namely, to provide Canadians with a good fitting, high quality and reasonably priced outerwear and sportswear line.

☒ What began with a big dream and a modest $7,000 investment, is today the Sun Ice Corporation, a thriving Canadian enterprise with 1988 domestic sales of $18 million and $4 million in exports to the United States.

☒ An example of Alberta's diversifying economy.

☒ SYLVIA REMPEL ON GETTING

STARTED: "I ended my first year with a $16,000 loss and a wealth of experience. My friends thought I was crazy, but I kept at it. Soon the orders were rolling in."

☒ "When my basement would no longer do, we moved into an abandoned pool hall in the old St. Louis hotel. It was no

Buckingham Palace — but the price was right. ☒ "Today, we employ over 200 people and produce in excess of 200,000 garments a year." ☒ SYLVIA REMPEL

ON INITIATIVE: "Nobody owes you anything. If you want it, you've got to get it yourself. And that takes initiative.

Character ☒ "Forget the word

'can't' — it's the ugliest word in the English language. ☒ "If opportunity knocks, go for it. Set standards for yourself. Make them tough enough to challenge you — but realistic too. ☒ "Be patient.

And remember, you can learn as much from your mistakes as you can from your triumphs. I certainly did." ☒ SYLVIA REMPEL ON

ALBERTA'S ECONOMY: "Some people see Alberta as an oil and gas economy — and that's it. I disagree.

☒ "Alberta is full of opportunities for all sorts of businesses. Look at mine; we continued to grow right through the 1982 recession. It was tough — but with the help of government programs, we made it. ☒ "There are millions of opportunities in Alberta

(I have a secret list). All you have to do is look for them. And then, be prepared to work for them. Success has never fallen into anyone's lap."

ALBERTA CAREER DEVELOPMENT AND EMPLOYMENT ON

SYLVIA REMPEL: Make no mistake, Sylvia Rempel's success story is not about luck — it's about an individual who recognized opportunity beyond Alberta's "traditional" economy. And through plain hard work and dedication made that dream come true.

☒ We can help you adapt to our diversifying economy with training, counselling and job creation programs.

One-pound miracle baby survives despite all odds

By Susan Mosciak

Months of uncertainty and emotional up's and downs have finally ended for the parents of Jesse Hart, a local 'miracle baby' who finally came home from an Edmonton hospital recently.

Jesse, born approximately 14 weeks premature, was only one pound 15 ounces at birth, and measured only 14 inches long.

"He was all skin and bone," said his mother, Kelly. The nurses didn't use diapers on Jesse, says Mom. "They just set a cotton ball up against him."

He would do good one day, and we'd feel good, and the next day wouldn't be good, and we'd be upset, says Kelly.

Jesse was fed intravenously at birth, and later was fed through a tube (gavage). He was able to have a bottle on occasion. "He couldn't have the bottle every time because they (babies) burn calories," says his mother.

One of the main things in Jesse's favor was the fact that he was a good eater.

"The nurses had 'piggy' written on his bottle," says Kelly.

Jesse spent 4 months in the Royal Alexandra hospital in Edmonton before he gained enough weight and was strong enough to come home.

"My husband Jack had a lot of hope," says Kelly, but she admits she was afraid to get too excited on Jesse's good days.

Jesse now weighs approximately seven pounds, and is a strong, healthy four-month-old baby, although his mother says he is still classified as a newborn since his projected birth date was to be March 2.

With Jesse at home, his parents' lives are returning to normal. "Now it's so much different. You can kind of relax," says Kelly. "It's a relief."

Kelly Hart holds tiny Jesse. Although small, this little fellow is full of spunk.

Getty's loss dampens Thurber's spirit

By Sue Kenyon

Tom Thurber, PC candidate won the election for the Conservatives last week and came in with a respectable sweep.

When polls closed, Thurber came in with 4563. Garth 'Bear' Werschler for the Liberals came second with 2826 and NDP candidate Lynne Martin was third with 2622.

The atmosphere at the local Elks hall where Conservatives gathered on election night was dampened with the news that Premier Don Getty lost his riding.

Thurber seemed as shocked as any to hear the news and said it may have been due to a number of things including the premier's hectic schedule that kept him outside of his riding.

"I think that a lot of factors may have contributed to it, one being that Getty helped a lot of people during their campaign and may not have spent enough time on his own."

Former MLA Shirley Cripps was at the Elks and said she feels the media had a lot to do with Getty losing his riding.

"I attended some meetings that Getty was at and when I read the write-up, I could have sworn the reporters were at a completely different meeting," she said.

Cripps said the major issues she sees are Senate reform and interest rates. In 1982 when interest rates skyrocketed, she says a lot of businesses in Drayton Valley went bankrupt and many people may have forgotten about it.

"The interest rates going up should be a real concern. I think some people have forgotten how bad things were in 1982," she said.

Thurber sees many issues and he has a number of things as top priority when he takes over as MLA.

"I think the road issue concerning Violet Grove to Parents angered by school board's haste

By Sue Kenyon

Parents aren't sure what upsets them more — that the school board has passed a recommendation to implement public early childhood education in Eldorado school or that the Twin Rivers school board seems to have ignored their concerns.

Susan Reid presented a 10-minute review on the concerns of parents and suggested the school board table their decision until a later date.

"We (the parents) are so annoyed at the process, the fact the recommendation was passed seems to have become almost a secondary concern," Reid said.

It was explained to Reid that in order to make any presentation she would have to be put on the agenda, which she was. Reid said she at least expected the board to consider her suggestions and concerns.

"I know in that presentation I was speaking for many parents," Reid said. "The reason why we all showed up was to air our concerns. There really wasn't any reason in going. We walked away feeling as Don't worry about sunburns. It won't be getting too warm this week. The Edmonton weather office is calling for cloudy conditions today (Tues.) with a high of +8 C and a low of -4 C.

It will be sunny Wednesday and Thursday with the high expected about +5 C and the overnight temperature dropping to -7 C.

On Friday look for +5 C and a low of -5 C; mostly cloudy.

Lanny Schultz says he will be stepping down as president of the Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association at the end of this season.

Schultz, who has served one term at the helm, says it's been a very long season.

Tom Thurber, the new M.L.A., was busy in Shirley Cripps' former Drayton Valley office the morning after he had won the provincial election in this constituency.

Thurber plans to set up an office in town, using Cripps' former downtown location.

Out with the old and in with the new.

That was the scene at Brendan New & Used last week as Brenda and Danny Thompson packed up the skates and ski equipment and moved out some of their summer stock.

The MD has entered into an agreement with the County of Parkland Employee's Association covering hours of work, rate of pay and other conditions.

No details were announced by either party.

Tax notices will be sent out at the end of April or early in May.

Bruce Hay has been appointed to the recreation board. He was selected from four applicants.

The Drayton Valley Association for the Developmentally Handicapped has received $959 from the MD to cover taxes on property they own east of town.

The MD has signed an agreement with the Village of Breton to pay the $100 month fee for the solid waste transfer station in that community.

Local Ng petition reaches Ottawa

By Belinda Atkinson
A 7000-name petition calling for the extradition of accused murderer Charles Ng has gone to a House of Commons committee, the organizer learned last week.

Don Regenwetter said ministers of parliament will now have to take a stand on this "controversial" case when the committee brings his and other petitions to the floor.

In addition to Ng's extradition, the petition demands amendments to the Canada-U.S. extradition agreement which allows this country to house anyone who faces the death penalty in the United States.

Regenwetter is hopeful ministers will put a stop to the agreement but he will be satisfied if the petition quickens Ng's return to the U.S.

"If the petition doesn't do anything else then at least it has speeded up the judicial process," he said.

Public pressure may have been a major factor in an announcement last week that Ng's appeal will be heard May 2 in the Alberta Court of Appeal.

According to a federal justice official, the trial date was expedited because of the public's perception that the case is "linguishing" before the courts.

Regenwetter was pleased to hear Ng's third and final extradition appeal short of the Supreme Court of Canada will take place so soon.

"It's definitely expedited," he said. "They can take five to six years to reach the stage they're at now."

Regenwetter is confident

Ng's final appeal will be overturned but he is just as sure Don MacLeod, Ng's lawyer, will carry the case to the Supreme Court.

"I think the man is a leech," Regenwetter said. "In my personal opinion, he should go live with (Ng) for a while." Regenwetter said MacLeod has persisted through three appeals to gain exposure and profit for himself.

"(The lawyer) is just abusing the system to gain profit and exposure," he said.

But Regenwetter believes "justice will prevail" in the end and Ng will be extradited to face 25 charges, including 12 capital murder charges, in the United States.

Parent furious over 'dangerous' bus

By Susan Moeckeli
A parent of students in Eldorado and Evergreen schools has threatened to pull her children out of school and teach them herself because she feels her children are in danger riding on the school bus.

Catherine Meredith alleges that older students on school bus number 711 are hurting the younger children, cutting their hair, and generally making it unsafe for them to ride the bus.

Meredith also alleges that the bus driver, Dutch Vandorp (who usually drives number 713, but filled in for the regular driver of 711 for a couple of weeks) has been swearing at the children.

According to Meredith, on at least one occasion, "60 kids were on a bus that only seats 54."

"That woman's overboard," said Vandorp.

When asked if he had sworn at the children he replied, "No, they swear harder at me than I do at them."

Meredith said she volunteered to ride the school bus daily to help the bus driver keep control over the children, but after a week of doing so, the Twin Rivers school division informed her she could no longer ride the bus.

"We're not insured for other people (other than students) to be riding," said Bill Weber, secretary treasurer.

"We'll call a meeting of the bus drivers and school principals to discuss procedures to be used in discipline," said Weber.

Regarding Meredith's allegation that Vandorp had been swearing at the children, Weber said, "I would have to talk to him about that."

Evergreen school principal Chris Kelly said that a 54-passenger bus was used because of a breakdown of a school bus that is used for trips. The regular bus was then used for a trip to Edmonton and the smaller bus transported students to or from school.

Weber said the regular transportation of the children is the main concern, and that the smaller bus could have been used for the trip. "We'll have to make it clear."

Eldorado school principal Howard Pearson, said there are ongoing behavior problems on most of the school buses, and not 711 in particular.

Meredith feels that riding "shot-gun" on the school bus is the answer to the problem, but says she will take her children, ages 7 and 10, out of school if she has to in order to keep them safe. "I would go that far."

Lodgepole is a major issue. There is concern about the logging trucks and the number of trucks using that road and the safety factor as school buses are also sharing the road. It definitely has to be upgraded and improved," he said.

"I would like to see a constituency office at least one day a week in the eastern area," he said.

The cattle business expanding and diversifying crops are another thing that he projects will happen in the future.

Council tempers flare over roadway issue

Things are usually relatively quiet at town council meetings.

Our elected officials go through the issues, indicating they are well versed in all phases of the decision at hand.

Very rarely do tempers flare.

But that certainly wasn't the case when council met last month.

Tempers flared between two councillors after administration had introduced plans for a major roadway system in the southwest corner of town.

Councillor Alex Salfi, who used to live in the area to be most affected by the plans, made it known he wasn't happy.

Another councillor, Howard Olsen, indicated he felt Salfi had missed the point of administration's entire roadway plan.

Aside from this very rare occurrence in council, there was something in Salfi's tirade that made a lot of sense.

Here council, the elected officials who often take the heat from the public if something isn't just right, were being asked to make some major decision on project they had just seen.

That's right. It was given to members of council on the very day that council was being asked to make some major decisions.

It seems unfair that administration would even consider putting members of council in this position.

It was obvious from the conversation in council that the councillors needed more time to study the impact of the proposal.

Administration might also want to inform residents of the area who let their feelings be known through two petitions.

Project sounds good, but where's money coming from?

It wasn't spelled out at the most recent town council meeting...but look for the town to announce plans for another major project in the not-too-distant future.

Maybe even before the municipal election.

All indications point to something that will include a campground and tourist booth. They might even decide to throw in a museum.

The prospect of these was hinted at during council's heated debate on their proposed roadways through West Valley Park.

When town manager Manny Deol was asked about the future of the campground currently located in the park, he hinted that it may be turned into a picnic area. And,

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

almost in the same breath, mentioned the prospects of a campground to the south.

Deol also indicated that he wasn't sure what the future was for the RV disposal dump that is currently located at the north entrance to the park.

In his comments, Councillor Alex Salfi hinted at a tourist booth.

It's my guess that whatever major project the town has planned, but aren't saying, could be built on the old Woods subdivision site.

I'm not totally convinced that the town should be spending our (taxpayers') money on a tourist booth. Why don't we get something to promote first?

Statistics at the chamber's tourist booth the past couple of years certainly don't indicate that we need an ultra-modern facility.

I also have my reservations about another campground.

As far as a museum is concerned...something is long overdue.

But the most important question is money. Where does the town expect to get this?

Twin Rivers school board should consider parents' concerns

Dear Editor,

Because the regular monthly meetings of the local Twin Rivers school board are not advertised, when their advertisement appeared in the March 14, issue of The Western Review, the public perceived this ad to mean a public meeting where they would have the opportunity to voice any concerns they may have on the issue and/or question the board members on any item.

After telephoning the school district office Friday, March 17, to see if the floor would be open to the public we were advised "probably" and later that the chairman was "pondering" the decision. Because a group of concerned parents wanted to make sure our concerns were heard, we requested to be placed on the agenda of their March 20 meeting, as a delegation.

We were granted our request, with a time limit of 10 minutes being set for the presentation. Again, on the morning of March 20 two parents telephoned the school district office to find out if the public would be allowed to participate in the meeting; again, two answers of probably. So at the meeting, our presentation was made, with a large delegation of concerned parents attending, many of whom were not aware that this was not a "public meeting." At the end of our presentation, we urged the board to table their decision, until after they hold a public meeting (preferably in the evening so that more concerned parents could attend, since many could not make the 1 p.m. meeting March 20 due to work and election commitments.

After the superintendent presented his report to the board, they continued on with their agenda and proceeded to vote, without acknowledging the fact that a delegation had attended the meeting and made a presentation. The very least they could have done was take a recess to discuss amongst themselves the possibility of tabling the decision.

The superintendent made one comment that the board was unaware that the public was concerned. Until the ad in the March 14 issue of the local paper, unless one had attended the daytime school board meetings previously held, there was no way the public was aware this issue was on their agenda. That is why so many attended the March 20 meeting — because they were concerned. Surely the board would have realized that, as attendance at their regular monthly meetings is almost nonexistent.

Is this what we were expecting on Jan. 13 when we elected these members of the community to represent us and our children? We think not. If so, we are no better off than we were under the auspices of the county of Parkland school board. Parents of children presently attending school in the Twin Rivers school district and/or with young children to be attending in the future should be concerned that the Twin Rivers school board is going to continue to run the business that affects our children in such a manner: without regard for the genuinely concerned parents.

Reader disillusioned by school board

Dear Editor,

On March 20 I attended, along with a large turnout of concerned parents, the Twin Rivers school board meeting. The board addressed the issue of a public early childhood services program to be placed in the already overcrowded Eldorado school.

Prior to the meeting one parent had requested to be put on the agenda (the only way the board will hear someone) to present the viewpoint of many parents. She was given 10 minutes.

The presentation was clearly stated, factual and had many valuable points to consider and concluded with some viable alternatives.

One board member had one question.

Dr. Bevan then reported on a feasibility study which had been done. He was given ample time to elaborate and expand on his comments. The recommendations placed

You know him as Roger Tomaszewski but when you look for his album — look for Tommy Rogers. Rogers just won a $32,000 recording contract and plans an album for next fall.

Warburg celebrity wins $32,000 contract

By Sue Kenyon

The town of Warburg has a rising celebrity in its midst. Tommy Rogers, known locally as Roger Tomaszewski, has won a $32,000 recording contract.

Rogers received the contract in Edmonton after he won the CFCW 1989 Country Star Search contest. It was his fifth year competing. He competed against 153 people in the initial audition.

The $32,000 contract is made up of 1000 compact discs, 500 copies of cassette tapes, 500 copies of two singles, studio time and promotion.

Rogers says that when he finally made it to the finals there were only seven others competing against him.

In a tape of the final competition which Rogers and his wife, Laura Lee, have in their home in Warburg, one can hear Rogers' name announced as the winner. Over deafening cheers, Rogers says, "I just wish my little girl was here."

Rogers was talking about his 20-month old daughter Lisa Marie who could not be in Edmonton for the big night.

Rogers is currently in a country and western band called Tommy Rogers and Shoot Out. Rogers says that they play a lot of Rogers' originals as well as other artists' songs.

The two songs that Rogers sang on the winning night were: Keith Whitley's The Birmingham Turnaround and John Schneider's A Memory like Yours.

The producer of Rogers' album will be R. Harlan Smith and Rogers says that Smith has told him if this recording contract goes well, Smith will be looking at breaking Rogers into the U.S. market.

Rogers has been singing since he was at least five years old and in front of people since age seven.

"I come from a very musical family," he says. His dad plays the harmonica and his mother plays the accordion. He does not live too far from them in Warburg.

Rogers' first album under Royalty Records should be out by next fall and as for the future, he just hopes he will have a career in country music.

Rogers and the Shoot Outs have given up playing bars for now but they do play social events and they are booked to play a bowling banquet in Drayton Valley May 27.

The other exciting news in Rogers' life is his wife, Laura Lee is expecting their second baby April 12.

"Hopefully by then I will be well into my recording contract," he says.

Former police now patrol

The county of Parkland police department has a new name.

County council has renamed the department County of Parkland Patrol Department.

The police committee, which also underwent a name change to become the Parkland County Advisory Committee, originally recommended to county council the new name is Parkland County Patrol Department.

Some administrators and councillors disagreed with the recommendation, saying the new name should be consistent with all other department names.

The word 'police' was removed from all shoulder flashes and door decals and replaced with the word 'constable'.

Metal badges were amended to read Patrol Department instead of Police Department.

Camrose woman searching for natural mother

By Belinda Atkinson
Somewhere in Drayton Valley a woman wonders what became of the baby girl she gave up for adoption 24 years ago.

She was young at the time, only 17, single, and a lack of resources likely forced her into the toughest decision she would ever make.

Moore does it again

An Alder Flats auctioneer has an incredible record of political achievements even though he's never run for office.

Norm Moore brought PC candidate Tom Thurber to victory March 20 as his nominator after carrying former MLA Shirley Cripps into three election wins.

Even under the Social Credit government of 1971, Moore's luck or good judgement was right on target.

Moore met Conservative candidate Rusty Zander after his nomination, worked on the campaign, and celebrated the first Drayton Valley constituency.

Despite his five-time winning record, Moore says the candidates and voters deserve the credit for Conservative successes.

Now, that little girl is grown and wants to end a lifetime of questions about the woman who brought her into the world.

Holly Taschuk

"I want her to know there are no hard feelings. I'm not mad at her. I just want to know her," Holly Taschuk says.

The Camrose woman has placed advertisements in the classified section of the local newspaper and hopes this will prompt her birth mother to come forward.

She's not sure her mother still lives in Drayton Valley, where she delivered Holly Christmas day, 24 years ago, but this is all she has to go on.

"I just want to know what she looks like. I'm aware I might be rejected," she says. Ironically, Holly knows the difficulty of having a baby at a young age, having given birth to her own child at 17 years of age.

But she had supportive parents and was able to keep Jessica, 6. She married two years ago and is now pregnant with her second child.

It took Holly a long time to find the nerve to search for her birth mother. She always had questions but never took the first step until January of this year.

She believes she will find the woman, somehow, but 'They haven't heard the last of Bear'

By Susan Moeckick
A man who promised only to "get honesty back into government" was defeated in his riding last week.

Garth 'Bear' Werschlser, Liberal candidate for the Drayton Valley constituency, says he will be more vocal in the future. "They haven't heard the last of the 'Bear' in this area."

More than 100 people showed up at the Alder Flats community hall to support the burly man who admittedly has no political background, but captured the hearts of constituents.

"If more people voted for the man instead of the party, things would have been different," said Sylvia Gomolchuk, a Buck Lake resident.

"It was remarkable," said Werschlser. "This whole town (Alder Flats) just rallied around me."

The Progressive Conservative party took the majority of votes, 4563; Liberals were second with 2826 votes, and NDP trailed with 2622 votes.

Although saddened by 'Bear's' defeat, the Liberals were very excited they had over 2800 votes, compared with approximately 600 in the last election, according to Werschlser's campaign manager, Rebecca Fitzgerald.

"When you start off campaigning from your kitchen with your friends' contributions, and then show a showing like this and come up from 600 votes, it really shows that democracy is alive," said Fitzgerald. "I think it's been great in that respect."

"I never set out to be a politician," said Werschlser. "I set out to try and right some wrongs..."

'Bear' said he was not sure if politics will be a part of his future plans. "It will depend on the situation. There might be somebody out here that I feel maybe I want to get behind rather than get in front of."

"It was a good campaign," he added. "I really enjoyed it."

"I'm sorry to see Thurber in there," said an Alder Flats resident who did not wish to disclose his name. "When he was the reeve (County of Wetaskiwin), that was enough for me."

"Most people only vote for PC because they don't want to change," said a dejected supporter and friend of Werschlser, Darcy Clark.

Martin will stay involved

There were a lot of positive things for Lynne Martin in last Monday's provincial election.

Despite her third-place finish in the Drayton Valley constituency race behind the Liberal and PC candidates, the NDP hopeful saw some positive signs.

She won two polls in Devon and in another was only one vote behind PC winner Tom Thurber. She also won Calmar rural, Tomahawk and one advance poll.

Martin, who will go back to being an apprentice electrician for her husband's business, ran third in Drayton Valley. She contributes this to a short campaign that only allowed her a day and two evenings in that centre.

However, Martin says she went into the March 20 provincial election not really knowing what to expect. Three days before Albertans went to the polls, she estimates 85 per cent of the people she talked to were still undecided.

The Liberals' strong showing in the riding was somewhat of a surprise to her.

The final totals had the PCs in first place with 4563 followed by the Liberals with 2826 and Martin with 2622.

Martin did a lot of door-knocking during her 16-day campaign.

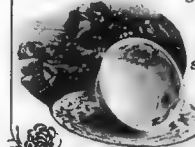

During that time Martin and her supporters distributed 2500 pieces of literature.

Martin says it's too early to make a commitment about her political future. But she does plan on getting involved with the party.

Spring break fun

By Pat Cameron
Spring will soon be here. It's only a matter of weeks now and Park Valley Pool is ready with a full slate of lessons.

This is your last chance to enroll in any of our programs. We offer everything from watertots (six months to 18 months) right up to adult lessons. Check out times and prices by phoning the pool at 542-5749.

Don't miss our special events during spring break. The highlight of our March swims will be a 'looney swim' on Wednesday, March 29. We'll have looney games and Looney cartoons.

Here's your last chance for fun before going back to school. Come watch our staff "perform" in a just-for-fun watershow Friday, March 31 from 1:30 to 2 p.m. during our regular leisure swim (1-8:30 p.m.)

Special April events

Every Friday: 'Lifeguard for a day' contest. Enter by putting your name in our entry box during Friday leisure swims. One name will be drawn each week and the lucky child will have an opportunity to be a lifeguard the following Friday during leisure swim. Here's your chance to sit up in the 'chair' and see what the lifeguard sees.

Breton upgrading course

Breton Golf Club held a meeting and election recently. Elvin Strand was re-elected as president, Jim Wheale was re-elected vice-president, Kathy Neufeld was elected treasurer, and Arlynn Miller was elected secretary.

The club needs 1000 volunteer hours of labor to match a $26,500 government grant.

This year's total budget for the club is $93,000. The club will be upgrading the golf course and is looking at putting in one or two new greens.

Strand said the club is hiring a graduate of Fairview turf grass management course to upgrade the facility.

Lamplighters make finals

The Drayton Valley Lamplighters made it to the finals at recent tournament in Stettler.

In their tournament opener the Lamplighters found themselves trailing Fort Saskatchewan 3-0 early in the contest. But they stormed back to record a 4-3 overtime decision. Dan Hanson notched the winner.

Superior conditioning was the major factor in the teams 6-5 win over Alix in their second game.

This was followed up with a 12-4 win over Edison.

In the final, the Lamplighters dropped a 7-2 decision to the host Stettler club.

Bowers a true gentleman

Rob Bowers, a member of the Parkland Elks has won the most gentlemanly player award in the Wild Rose Bantam Hockey League.

In the Wild Rose atom playoffs, Sunshine Ford won the 'C' division. They defeated Leduc 10-3 in a two-game total-goal series and defeated the Braidnor Bullets 6-1 and 6-2.

Golf fees won't rise

By Frank Ryan

For the first time in five years membership and green fees at the Drayton Valley golf course won't be going up.

"We have to compete with the other courses in the area," club president Vi Helm stated following last Monday's annual meeting.

Helm, in her first full season as president, named Birchwood Village Greens at Lindale and Fairways West near Alder Flats as the courses they are competing with.

Jim Jansen, former treasurer, added that the executive felt memberships dropped last season because of the increase.

Memberships accounted for $100,942 last year compared to $99,407 in 1987. The projection for 1989 is $110,000.

The club is predicting a big year for green fees.

After taking in $54,595 last year the executive hopes to see that jump to $80,000 this year.

It appears that the 1989 golf season will get underway a little later than usual.

As of last week, there was about one foot of snow on the course and up to three feet in areas where it has drifted.

Last year at the same time people were already on the green.

The club reported a $44,990 deficit last year but with the help of donations and a government grant, this was reduced to $179.

One area of the operation that realized a deficit was the bar where sales dropped from $26,528 in 1987 to $23,554 last year. The projected budget for 1989 is $35,000.

The club has prepared a $265,900 budget for 1989.

Helm told last week's meeting that the additional nine holes added $683,621 to the actual value of the course. The actual book value of the course is now $1,145,222.

The club still owes $539,000 to the bank.

To assist with operations the club is planning a couple of major fundraisers.

They hope to get permission to sell Nevada tickets and hold a car raffle. These two will hopefully raise $25,000.

Helm also mentioned a camping area and tournament facilities for the course, but didn't elaborate.

Mike Townley will be back for his second season as pro.

Lariettes end hard season with bronze medal

No one wanted to end the season without a good, hard fight, according to Larry Nelson who summed up the first-ever girls minor hockey provincial championships.

In the end, the only thing that slowed the five teams down was the mass of injuries they'd incurred from months of no-holds-barred action.

"We had girls playing with bad knees. Sherwood Park had a girl who had to go to the hospital because of a strained muscle," he said.

There were injuries all over the four teams."

Nelson's Lariettes, the hosts of the two-day season finale, maintained a close second against the Edmonton Broncos 2-1 and Medicine Hat 3-3.

An easy 10-0 win against Sherwood Park brought them closer to the gold, a clear win repeated in the semi-finals with an 11-0 win against the same team.

In the end, however, the Edmonton Broncos landed the gold trophy, Medicine Hat

Bulldozers took the silver and the local team had to settle for bronze.

Nelson said the flu bug and injuries took their toll on the Lariettes but bronze was something to be proud of for a team that gave its all right to the finish.

Town council rejects bench advertising program

Town council has rejected a bench proposal from a Mayerthorpe firm.

Lac. Advertising

Enterprises Ltd. approached the town about placing 40 to 60 benches at various locations in Drayton Valley.

Advertising would be placed on each bench.

Councillor Alex Salfi was the only one to support the proposal.

He felt they would be a benefit to all and any problems could be solved.

Recreation director Paul Neilsen told council his main concern was maintenance. Besides, he pointed out, the town currently has their own bench program underway.

Mayor Bob Mayhew agreed with the need, but he felt the benefit of such a project should go to a local out of town?

Salfi jumped back into the conversation, stating he agreed with the theory that the work should be done locally. However, he felt because no one did that work here, was it so wrong to go

"Why wait? Let's get the benches now," he explained.

Manny Deol, the town manager, was a bit concerned about the advertising on the bench. "It will force the local businesses to advertise," he stated.

Former county employee unhappy

The MD of Brazeau still has some unfinished business to deal with dating back to their takeover from the county of Parkland.

A former county employee is apparently not happy with the financial arrangements and has hired a lawyer to act on his behalf.

John Erickson, MD municipal manager, wasn't saying much when contacted by The Western Review, other than to say the matter was in the hands of lawyers for the two parties.

Tory stronghold weakens

By Bellinda Atkinson
Last Monday's election results provided a clear picture of changing trends in this traditionally Conservative riding.

For Tom Thurber, newly elected MLA, 4663 votes was a warning sign that Liberal views are replacing this once-secure Conservative stretch of land.

Not since Rusty Zander ousted a Social Credit candidate in 1971 has a Conservative found sonarrow a win. Even Zander, who helped disband the Social Credit government of the day, had seven-per-cent more support from voters than our new MLA.

Tom Thurber was not up against high profile candidates, nor did he introduce controversial ideas.

But the newly elected MLA will go to Edmonton with only 46 per cent of voters' support, 26 per cent less than in 1976, their best year, and 15.1 per cent below last provincial election.

Garth Bear Werscher, on the other hand, enjoyed a higher share of the votes than a Liberal has ever secured in this riding.

The man who swore to "trap a Thurber" found he'd snagged 28 per cent of the votes, 21.1 per cent more than in the 1986 provincial election.

Liberal candidates have

only run sporadically in this riding. With as little as two per cent support one year and four per cent another, perhaps voters never felt the party a plausible alternative until now.

The New Democrats have their own story to tell. Years of fluctuating between second and third while the WCC and Social Credit parties had their day has done little to sway the average 20 per cent support from the riding.

Lynne Martin maintained the same 26 per cent share of votes the last ND candidate received and can feel confident a secure minority is unswaying in the belief that family and education is paramount.

Our new MLA recognized these values in the election and promised socially concerned programs such as extended care. Now, under the watchful eyes of 54 per cent of the constituency that voted Liberal and ND, the pressure to address these issues will be on.

"You could find a lot of people who 'ote PC,' he says.

He simply looks for a candidate who is knowledgeable and capable and says the voters do the rest.

"They have to be able to represent the people. I like to see a candidate who has knowledge of the area and I like to see a sense of fairness," he says.

Moore is confident Thurber will succeed but, at the same time, he says the newly elected MLA will be faced with tough decisions in a community of divided views.

"We're not going to be pleased with him all the time. On certain issues, 48 per cent (of the people) will feel one way and 55 the other," he says.

Because of this, Moore says Thurber is "bound to disappoint a lot of people."

But he is confident Thurber will meet the many challenges that lie ahead and live up to his duty and inform the constituents of what is happening in Edmonton.

"The responsibility of the MLA is to explain to us what the government is doing," he says. "I'm counting on him to have the ability to tell us what is going on."

Municipal district tries to buy locally

The MD of Braseau tries to buy locally whenever possible.

"We don't have a formal policy," municipal manager John Erickson admitted last week.

"Administration goes locally as much as we can, depending on the circumstance," he added.

Recently, the MD purchased several new vehicles. Erickson says the MD got a little better price out of town, but when they considered warranty work, decided to buy locally.

"Some things we just can't," he stated.

Crime statistics up last year

Crime statistics were up last year in Drayton Valley. RCMP Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey reports every category was up last year over 1987.

Total complaints jumped from 2,345 in 1987 to 2,893 last year.

Criminal Code offences that included break and enter, frauds and property damage jumped from 690 to 733. Frauds alone increased by 33 to 92 in all.

Provincial statutes, which include such things as intoxicated persons, liquor and written warnings increased by 263 to 1,284.

The total motor vehicle accidents was up by 44, drug cases jumped by 19, the number of prisoners held in the local lockup went from 323 to 335 and municipal traffic offences were up by 10. He credits them to increased traffic enforcement.

Humphrey says he's not really concerned by any of the increases. He credits them to increased traffic enforcement.

Poaching still major problem

The Alberta Fish and Wildlife Association applauds the new anti-poaching initiatives announced recently.

However, since wildlife parts can be legally sold under the new Wildlife Act, which was proclaimed April 1, 1987, a major incentive for poaching remains. And, since apprehension of poachers is about two or three for every 1000 incidents of poaching, this major problem continues to threaten free-ranging wildlife.

Furthermore, it appears game farming (ranching) with its intentions sale of wildlife parts from ranched animals, is a long-term intention of the provincial government under the department of agriculture.

Therefore, it is the position of the Alberta Fish and Game Association that the monetary incentive to poach wildlife, by commercialization, sale of parts and game farming, should be removed by the provincial government by again placing a ban on the

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

One might call Greg Fedor a marathon man since the RCMP officer is constantly in motion. Whether it's obligations with the Lady Beware program, RCMP auxiliary, chamber of commerce, gun club or First Choice Entertainment, Greg says there's always something to do.

"I just do it after my wife is in bed," he explains, adding he still has time to see Janice, his wife, and Melissa, his 3-year-old daughter.

Fedor, a second generation RCMP with three siblings in the force, has been here three years. With all his hobbies and a love for Drayton Valley, he isn't in a hurry to leave.

"It's a down of opportunities," he says. It seems he's jumped at every opportunity in town.

Muir Lake school plans expansion

The county of Parkland school board has passed a motion asking county council to obtain 17 acres of land adjacent to Muir Lake school for future expansion of the site.

John Arnot, deputy school board superintendent, drafted a plan with other county administrators outlining the expansion of the school and presented it to the board at their last meeting.

McNaught concerned

Cliff McNaught is enjoying his new home in the Pleasant View Mobile Home Park.

But, the father of two school-age children is a little concerned over the width of 50th Street.

"It's too narrow," he says. Wife Maureen says they would like to have their kids ride bikes into town instead of taking the school bus every day, but that's out of the question due to the narrow road.

Unfortunately, they don't see anything being done about the width and the heavy everyday traffic that uses the main thoroughfare into, and out of, town.

Emergency rescue response updated

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark was pleased to learn Drayton Valley received funding under the Regional Response Improvement program for a communications system to help coordinate appropriate agencies and warn people in the event of a disaster.

Emergency Preparedness Canada funded 50 per cent of the project cost of $6,921 and the province funded 25 per cent.

Disaster services coordinator Manny Deol says the regional communication systems will be installed immediately and will link Drayton Valley with Breton, Lodgepole, Tomahawk, Entwistle, the new MD of Brazeau and ID 14.

Deol gave an example of how the new system will work if a tornado warning comes into effect in the future: A loud siren will alert citizens to turn on their radios for instructions while upgraded radio communications between emergency teams will coordinate response efforts.

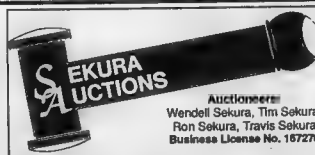

Clark says the town of Drayton Valley is to be commended for its efforts to improve the level of emergency rescue response.

Bingo Brain brainchild of St. Louis inventor

By Belinda Atkinson
A local entrepreneur has secured exclusive Canadian rights to an invention that could revolutionize bingo.

Don Regenwetter received confirmation last week that Bingo Brain — an electronic device that manages up to 96 bingo cards at a time — is his to market and distribute throughout the country.

"I can see 10 per cent of bingo players having one in the first three years," he says.

"...any card played in Canada is stored in one of two libraries (disks)."

Bingo Brain contains a computer chip in which all popular game patterns are stored. If the operator wants to play a new or unusual game, the player simply programs the sequence into memory.

A library or disk is inserted which coincides with number combinations printed by one of two card manufacturers in Canada.

Regenwetter assures any card played in Canada is stored in one of two libraries but, the new series were to be introduced, the player would simply program numbers into memory.

When a player is set to begin, he or she records card serial numbers and then individual bingo numbers as they are given.

"I've invested in hairier schemes than this and they paid off."

As the game progresses, the computer will flash the card closest to a bingo and alert the player the moment a win is achieved.

Regenwetter is confident his "mega buck" investment will pay off.

"I've invested in hairier schemes than this and they paid off," he joked.

American investors also have high hopes for the Bingo Brain. Since inventor Ken Birenbaum won best invention at a St. Louis contest in 1987, the computer has gone into mass production and hundreds of thousands of dollars have been put into advertising, displays and marketing.

After a short visit to St. Louis and a meeting with the inventor, Regenwetter will begin marketing the lightweight device at bingo halls in Edmonton, Calgary and Red Deer.

"There are 25 halls in Edmonton and 49 in Calgary," he says, explaining the major centres will keep him busy for some time to come.

Regenwetter believes initial success will come in the form of rental possibilities. With a $299 price tag, he says people will want to be comfortable with the Bingo Brain before making such an investment.

Don Regenwetter displays the new Bingo Brain computer.

"They're not a lot different than VHS machines. People rented them for a while before buying them," he said.

Once city markets are secured, Regenwetter will expand to rural areas and then, if all goes well, spread eastward across Canada.

With other interests in a local printing shop, a new fertilizer pill, all-terrain vehicle and roots firmly planted in Drayton Valley, he will turn the product over to sub-agents rather than attempt covering Canada himself.

Regenwetter also hopes to create 10 to 15 new jobs locally if he can convince Bingo Brain Inc. to allow final assembly and packaging to take place here.

Combined with locally produced brochures, displays and shipping responsibilities, he says the economy stands to gain a lot from his venture.

"It's really exciting," he says.

Schoolboard approves kindergarten despite opposition

By Sue Kenyon

The Twin Rivers school board approved the public kindergarten proposed for Eldorado school despite parents' concerns raised at the special meeting.

Susan Reid, a concerned parent presented a review of parents' concerns requesting the board table their decision to a later date.

One of Reid's main concerns was the space in Eldorado school and the effect on Eldorado's students.

"We are under the impression that the school is presently overcrowded and they are anticipating an increased Grade 1 registration for the 1989/90 school year. By incorporating and ECS (Early Childhood Services) program in the school, we presume any and all extra space would be completely utilized," Reid read from a prepared presentation.

The school board in its implementation review also plans to offer bussing which Reid is also concerned about. Reid feels the bussing of students will have an adverse effect on the ECS program. By offering transportation, Reid feels more parents will enroll children in the full-day program and the half-day program will eventually disintegrate.

"We anticipate there would be an increased enrollment in Town to clarify tax questions

Do you know the difference between general assessment and taxes?

If you do, that's great. But just in case you don't understand the impact and differences between the two, the town hopes to clarify any of those concerns.

Next month town council will run a series of full page ads in The Western Review that will hopefully clear any problems up.

The first two articles are scheduled for April 4 and 11. Then, a public information meeting will be held, where, if you have any concerns, you can get some answers.

Another full page ad is scheduled for the April 25 issue.

To help ease people's concerns, the town has arranged a two-day open house May 17-18 to field more inquiries about general assessment and taxes.

"Assessment and taxes can be very confusing. This will make it much easier," says Robin Wenbourne, municipal secretary.

The first assessment in eight years will be reflected in this year's notices. It could in some cases, result in a change in taxes.

full-day kindergarten programs and that this is not meeting the needs of the child, but of parents," she says.

No one is sure yet what effect the public kindergarten will have on the already existing private kindergartens; but the Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten did submit a suggested three-year plan to the board, whereby the public kindergarten would, by 1990, acquire the operation and assets of the community kindergarten.

A summary given by Dr. George Bevan, superintendent of school district #65, said that because of limited space in Eldorado school, the board would look at refurbishing the portables, if the community kindergarten facilities were not available.

"These portables would not be used by the ECS students. They would be always in the main building, but older students would use the portables," he said.

A report on the ECS program given by Bevan states that a one-year delay in implementing the public ECS would not have any gains for Eldorado staff, and in fact it may be more difficult in a year.

"A delay of one year in ECS program implementation will not appreciably improve the lot of Eldorado staff and administration. They will still have their same facilities. In fact, it may be easier for Eldorado to implement this year when the staff is not heavily involved in planning a new addition or school modernization as they will be over the next couple of years," Bevan read from the report.

The recommendation was made at the meeting that the ECS program plans should steam ahead to be implemented this coming September. This recommendation was passed.

Easter Seal auction receipts up this year

This Easter Seals Auction held at the Derrick Mall last week by Century 21 brought in $2970, more than the last auction held in 1987, Lorne Pinkoski, owner of the local Century 21 said.

"In past years we have held a combination, auction/garage sale. This year was really good with just the auction and there were more big ticket items."

The most expensive item that went this year were season tickets to an Edmonton Eskimos game. They sold for $325.

One of the main attractions at the auction this year was Edmonton Eskimos' runningback Craig Ellis. Ellis was on hand at the auction signing autographs.

Pinkoski says this year every item donated was sold at the auction and there was always a good bidding crowd.

"There were always about 40-50 people at the auction at one time," he said.

Century 21 International is the corporate sponsor of Easter Seals in North America and Pinkoski says all the money made through the auction last week will go to the Easter Seals organization.

Hockey questionnaire received

The Alberta Amateur Hockey Association is taking a serious look at the elitism program for players under 12 years of age.

Over 2700 questionnaires have been mailed out to pee wee and below coaches. Similar questionnaires have also been sent to over 200 minor hockey executive members.

Lanny Schultz, president of the Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association confirms his executive and a lot of the local coaches have received the questionnaires.

"There's room for improvement, no doubt about that," Schultz says.

The minor hockey boss says he gets a little concerned when he sees young teams, such as those in question, playing anywhere between 50 and 75 games a season.

"A lot of coaches are taking it too serious," he added.

Talent night a huge success

By Darlene VanEmber

The March meeting of the Oil Wives club of Drayton Valley hosted the 31st annual talent night. The evening was also a birthday celebration.

As this is the only evening ladies not married to an "oil" man can attend, the meeting swelled to 216 in attendance. Out-of-town guests included 10 members from Rocky Mountain House, five from Edmonton, four from Swan Hills and one member from Leduc.

Special honored guests included Peggy Metcalfe, president of the board of directors of the Association of Oil Wives Clubs and also a member of the local Oil Wives chapter; Trudy Jackson, treasurer for AOWC and a member of the Swan Hills club; Eleanor Butts, past-president of AOWC and a member of the Edmonton club.

The theme for the evening centred around being a 'couch potato.' Ladies were invited to dress as they would if they were spending the night in front of the television. Oil Wives displayed their talents with their interpretations of various TV shows. The result was an hilarious fun-filled evening.

Another highlight was the publication of The Flame, the club's yearbook. This year, members were treated to information about each other, recipes, trivia, anecdotes, friendship poems, household tips and much, much more.

The April meeting will hold on the 10th at the Elks Hall.

Buck Lake/Alder Flats novice team players give their goalie a hard time at practice.

Parents circulate demand

By Joan Elmon

A Hawaiian beach party dance will be held April 29 at the Buck Lake Hall starting at 9 p.m. Proceeds to the students' union.

There are still a few history books Packhorse to Pavement, covering the Alder Flats, Buck Lake and Pendryl area, available. They can be obtained from any member of the history book committee.

Forty-five irate parents attended a meeting at the Maywood Community Hall March 21.

For the past few years the fate of the local schools has been in limbo. Alder Flats, Buck Lake and Winfield have all been falling into disrepair, no decision has been made on a centralized school and Winfield is about to lose its high school.

Parents from Pendryl, Buck Lake and Alder Flats say they are prepared to take their children out of school unless an immediate solution is found.

Three parents met with Twin Rivers school division representatives March 21 to ask if they would be prepared to support school attendance in the area if annexation of the Alder Flats area took place. Twin Rivers division could not make any specific decisions on matters outside their boundaries.

A group of parents are meeting with the Wetaskiwin County board April 14 and presenting them with a demand. They will be circulating this demand for all interested residents to sign prior to that date. Copies will go to the County of Wetaskiwin, MD of Brazeau and Twin Rivers school division.

Logging truck loses load

Violet Grove

By Sylvia Davidson

On Saturday, March 18 Yvonne and Fred Wareham from Marchwood, Hampshire, England were guests of honor at a bonfire luncheon on the farm of Harold and Lillian Smithinsky, Yvonne's sister and brother-in-law Helene and Pino Marchi and several neighbors attended.

The Warehams took their first ride on a snowmobile under the careful guidance of their host.

A logging truck lost part of his load about 10 miles west of the Violet Grove store on the Lodgepole Highway in the early hours of March 10. No one was injured.

A wedding dance was held for Jack and Bev Tucker March 11.

Eva Badick, a long-time resident of the area who now lives in Drayton Valley, won $1,000 recently on a provincial lottery ticket.

Sympathy is extended to the Maynard Allan family on the death of their son, Larry.

The next general meeting of the Violet Grove Community Club will be April 4 at 7:30 p.m. Elections will be held.

at the zone level, and will go on to compete at the district level at the end of April.

Ken Bishop, president, and Mark Hooks, treasurer, of the Warburg Legion, unanimously agreed that Drosey was an exceptional young artist and writer, saying he has won at the branch level for the past four years.

A new home seminar at Westside Building Products recently was a warehouse of information for people intending to build a new home.

Angela Hutchinson, mortgage officer at the Royal Bank of Canada, said mortgage rates have risen, but a weekly mortgage will save a substantial amount of money.

"The worst choice is to build a house facing the west," said Wayne Gent, a new home designer. "Where you face the weather, you get the most heat loss."

Color is important," said Gent. "Just look at your television and you'll get your ideas for color."

"It pays to get a soil test," he says. According to Gent, it can determine what concrete you use.

Rick Nordstrom, owner of Nordal Homes, said "It's very important to have a surveyor (to check elevation of land, etc.)."

Rick Nordstrom and Terry Drader explain plans.

"Make sure you get a big enough hot water tank," he says.

Your home builder must be a member of the New Home Warranty Program to qualify for CMHG or conventional residential mortgage program. This is very important, Nordstrom stressed.

Another must, according to Nordstrom, is to make sure you have adequate insurance.

Nordstrom recommended floor trusses rather than joists. The problem with joists is the shrinkage."

Two-by-six walls are a good choice, he added.

He also recommends at least a thickness of seven-sixteenths of an inch Sturdy-Wood, and a 215-pound shingle for longer roof life.

"Make sure you've selected good underlay — carpets last longer."

Nordstrom feels oil base paint is the best.

"I thought it was pretty informative," Bill Hays said of the seminar. Hays is renovating his home and felt the seminar was helpful.

Calvary Baptist Church — growing with the times

By Delaine Robinson
Work experience student

The history of the Calvary Baptist Church, previously called First Baptist Church, began in what is now Eldorado school. The first service was held May 21, 1918, led by Rev. Grant Samuelson.

In April of 1969 a groundbreaking ceremony was held to signify the start of construction on the first church building. From the time of completion the congregation grew steadily. In May of 1970 there was an average attendance of 50; by 1975 this number had grown to 105.

With the ever-expanding congregation it was evident additions had to be made to the standing building in order to accommodate new members. Construction

Town applies for street improvement program

The town plans to apply for $723,500 under a provincial street improvement program.

It's a six-year program scheduled to start April 1.

The program will make available a total of $75 million to assist all towns, villages and summer villages with the implementation of their priority transportation projects. This level of funding represents a substantial increase over the current $50-million program.

The program will aid municipalities in undertaking eligible capital improvement projects such as grading, gravelling, base course, paving, sidewalks, curb and gutter, roadway drainage, bridges and related work.

It was Mayor Bob Mayhew's suggestion the town make application right away, or they may be left out.

began in September of 1975 and was completed by May 1976.

These additions saw the church through to 1986 when it undertook still another expansion program, again to accommodate the congregation increase which was now at 175 members.

The actual construction of the new church building began in May of 1987 and was completed in November of the same year. Today the congregation stands at approximately 215.

There have been several pastoral changes since the founding in 1961. At present the pastors are Robert Cochrane and youth pastor Tim Lea.

Boys and girls clubs were started in the early years and have continued to grow along with the church. Today there are three youth groups: junior high, senior high and young adults. In addition to these groups there are Pioneer groups for younger children.

The Calvary Baptist Church has been through many changes.

Frank Maddock students hold panel discussion about teen issues

By Susan Moseicki
Teen issues were addressed in a talk show format recently at Frank Maddock high school.

Moderator: Murray Arnold introduced panelists to the students and invited teens to ask questions.

"Everybody's not having sex," said panelist Debbie-Layne McLeod, manager of Family Planning. "They just want you to think they're having sex because it's supposedly cool."

Carol Robertson Baker, AADAC representative, described an alcoholic as "someone who loses control when they drink, and when they stop drinking they go into withdrawal."

Students were able to direct questions to representatives of ALA-TEEN, Edmonton Youth Emergency Shelter, Birthright, AADAC and Family Planning. In addition, there was a panelist (recovering alcoholic) who grew up with the burden of having an alcoholic parent, and a teenager whose best friends were killed in a car accident involving alcohol.

Jean Anderson was asked what a person should do if they have a friend they suspect is alcoholic (the practice of overeating and then purging). "The first thing you should do is confront them with it."

In response to another question Anderson said the drive behind beloma is to keep the weight down.

"Do girls have trouble getting away from prostitution?" asked one of the students.

were not more inquisitive and suggested perhaps there were too many panelists and

on the agenda were than all voted in favor of, with no debate. A copy was given to each board member but they voted before they had read the report or had time to give it any thought.

As I left the meeting I was totally disillusioned with our elected members and the way they conduct a public meeting. There was no opportunity for the public to speak, ask questions or debate any issue.

Why bother advertising a public school board meeting if the public has no input? Didn't we vote to have our own school board rather than stay with the county of Parkland because local members would serve us better?

When about 30 parents take the time to attend a meeting to present a viewpoint, some acknowledgement should be made. The school board was not elected to ignore us.

Spring tonic: timely tips to aid spring cleaning

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

Cleaning seems to be a never-ending process in most homes and often there's only enough time to remove surface dust, dirt and stains.

A thorough cleaning, otherwise commonly referred to as spring cleaning, is therefore quite important for general home maintenance. Now that spring has officially arrived, it's time to begin thinking in terms of spring cleaning.

Here are some "spring tonic tips" for the kitchen. Hopefully you'll find they will help make spring cleaning at your house a little easier this year.

Clean countertops with any low-abrasive cleaner (Soft-Scrub, Bon Ami). For tougher stains, try rubbing with a slice of lemon to bleach the stain out.

Wash large appliance surfaces with hot, soapy water then polish with a soft, dry cloth.

Lime deposits may appear on your dishwasher interior.

To remove these stains put 250 mL liquid laundry bleach into the empty machine and run through the first wash. After this drains, add 1000 mL (1L) vinegar to the rinse cycle but do not use the dry cycle. Avoid lime deposit buildup by adding 125 mL vinegar to the rinse cycle once a week.

Spills on or in the stove are easiest to clean if done promptly. If you do get a build-up of spills and stains, a cup of ammonia in the oven overnight will loosen grease and burned-on food. Oven racks and element rings clean easier after soaking for several hours in hot, soapy water and ammonia.

Fridge interiors also require general cleaning and freshening. Do so by washing with baking soda and warm water, or warm soapy water will also do the trick.

Coffee makers should be rinsed regularly, especially if used on a daily basis. To do so, run through the cycle using 25 mL baking soda to 1L water (not for aluminum), or 5 mL of dishwasher detergent to 1 L water. Run through one cycle with clear water to rinse afterwards.

Stains on Corningware can be cleaned by scrubbing with baking soda or toothpaste. Soak with 50 mL bleach to 200 mL water.

Remove stains from Teflon cookware by boiling a solution of 30 mL baking soda, 250 mL bleach and 500 mL water in the pan for 10 minutes.

Fastball meeting rescheduled

The Evergreen Men's Fastball League has rescheduled its organizational meeting for Wednesday, April 5.

The meeting was originally scheduled for last Tuesday but had to be called off as several teams were unable to attend.

The April 5 meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in St. Anthony school.

Last week's Who's New list was inadvertently omitted.

Tomahawk

be the 'volunteers of the year'.

The annual general meeting of the Tomahawk and District Sports/Agra Association was held March 20.

The four annual vacancies on the board were filled by Gary Pinder, Barb Zaniewicz, Ralph Goertz and Wade Trimble. Trimble was installed as president, Wilf Goertz as vice president, Shirley Myck returned as secretary and Joyce Goertz was returned as treasurer.

The regular monthly meeting was followed with many plans for the summer season, with a concerted effort to be placed on getting new members in the community to participate in community events. The association hopes to change the image of the Agra/Plex as just a curling rink as the building is a beehive of activity year round. Anyone interested in a family fun ball league for the upcoming season is asked to call Joyce Goertz at 339-2412.

The Seniors' Games held March 21 were a great success.

In all, 81 seniors attended and the Tomahawk Silvertops wish to thank seniors from surrounding districts for helping make the day a pleasurable event.

Winnie Martin of Drayton Valley emerged at the Games as cribbage champ with runnerup Les Parry of Evansburg. In floor curling the Paul Piskunowicz rink were high point winners. The George Hamer team placed second and 'skunk' went to Lou Anderson of Evansburg.

April 2 is the date of the next Silvertops birthday party for seniors having birthdays in March, April or May.

Gaston and Marion Joan celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the Tomahawk Agra/Plex recently, with approximately 150 friends and relatives in attendance. A double-ring ceremony, performed by Rev. Ron Berg (nephew of the bride) renewed the marriage

Rev. Berg, Pastor Eaton and his wife entertained with inspirational songs. Marion, along with her immediate family of six brothers and sisters, played several selections throughout the day. Marion's family then entertained with an hilarious skit depicting the 'life of the Joans'. People attended from Mill Bay, B.C.; Prince Albert, Marsden, Neilbury, Strome and Drayton Valley.

Lots hard to find

Mobile home living popular

By Frank Ryan

Trailer living has and continues to be very popular in and around Drayton Valley.

Dale Luc, a sales representative with Farmers and Ranchers says a lot of people look at buying a manufactured home (that's the fancy name for trailers) because they don't qualify for a mortgage.

Or, some people prefer to buy a trailer, and still have some money left over to enjoy life.

At last count Luc had already sold eight manufactured homes this year and had a lot of other prospects.

Reg Doucet, another salesman at Farmers and Ranchers, expects to sell at least 20 manufactured homes this year.

Doucet says a young couple can get into their own unit for $500 per month instead of putting that much into a rental unit for two years and walking away with a bagful of receipts.

The continuous sale of new and used trailers is the reason mobile home parks continue to expand.

That is obvious in the area. Evergreen, on the north side of town and the Pleasant View Mobile Home Park, south of town on 50th Street, have both expanded in the past year.

At the present time there are about 45 empty stalls in local and area trailer courts, but with a strong economy, Doucet isn't sure that's enough.

Other than that...empty lots are pretty slim. There are presently seven mobile home parks in and around Drayton Valley.

A survey carried out by The Western Review revealed 124 trailers at Poplar Ridge followed by 118 in Country Style, Greenwood (including their expansion) 71, West Park 65, Pleasant View 61, E & B 25 and Western 18.

If you're counting, that's roughly 480. But the numbers don't stop there.

There are several areas in Drayton Valley where trailers are part of the residential area.

New manufactured home sales are nice. But, one worry that Luc and Doucet had in the past was finding a lot.

"Two years ago I could have sold 20 but there weren't any lots," Luc says.

Both real estate salesmen report an active market in manufactured home rentals. However, they're almost as scarce as home rentals.

Farmers and Ranchers sales representative Dale Luc
"...Two years ago I could have sold 20 (mobile homes)..."

Couple find new home comfortable, affordable

By Frank Ryan

Cliff and Maureen McNaught have experienced it all when it comes to a home.

From an apartment, condo and a house in Edmonton to another condo, double-wide trailer, three-bedroom house to a 18-by-75-foot manufactured home that they currently occupy in the Pleasant View Mobile Home Park.

Cliff makes no bones about why his family picked a trailer.

"It's what we could basically afford," he says.

The unit the McNaughts bought new sold for $37,000 without any frills. Those were extra.

So, the McNaughts added a few extras.

Things like upgraded rugs, fireplace, vinyl siding, patio and mirror doors.

The McNaughts shopped around for a house but the average price was between $60,000 and $70,000.

A home in town with the same square feet they now enjoy would likely sell in the $90,000 bracket.

down payment, no taxes and relatively no maintenance.

They had the option of natural gas or propane. They chose natural gas because it was cheaper.

The McNaughts find their new home in the Pleasant View Mobile Home Park very comfortable.

They have the usual water, sewer and garbage service, supermailboxes just down the blocks and satellite TV. This is all included in the rent.

The McNaughts shopped around the mobile home lots in the area before deciding on Pleasant View.

There wasn't much difference...$5 one way or another and some didn't have all the services they now enjoy.

They decided on Pleasant View because of the extra size lot and the little extras.

After five months in their new home, they are finding it quite comfortable.

Maureen says if there is a downfall, it's the lack of a basement. But, that option is built into the unit if the McNaughts ever decide to go that route.

Cliff doesn't agree with those who say trailers are too cold. Despite the extreme cold this winter, he says the Cliff and Maureen McNaught (right) are enjoying their spacious new mobile home in Pleasant View Mobile Home Park (above). Wind or cold hasn't affected their unit.

Maureen is very impressed with the room in their three bedroom trailer. And, she also likes all the cupboard space in the kitchen.

She also likes the fact that if her husband is transferred, they can take the trailer with them.

"It's bad enough that you have to uproot the kids," she added.

Their two children, Kelly and C.J., are also enjoying their new home.

There's a big playground, lots of other kids and bus pickup to take them into town for school. It's easy to see why Cliff and Maureen McNaught like the trailer life. They are enjoying all the comforts of any home.

Home of the Week

Picture your family living in this well-designed centrally-located home, next to one of Drayton's most developed parks, that features indoor swimming pool and tennis courts.

There's 1273 square feet on the main floor of this bungalow along with a professionally, fully developed basement with double heated garage.

This well-kept home features a modern, spacious kitchen with countertop stove, wall oven, patio doors leading off the dining room on to a comfortable covered deck.

The living room is nicely accented with its fresh air fireplace.

You'll also find three freshly redecorated large bedrooms with semi walk-in closets on the main floor.

Descending into the spacious kitchen, patio doors, covered deck basement you will be met by deep plush carpets that lead up to the large family room and fireplace.

Don't overlook the sauna, bedroom, laundry room, cold room and self-contained suite. That will make more than half of your mortgage payment. It consists of a bedroom, bathroom, kitchen and living room.

This home can be viewed through Farmers and Ranchers and is listed at $88,000.

Free Pitch-In bags still available

Free, especially imprinted garbage bags are still available to any school or organization planning a clean-up and beautification project during Pitch-In Week to take place May 1-7.

More than 1900 organizations have informed us of their plans and applied for bags, but, as a result of increased support we've got more bags available in 1989 and we should be able to provide some to everyone who contacts us," states Darlene McIntosh, Alberta coordinator for Pitch-In.

To order bags and to receive more information on Pitch-In, write to Pitch-In, 45 9912-106 St., Edmonton, AB T6K 1C5.

Crop protection guide available

To assist farmers with one of the most expensive and hazardous parts of their business, Alberta Agriculture has been producing a guide for chemicals used in crop protection.

Commonly known as the "blue book," the guide is an in-depth look at the use and safety procedures for herbicides, insecticides, fungicides and rodenticides. The 1989 edition, 1989 Guide to Crop Protection, Part 1 Chemicals, is currently available through Alberta Agriculture district offices and from municipal agricultural fieldmen.

Select charts at the back of the guide can be used to choose appropriate pesticides. The chemicals are listed alphabetically by trade names with information on formulations, registered mixes, weeds controlled and suppressed, when to use, suitable crop use and how to apply.

Any new chemical registrations are part of the annual update. Safety precautions and first aid instructions are also a feature of the guide. This year's back cover reminds farmers to triple rinse containers with instructions on the procedure.

Ducks Unlimited to spend $44.7 million on waterfowl preservation in 1989

Nearly $44.7 million will be spent by Ducks Unlimited Canada in 1989 to help preserve waterfowl populations across the nation.

Four-fifths of the amount is labelled for expenditure on developing, operating and maintaining waterfowl habitat such as wetlands and grassland nesting areas. The balance is used for public promotion of waterfowl conservation, organizing fund-raising activities and administration.

Directors approved a program of conservation projects aimed at developing 19,800 hectares of "new" habitat for duck protection. Attention in 1989 is shifting to include restoration of upland nesting areas which are important to major duck species such as mallard and pintails. Breeding of these once-dominant species has been seriously affected by lack of secure nesting sites in upland areas.

Recent droughts and growth of farm tillage practices aimed at clearing fields of natural cover have devastated waterfowl and other wildlife habitat and decimated populations of the major duck species.

Pension incomes going up in April

Federal Old Age Security (OAS), Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS) and Spouse's Allowance (SA) benefits will be increased in April to keep them in line with the cost of living.

The universal OAS, paid to people 65 and older, will rise to $326.87 (from $323.28) a month in April, May and June.

The maximum GIS will increase to $387.26 (from $384.19) for a single person and for a married person whose spouse does not receive an OAS pension or a Spouse's Allowance.

The maximum GIS will increase to $252.23 (from $250.23) for each married person whose spouse also receives an Old Age Security Pension and for a married person whose spouse receives a Spouse's Allowance.

The maximum SA — paid to low-income people between 60 and 64 who are married to GIS recipients — will increase to $578.10 (from $573.61).

The maximum Widowed Spouse's Allowance (WSPA), paid only to low-income widowed persons aged 60 to 64 who reside in Canada and meet the basic residence requirements, will increase to $638.24 (from $633.17).

The benefit amounts for GIS, SPA and WSPA vary according to the recipient's income during the previous year. Applications for the GIS, SPA and WSPA must therefore be resubmitted each year. These must be returned by March 31 to avoid any interruption in benefits.

We all have our ups and downs

What is good about it?

By Pastor Donald Snell
DV Church of God

In construction work a fellow worker said: "Mother told me about days like this but she never told me there would be so many of them." A friend of mine drove up to the gas pump and said to the attendant, "Good morning," only to receive the disgruntled reply, "What's good about it?"

Yes, we must all admit we have our ups and downs in life. However, we are told that behind every cloud there is a silver lining.

The Christian Church has just celebrated Palm-Sunday. The event when crowds cheered and sang "Hosanna, blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord."

What a day? The air filled with the electricity from the emotional high of the religious fervor shown placing palm branches, even their outer garments for the colt to walk upon. Nothing lacking, King Jesus for a day! Have times changed?

My fellow workers, as that gas attendant, discovered the difference a day can bring. Humans can change their minds — why even religious people change their minds. Those who displayed such a mass rally were easily swayed when they discovered their expectations were not momentarily fulfilled. Not only did they change their minds but their song also.

"Away with Him, Crucify Him, we have no king but Caesar."

From the Pastor's Pen

The same week we read about the cross and the suffering our Lord was administered from their warped minds and cruel hearts. What a day? What's good about it?

Without Good Friday there can be no Easter morning. Religion takes us to the cross but Christianity stands in awe before an open tomb and a resurrected Christ. He is Lord, King of Kings and He ever liveth to make intersection for us. What is good about it? He can be our Savior and our Lord, today. Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. (Mt.7:7)

Work will change, the weather, well...if you don't like it just wait a few minutes. But the eternal word tells us that Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever. Anyone, anywhere, is invited to come — "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

Dear Reader: That's what is good about the Christian Faith!

Revenue Canada reverses decisions

Farmers who deduct capital cost allowance on motor vehicles should be happy with a recent amendment simplifying how these costs are claimed, says an Alberta Agriculture farm management economist.

Douglas Duff, of the farm business management branch in Olds, says Revenue Canada has reversed a decision made last fall to have taxpayers adjust their Class 10 capital cost allowance for each motor vehicle into a new separate individual asset class known as Class 10.1.

A capital cost allowance is the allowable depreciation on buildings and equipment for tax purposes. Income tax regulations set up these allowances by tax class.

Without the amendment, farmers would have had to adjust each car, truck, grain truck and possibly even self-propelled bale wagons into the new separate Class 10.1, says Duff.

Now, only specific passenger vehicles will be included in the individual asset Class 10.1. The Income Tax Act defines a passenger vehicle as an automobile acquired after June 17, 1987.

MESSAGE FROM THE REEVE

The residents of this area have worked, petitioned and hoped for nearly two decades that they would be served by their own local rural municipal government. This dream has finally come true and it is with great pleasure that I bring you the first Reeve's message.

On December 31, 1987, the core area was separated from Improvement District No. 14, the County of Parkland No. 31 and the County of Leduc No. 25, thereby forming Improvement District No. 222. Six months later on July 1st, 1988, the Municipal District of Brazeau No. 77 was incorporated, becoming the newest rural municipality in Alberta and the first in the history of the province to be created from existing municipalities.

On January 1st, 1989, our territory expanded to include additional area from County of Leduc No. 25. Also on that date, two additional Councilors were sworn in bringing your Council to a full complement of five.

The issues that your Council had to deal with upon incorporation were extraordinary and extremely challenging, especially since it was determined to give you the same or an even better level of service. Developing an organization that will be suitable to the needs of our community for years to come and the hiring of staff complementing this organization were our primary goals.

Some of these issues have required immediate attention, many of which are still in progress, including:

- Establishing Standard Levels of Service
- Staffing
- Budgeting
- Administrative Procedures - Establishing Tax Rolls - Computerization
- Land Use Issues
- Union Negotiations (completed)
- Land - Use Planning
 1. General Municipal Plan
 2. Land - Use By - Law
 3. Development of Policies and Procedures
 4. Homelet Planning
- Program Implementation and Policies
- Financial Assessment
- Negotiations for Division of Assets (from previous Municipalities)
- Inventory Investigations of Existing Services in Homelets

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETINGS

A meeting of the Bectors of the Municipal District of Brazeau No. 77 will be held on:

April 17, 1989 commencing at 8:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers, Drayton Valley, Alberta and

April 18, 1989 commencing at 8:00 p.m. in the Breton Community Centre, Breton, Alberta.

Members of your Municipal District Council and Senior Staff will be in attendance.

- Tourism Action Planning
- Economic Development
- Recreation Master Planning

Your new Council is greatly pleased with the progress made to date.

We wish to express our thanks to our ratepayers who have been so patient and understanding during our first six months of operations.

We must extend our thanks to all our staff who have energetically and without exception contributed to the success of our operations. Without their wholehearted support, we would not have been able to cope with such a massive undertaking.

Special thanks to Mrs. Shirley Cripps who worked so diligently to make this dream come true. We must also express our deep appreciation to the Provincial Government, especially the Department of Municipal Affairs for their support and assistance.

Council and staff are looking forward to the future with enthusiasm, eagerly prepared to complete the tasks that are in progress and to meet all new challenges. This is your municipality and it will be the best!

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

December 31, 1988

The Municipal District of Brazeau No. 77 (the Municipal District) was incorporated on July 1, 1988 under the Municipal Government Act. The Municipal District was formed from the Improvement District No. 222 which was previously formed through the amalgamation of various portions of land annexed from Improvement District No. 14, the County of Parkland No. 31 and the County of Leduc No. 25. Effective December 31, 1988, the Municipal District annexed further portions of land from the County of Leduc No. 25.

1. Summary of significant policies:

a) Financial Statement presentation:

These financial statements include the assets and liabilities, revenue and expenditures, reserves and surplus of those Municipal District funds and governmental functions which comprise a part of the aggregate Municipal District operations.

School administration is completely independent from the Municipal District Council and subject to control by the Provincial Government pursuant to the provisions of the School Act; thus, the School Boards are not included in these financial statements.

b) General accounting principles and policies:

The Municipal District's financial statements have been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, except for the following:

i) Property, plant and equipment

No depreciation is recorded on property, plant and equipment.

AUDITORS REPORT TO THE REEVE AND COUNCIL

We have examined the consolidated balance sheet of the Municipal District of Brazeau No. 77 as at December 31, 1988 and the related statements of combined operating revenues and expenditures, combined capital financing acquired and applied, taxes levied and grants-in-lieu, consolidated statement of surplus (deficit) and consolidated statement of equity in fixed assets and the schedules supporting these statements for the six months then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards and accordingly included such tests and other procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Municipal District of Brazeau No. 77 as at December 31, 1988 and the results of its operations and the changes in its capital financing for the six months then ended in accordance with the disclosed basis of accounting described in note 1 (Page 7).

AGRICULTURAL SERVICE BOARD CHAIRMAN'S REPORT

The Agricultural Service Board of the Municipal District of Brasseau No. 77 was formed October 11, 1988, with the initial members being: Neil Norton, Councillor, elected as Chairman, Henry Rondeau, Councillor; Cecil Anderson, Farm member; and Gerald Laarhule, Department of Agriculture Representative.

On January 3, 1989, the full board was put in place with the following members:

Neil Norton, Councillor, Chairman
Wes Tweedie, Councillor
Cecil Anderson, Farm Member
Bill Resher, Farm Member
Gerald Laarhule, Department of Agriculture

The 1988 Roadside Seeding Program consisted of two miles of road construction and 4 1/2 miles of ditching seeded with 4 acres of a reclaimed gravel site seeded.

The Weed Control Program has consisted of mowing road allowance and subdivisions with spot spraying to control weed patches. The Municipal District has focused its Weed Control Program on cultural control as opposed to a Chemical Weed Control Program.

Predator Control was not a serious problem in the fall of 1988 with only five requests for coyote control being handled by the Fieldman's office. Due to unusually low rainfall levels in the area, requests for flood control on private land were at a minimum.

Rental equipment available to M.D. ratepayers include one portable cattle scale, one portable cattle squeeze, and one calf tipping table.

The 1989 season will be one of continued growth for the Agricultural Service Board and for the farming community of the M.D. of Brasseau. The Agricultural Service Board is committed in its support of the agricultural community.

I wish to thank all of the Councillors and Farmers who serve on the Agricultural Service Board. Their efforts and dedication are greatly appreciated.

Neil Norton
Neil Norton Chairman

RENTAL OF ASB EQUIPMENT

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT VERSUS COUNTY WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE?

Most of the inhabited area of our Municipality was created from parts of the Counties of Portland and Leduc. Brasseau is not a County, it is a Municipal District. There is a difference!

A County has a common administration for municipal and public school matters. It is one corporate entity with elected Councilors eligible to sit on committees and boards dealing with both municipal and school matters. From the perspective of rural residents, you would deal with one Councilor or office for both your municipal (i.e. roads) and school (i.e. school building) services.

A Municipal District on the other hand is a Municipal Corporation dealing with municipal matters. Your Councilor is elected to deal with municipal matters only. A separately elected school trustee is your locally elected representative on all school matters. Your Public School Board is the Twin Rivers School Division No. 65, a separate corporation with separate offices.

The only statutory interconnection between the two is the requirement of the Municipal District to collect the M.D.'s share of school requisitions as determined by the school jurisdiction.

Within our rural municipality, there are also in place two separate school districts, the Drayton Valley R.C.S.S.D. No. 111 and the Drayton Valley Rural R.C.S.S.D. No. 334.

DUST CONTROL PROGRAM

Dust Control in front of residences can be obtained for 1989 by filling out an application form requesting the service. Applications will be available in April and must be submitted prior to June 30, 1989.

AMA inspection van in town today only

Winter's not quite over, so now's the time to find — and fix — the little glitch that could leave you stranded if it hits us hard again.

The Alberta Motor Association will be in Drayton Valley today (March 28) with a 'mobile vehicle inspection van.' A certified mechanic will inspect your vehicle and offer unbiased advice, including a written report, regarding necessary repairs.

Using the latest in computerized engine analysis equipment, the 80-point inspection includes the ignition, carburetor, cylinder balance, emission control system, hoses and belts, tires and wheels and many more checks. The inspection can not address any condition of the vehicle that might be discovered by dismantling components or parts.

The mobile vehicle diagnostic van will be located at Woodland Chrysler in Drayton Valley.

Politicians don't need charity

Alibertans may be less charitable next year after completing individual income tax returns this month.

It doesn't take a chartered accountant to recognize charitable organizations will suffer in years to come since the government no longer allows full tax credit for charitable donations. The new formula permits only 17-per-cent credit on the first $250 or less and a credit of 29 per cent on the balance.

The real rub follows when calculating political contributions for tax credit. In calculating Alberta political contribution tax credits, there is a 75-per-cent credit on the first $150 of total contribution, 50 per cent on the next $875 and 35-1/3 per cent of the amount of total contribution exceeding $825, to a maximum of $750. For federal political contributions, it's 75 per cent on the first $100, 50 per cent on the next $450 and 33-1/3 of the amount exceeding $550 to a maximum of $500.

While donation totals fall for worthy charitable organizations, our tax system encourages contributions to political parties through generous credits. The government must reverse the decision and allow full credit for charitable donations, especially when political parties are set up as the charities of choice — making us forget our benevolence in search of a better tax break.

— Leduc Representative

Canada Post Corporation

Rural Report Card #1

In early 1988, Canada Post Corporation made several commitments to our rural customers. We promised more convenience, more outlets, more business for local merchants and more efficient services.

Canada Post Corporation is delivering on all of these promises and more.

Since our program to improve service began, Canada Post Corporation has:

Increased convenience by more than doubling the average hours of postal service in communities where these services are provided through retail postal outlets operated by local businesses.

Increased the number of postal outlets by opening more than 180 new retail postal outlets in rural communities to complement the services offered by a corporate post office, and 10 new postal outlets in communities where no postal outlet existed.

Increased business for local merchants by converting retail postal services from a corporate outlet to local businesses in more than 240 communities, giving merchants the benefits of increased customer traffic.

Increased the efficiency of our service by allowing local merchants to retail postal products and services. This enables Canada Post Corporation to concentrate on efficient pick-up, processing and delivery of the mail.

AND MORE

Free lockbox service. Customers who depend on lockboxes as their primary means of delivery will no longer have to pay a lockbox service fee.

Local delivery and community postal identity have been maintained in every community where the mail system has been changed.

Meeting customers' delivery needs by installing additional lockboxes in retail postal outlets, building community mail centres in convenient locations and expanding rural route delivery.

*Canada Post is in rural Canada to stay.
That's a promise.*

Shop around, compare dryer prices

The technology that goes into a clothes dryer is pretty unsophisticated — a fan blows heated air through tumbling, wet laundry in a rotating drum.

What little sophistication there is comes into play in determining when the job is finished and the clothes are dry.

CAC testing labs looked at nine dryer models and found price was not a reliable indicator of performance. The least expensive model tested did a better job than one costing nearly twice as much.

Timed drying is usually the only option on an inexpensive model. More costly dryers offer both timed and automatic cycles that stop when the machine senses enough moisture has been removed. The machines do this in one of two ways. Most dryers use a thermostat but some use a moisture sensor. The sensor is supposed to provide a more accurate and consistent result. The tests did not show a noticeable difference between the two types.

Bells and whistles abound in the dryer marketplace. Manufacturers like to boast of the number of cycles or "programs" their machines provide. You will find that not all of them are necessary. Too many extra features can make the control panel confusing.

All of the dryers tested will get your clothes dry. But some will do the job better than others. If you are in the market for a dryer, make sure and shop around. Prices can vary widely — one machine had a spread of nearly $200.

April showers?

Curtie Tedrick, 5, took this saying further than its literal meaning when he found a puddle to splash in last week during the warm temperatures.

Local woman shocked over $1.25 million win

By Belinda Atkinson

Pat Spiker is floating on cloud nine after winning $1.25 million from a 649 ticket March 25.

The Drayton Valley woman says it still seems like a dream even though the money is tucked away in her and husband Ken's bank account.

"It's kind of starting to sink in but I still find it hard to believe," she says.

Pat says she is an occasional lottery player and almost didn't pick up a ticket for the $10-million weekend draw that produced eight millionaires across Canada.

"I don't go up town especially to buy a ticket," she said, adding, "I thought I'd buy one in the drug store but the machine was broken down."

Even though she normally doesn't go out of her way to play the lottery, Pat decided to drive to the North End Red Rooster and buy four or five tickets for that night's draw.

That night, Pat was astonished to learn she was Alberta's newest millionaire, a title she still can't comprehend.

"I checked the ticket and looked again. I just thought I won something, I didn't know what," she said.

After waking Ken with the news, Pat phoned daughter Sherrice who immediately thought something was wrong.

"I thought something bad had happened because she was so excited," Sherrice said.

Pat had never flown on an airplane before, because of a fear of flying, but Ken convinced her they had to get on a plane soon, before she had time to think about it.

When the couple accepted the $1.25 million cheque in Winnipeg she was calm and collected but Pat said she's losing her cool as the win sinks in.

"We can't concentrate on too much of anything right now," she laughed.

As a result, Pat says, "I don't even want to touch it until I grasp the fact."

Pat and Ken say much of the money will go to their brothers, sisters and four daughters and grandchildren.

"We'll share the wealth," they say.

When asked if a tropical vacation may be in their future, Pat says, "No, you'd never get me on another plane."

The two are pretty sure they'll buy a new home but they'll take their time looking instead of making any snap decisions.

Ken isn't even sure if he'll give up his business — Ken Spiker Holdings — or continue to work.

"I'll take a while off and catch up on a few (minor) operations that I've been putting off for a few years," he says.

Jaime Gilbert's wait for treatment finally over

By Belinda Atkinson
Jaime Gilbert will be on a Boeing 727 April 8 with a destination her family has been anxiously awaiting for the past three months.

The 12-year-old girl, her sister Roxanne and mother Jane Robinson will land in San Francisco that day and Jaime will finally begin treatments to correct Arterio Venous Malformation (AVM).

The Grade 6 student was removed from school on doctors' orders last December and has been waiting for this moment ever since.

Months of boredom, under orders not to read or watch

TV, were almost as hard on Jaime as her attack Dec. 7 when an artery burst in her brain, she collapsed in pain

Local News Briefs

Traffic on Highway 620 is a major priority with the RCMP.

Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey informed the MD recently the local detachment had received a number of complaints from the Violet Grove area.

"It's the area we are targeting," Humphrey told the MD council.

The hockey season came to a sudden halt for two Drayton Valley players.

After winning the north division title in the Alberta Junior Hockey League, Greg Pankiewicz and his Sherwood Park Crusader teammates lost out to Fort Saskatchewan in the first round of playoffs.

It was a similar story for defenceman Kevin Hutchinson. After the Red Deer College Kings won the league and playoff titles, they lost out to NAIT in the sudden-death national final.

The housing boom continues in Drayton Valley.

Eight new homes were either just started or about finished in Northwest and Aspenview subdivisions last week.

Residents are cautioned to stay off the Northview Pond due to the amount of water on the surface.

The Drayton Sports Centre will be closed this holiday following a girls hockey development camp.

The town received about 50 nominations for their athletic awards. Those awards which include a town pin and certificate will be handed out during a ceremony at the Legion tomorrow (Wednesday) night.

Local tennis courts will be open for business once the snow disappears.

MLA happy premier will seek byelection

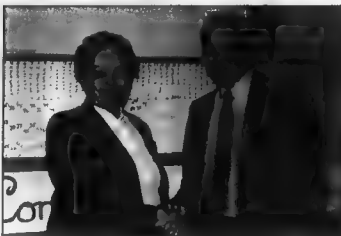

By Belinda Atkinson
Newly elected MLA Tom Thurber said he would have been surprised if Premier Don Getty had not decided to seek a byelection.

"He's a good premier and a good man. I was hoping that would be his decision," he said last Friday.

Thurber guessed Getty will set up cabinet and proceed with legislature before contesting a seat in one of six ridings Tory MLAs have offered. He said the byelection may not be held until fall.

Thurber could not guess where Getty will run but reports last Friday indicated he may choose Stettler where MLA Brian Downey won a second term March 20 with a 2,000 vote lead.

The premier would not

confirm this speculation but an Edmonton Journal report said Downey and Getty met several times before the announcement Friday in Calgary.

Meanwhile, Thurber is busy with preliminary work while waiting to be sworn in as MLA April 8.

The Winfield-area farmer has secured full-time office space in Shirley Cripps' former Drayton Valley headquarters and part-time offices Thursday mornings in Devon and Thursday afternoons in Calmar.

The only question that remains now for the Drayton Valley constituency MLA is whether he has a shot at a cabinet seat.

Cabinet appointments may come soon, however, since April 7 is the last available date for Lt.-Gov. Helen Hunley to swear in new members before attending a six-day conference.

Thurber is not guessing whether he will be one of the 26-member cabinet nor would he say if he received coaching from Cripps who held a cabinet seat as associate minister of agriculture.

"That's something that will be decided by the premier," he said.

Printers taking flak over address change

By Belinda Atkinson

Printing companies are taking flak from businesses over a change of address initiated by Canada Post.

Spokesmen for local printing companies say they have no control over the new box numbers to take effect the end of June but businesses are addressing anger towards them.

"We're the villains right now," says Erich Wagner, co-owner of Drayton Valley Printers.

Wagner says customers complain over the extra costs of creating new plates but in many cases, his company suffers a greater loss.

"We have to throw away existing plates. It actually costs us money," he explains.

Wagner says the company is trying to keep customers happy by absorbing some of the costs but they are still angered by the inconvenience.

"It's just a frustrating experience for everybody involved," he said.

Kathy Metzger, manager of Ink Pot Printing and Stationery, says she is often the first to inform customers of Canada Post's plans and wishes she weren't.

"They've been hollering at me," she says. "We probably won't lose money but people are pretty upset."

Metzger warns customers not to re-order supplies until they know their new box number and this, she hopes, will minimize costs and inconvenience.

Local businesses who would comment on the change had mixed responses.

Faythe Wood, secretary for Flint Engineering and Construction, says the change is going to be costly and inconvenient for her company.

Lorne Pinkoski, owner of Century 21, says he's been given enough time to use up existing stationery so the change shouldn't be too costly.

"If it's a good move on the part of the post office then a person doesn't want to criticize," he says. "If some of the (stationery) isn't used then we can get stickers or a stamp."

Postmaster Le-Roy Robinson says the post office will provide a six-month grace period from the time the change of address takes effect.

"We'll make sure everybody gets mail regardless of a new or old number," he assures.

Robinson has not informed businesses of the change yet but he says word has travelled through town and some companies already receive mail to their new boxes.

He will contact all businesses within the next two weeks, he said, and ensure everyone is prepared.

Jaime and mom model new hair cuts.

Treatment to begin soon

and was rushed to an Edmonton hospital.

Her mother feared Jaime would have a second attack before receiving cyclotron treatments at the University of California, Berkeley, and Stanford University in San Francisco but her chance for full recovery has never been clear.

Jaime is not looking forward to two painful CAT scan tests and angiogram necessary to prepare for treatment, nor did she enjoy having her hair cut to one inch on neurologists' orders, but Roxanne and Jane helped cushion the blow.

"We all got our hair cut," Jane said, referring to her and Roxanne. "I got my hair cut about the same length so she wouldn't feel so bad."

Jane is rushing around making last-minute arrangements and trying to secure hotel rooms while the three travel two hours from one clinic to the other.

Jane is still unsure what coverage Alberta Health Care will provide on U.S. medical bills and she believes the fact that Jaime will be an outpatient could force great expense on the family.

Community efforts and private donations over the last three months have provided $20,099 towards expenses and Jane says people's generosity has been unbelievable.

Donations came from as far away as Edmonton when radio announcer and Sun columnist Eddie Keen brought the girl's plight to the city's attention.

Jaime's grandmother is now making a quilt and will embroider the names of everyone who has donated to the cause.

As for Jaime's recovery, only time will tell.

New MD of Brazeau has eased financial strain for town

It wasn't too many years ago that talk surfaced about a two-price system for the swimming pool and library.

This was to cover incurring costs for residents from the county of Parkland who were using the two facilities.

Getting money out of the county of Leduc was another problem the town was wrestling with. They found it to be an impossible task.

Fortunately, those problems are in the past.

At a recent MD meeting, bylaws were passed authorizing the payment of $412,435 toward fire protection; $230,449 for their portion of the cost-sharing toward the new library and $450,000 toward toward the capital cost of the sports centre.

Contributions toward fire protection and the library will be financed over a 10-year period.

Besides the $1,092,884 contribution toward the three projects, the MD will also contribute toward the cost-sharing operation of the sports centre and in the indoor Park Valley swimming pool.

Add to that another $113,700 toward the operation of the sanitary landfill.

It's obvious from all this that the establishment of the MD last July, has eased a lot of financial worries for the town.

It's also obvious that the two have a good working relationship, as they put the finishing touches to a new ambulance authority and wrap up an agreement with the Yellowhead Regional Library.

Public hears very little Town councillor appointed chairman — Why?

I don't know if you've noticed or even cared for that matter, that a member of town council chairs the new Pelican steering committee, the tourist action committee, the recreation board, municipal planning and the transportation committee.

And, in all these situations, the public hears very little of what these committees are doing.

Maybe that's just the way town council wants it.

Two members of council, Tom McGee and Alex Salfi expressed their dissatisfaction recently when fellow Councillor Howard Olsen was appointed to the committee and named chairman all in the same breath.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

McGee, who is also chairman of the recreation board, said the appointment indicated to him that the town was running things.

"We don't want to control this committee," Salfi added.

The reasoning behind this move is apparently so council can have better communications with the various committees.

How does that make the many volunteers who give of their own time and energy to sit on committees?

One board we seldom hear from anymore since council appointed one of their own councillors as chairman is the recreation board.

When people like John Hutchinson and Chris Kelly were chairmen, the community was aware of the issue the recreation board was discussing.

Kindergarten decision praised by Drayton Valley citizen

Dear Editor,

After reading the article and letters to the editor in the March 28 issue of The Western Review, we were sorry to see the hurt feelings being expressed by some of the parents of the Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten.

We can't understand why they feel the decision made by the Twin Rivers school division was a hasty one. The decision was a viable one with much discussion by the school division. Was the community kindergarten not allowed to make a presentation to the board prior to the March 20 meeting where they made the three-year takeover proposal?

Didn't that give the school division more than a week to discuss this issue, after the concerns of the community kindergarten were heard?

Our group also was given time to present our documentation and suggestions to Dr. Bevan and we were dealt with the same way as the community kindergarten—fairly.

I agree the meeting should have been opened to the floor so we could have the opportunity to respond to the comments made by Sue Reid as we could have made just as many valid points in our group's favor. But had that been done would we still not be there arguing the pros and cons to this issue?

The projected kindergarten enrolment for the coming school term is 225 children. There are enough children to justify public, private and Catholic kindergartens. The issue here is being distorted. It is not the intent of us or the Twin Rivers school division to close down the community kindergarten, but rather give parents the choice and provide busing, as many children were denied kindergarten due to lack of transportation.

Public and private kindergarten programs co-exist in other centres, why can't they in Drayton Valley? Kathy Lemishka

Dutch deserves medal, says writer

Dear Editor,

This is in response to the 'dangerous bus' story in the March 28 issue.

Having been a school bus driver for a few years, my experience in relation to problems of discipline was this: The children causing the most upset on the bus were the ones with the most vocal parents.

I can imagine the embarrassment a child would suffer if his/her mother got on the bus to protect him/her from their peers. Thousands of kids, in fact generations of our Drayton Valley and area children, have over the years been transported safely to and from school, on day trips and to sporting events on Dutch's bus where they were all treated with the same humorous teasing and cajoling and kindness.

A man of such experience with kids of all ages has by now seen and heard it all. You, Dutch, deserve a medal. And how about a big 'thank you' to all the drivers in our county for a job well done.

RCMP band promises arresting musical tunes

Time is running out to buy tickets for the RCMP concert band's April 6 performance at Frank Maddock high school.

The world-renowned 32-piece band provides a masterful rendition of everything from film scores and old classics to rock 'n' roll, according to staff Sgt. Humphrey.

The musicians — all rank-holding members of the RCMP — travel extensively and have entertained at everything from Canadian Embassy functions to Expo '88 in Brisbane, Australia.

Now, on an extensive Canadian tour, they plan to entertain Drayton Valley and raise funds for the co-sponsoring Kinsmen Club.

According to Humphrey, profits will go to the club and be put back into local charities as part of the band's mission of good will and message of authority figures as community helpers.

The band also promises to play at least one favorite tune for every person in attendance.

Seemingly a big promise to keep, residents are encouraged to buy tickets and judge for themselves if the band can deliver the musical goods.

Tickets are available at Home Hardware, Value Drug Mart, Venture Realty and the local RCMP detachment.

13 nurses to leave

Hospitals in Calgary and Edmonton are suffering nursing shortages and although the Drayton Valley and District Health Complex does not have a major shortage there are areas which need more staffing.

The acute care department is expecting 13 nurses to be leaving shortly. Eight will be taking maternity leave and five others will be retiring, relocating or leaving for other reasons, Eleanor Spittler, nursing co-ordinator of acute care said.

Extended care is short one full-time nurse, Spittler said. Spittler says she is not yet worried and expects the hospital to be back to the normal staffing numbers by the fall.

Tax remission request denied

The MD has turned down a tax remission request from Birchwood Village Greens at Lindale.

Birchwood had asked for a tax remission on its new clubhouse and unsold lots in phase one for a period of three years.

According to the MD, the current assessment is $130,700, reflecting the clubhouse only being partially complete.

Figures were not supplied by the MD as to the exact amount of the tax request.

Parents submit petition

A petition with 48 signatures has been presented to superintendent of the school district, Dr. George Bevan, requesting an informal open meeting regarding the kindergarten issue.

The petition was the result of a decision made by the board in a special meeting, to implement public kindergarten in Eldorado school. Parents were annoyed with the board that they did not have more input into the decision-making, said Lynn Zingle, president of the Community Kindergarten.

Some parents are against the public kindergarten going through as early as this September because they feel more planning should be done. There are many concerns of space in Eldorado, the possibility that bussing the students will disintegrate the half-day program, and many other concerns, Susan Ried brought forward to the board at a special meeting.

Bevan said he could not comment in depth on the issue regarding the petition as there were still members of the board who had not returned from their spring break.

Tax open house May 17-18

Town council hopes to make your assessment and tax notice easier to understand this year.

The first of three full-page features explaining assessment is included in this week's issue. Others will follow in the April 11 and 25 issues.

If you have any questions about assessment and how it will affect your taxes, circle April 26 on your calendar. The town has scheduled an open house starting at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room at the town office.

Officials will be on hand to handle people's questions.

Tax notices are scheduled to come out by the end of April.

To assist with any further problems, another open house has been planned for May 17-18.

The reason behind the town's high profile information campaign is based on the first general assessment in Drayton Valley in eight years.

There may be some changes in the assessment and taxes this year cautions Manny Deol, town manager.

But, at the same time, Deol feels if people read the information being supplied and attend the open houses they will understand the process better.

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

Grant MacDonald is a long way from his Port Hood career as a phys. ed. teacher but the RCMP officer says his new career has many similarities.

The 27-year-old officer says working with the public and school lectures bring to mind the old days in Cape Breton when he taught kindergarten to Grade 12.

His love of sports still remains despite the career change two-and-a-half years ago. He says hockey, slow-pitch, and waterskiing are his favorite hobbies.

Wife Bev and daughter Amber, 6, are also athletic and always look forward to annual waterskiing trips back east.

MacDonald is brave too, considering he's quite vocal in his love for the Calgary Flames.

Town plans numerous events for Municipal Week

This is a busy week in Drayton Valley.

As part of a Municipal Week promotion, town council has planned a number of events they hope the residents will get involved in.

Tomorrow (Wednesday) the town will be presenting the athletic achievement awards to outstanding athletes and teams. The ceremonies will be held at the Legion between 7:30 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Members of town council will be in attendance.

The regular town council meeting will be held Thursday, starting at 8:30 a.m. in the new council chambers.

On Friday, tours of the water treatment plant have been organized for local schools.

In conjunction with the week's activities, Mayor Bob Mayhew has put up $200 for an essay and poster competition open to school students.

Panic over Via Rail unnecessary — Hoff

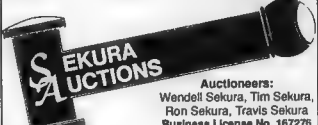

There's no need to get upset over the future of Via Rail. That's the word from David Hoff, special assistant representative for Joe Clark's Yellowhead constituency.

Speaking from Ottawa, Hoff says the national media has got everyone worked up pending some budget cuts.

"There's no grounds for all the concern," Hoff told The Western Review.

Most of Hoff's calls were coming from Jasper, where Via Rail is a big part of their tourist trade.

"It's all based on speculation," Hoff added.

Wardin Well claims title

Wardin Well defeated Paul Band 7-1 to claim the 'B' title at a recent novice hockey tourney in Devon.

The Drayton Valley crew opened the tourney with a 3-2 win over the Devon T-Birds. Michael Miles was selected as Wardin's most valuable player (MVP) in that win.

They followed that up with a 7-3 win over the Devon Outlaws with David Mulyk getting the MVP award.

Their only loss was a 5-3 decision to the Devon Demons with the MVP going to Josh Getzinger.

Ryan Wilkes was presented with the MVP award in the championship win against Paul Band.

Gym season ending

By Colleen Bryant

The Drayton Valley gymnastics club is near the end of another season. All in all it has been a fairly quiet session with good response from parents, students and coaches.

The new all boys levels I and II classes had very good response and we plan to continue these classes in the fall.

The advanced classes also had good response with their reintroduction and we are encouraging all gymnasts with ambitions of training for and competing in competitions, to join these classes. The club had been invited to a couple out-of-town meets but unfortunately, we were unable to attend. But we hope to make up for this by hosting a fun meet competition Saturday, April 29 in the H.W. Pickup gym, starting at 11 a.m.

Our year-end display will be held Sunday, April 16 from 1 to 4 p.m. in the H.W. Pickup gym. There will be coach, student and guest demonstrations and all gymnasts participating in a grand finale of 'pyramids.'

There will also be a dress rehearsal for the display April 15 from 1 to 4 p.m. Admission to the display and fun meet are free with donations being accepted to go towards equipment and rental fees in the new sport complex, to which we will be moving in about July or August.

The club held a dance class April 2, instructed by Alvina Sperling, for any students and coach interested in coordinating dance moves into their gymnastics routines. We may be having another of these dance classes April 8 or 9 if interest is shown.

Our annual general meeting will be held Thursday, April 27 at 7 p.m. in the gymnastics building behind H.W. Pickup. Parents, guests and coaches are invited to attend to express any concerns or ideas.

We still require a vice-president and director on the executive. Requests will be made to fill these volunteer positions that take up a minimal amount of time. We encourage parents to get involved as help is definitely needed.

As this year comes to a close we would like to thank our coaches: Corinne Joneson, Jackie Kuryle, Janaisa Hutzal, Sherry Tara and Dawn Wintringham; Maureen Johnson, Kerri Meston, Marla Johnson and Colleen Bryant. Our executive: Joanne Karach, Susan Merrifield, Maureen Johnson, Sherry Wintringham and Colleen Bryant. And thanks to parents, students and volunteers for making this year enjoyable and giving their continuous support to the gymnastics club.

Slow-pitch time nearing

Weather permitting the local slow-pitch season will start May 1.

Teams wishing to participate in the May/June schedule have until April 15 to pay their $100 deposit. No teams will be allowed after that date.

Fees can be paid to Mitchell at Last Chance Trucking or Carry at Wardin Well.

Forty-six teams played during these two months last year and a member of this year's executive expects at least that many teams this year. There were 44 teams represented at a recent meeting.

Super successful season ends for local ski hill

The ski hill closed last Tuesday, bringing to an end one of their most successful seasons in years.

They were open 56 days.

Financially, the club will have the funds to carry their interest payments through the summer on a loan they took out two years ago to assist with the purchase of snow-making equipment. The principal on that loan is made during the club's busy months, namely December, January, February and March.

The close of the skiing season is just a week old and the executive has already been busy making plans for next year.

President Dale Rendflesh says the club is looking at adding more lights, will make improvements to the rope tow, introduce a Nancy Greene learn to ski program and hope to erect signs along Highway 22 north informing people of the local ski conditions.

Rendflesh says the lower rates ($2 for lift tickets) the club introduced near the end of the season wasn't all that successful.

But, he was quick to point out, the promotional idea didn't meet with any negative comments from the members.

It may be tried again next year.

Rock 'n' roll

Lee Hupka was rockin' and rollin' and divin' and twistin' and turnin' and weeblin' and wobblin' — well, you get the picture — last week during spring break. He and friend Ryan Tayler, not shown, put on quite a show for the lucky Western Review reporter. Are there more boarders out there like you? If so, maybe someone could organize a full-scale competition so this local talent doesn't go to waste.

Harden wins match

Amateur boxers donned their gloves last Sunday at the Rec Plex and fought in a boxing card hosted by the Derrick Boxing Club.

The card featured three non-competition bouts for the younger boys aged nine and under, and eight competition bouts for boys aged 10 and over.

Shelby Harden, 25, from the Derrick Club, was the only local to win in a competition bout. Harden won by unanimous decision in the 11th bout.

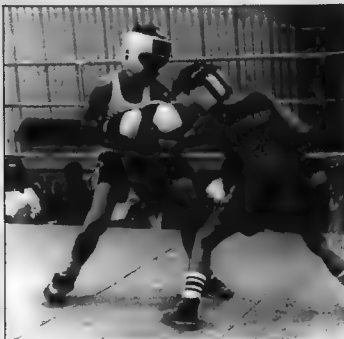

The card attracted boxers from Red Deer, Edmonton, Grande Prairie and Fort MacMurray, as well as from Spokane, Washington.

"I'm excited, I'm proud of myself," said James Rediron, 9, before his non-competition fight. Rediron said he has been training for one year.

"There is a doctor at ring-side," said Derrick Club coach, Lawrence Duperron. "We don't want anybody to get hurt."

Recording secretary Bev Duperron said there were no injuries. "It went really well. We were really pleased."

The club had a banquet at the Black Gold Inn following the boxing card.

Edwin Erickson proudly displays his $8,000 accordion.

Career sounding sweet for resident

By Susan Mosicki

A visit to Sweden last year was the beginning of an exciting new career for Buck Lake area resident Edwin Erickson.

Erickson spent six months in Scandinavia (Sweden and Norway) playing accordion at festivals for as many as 11,000 people.

"I didn't think I was in the league to do it," he says. "Most people won't believe I'm third generation Swedish."

Erickson impressed the crowds so much with his talent that he was persuaded to make a recording of his music.

He made the recording in Sweden, and is having the cassettes done in Canada.

The cassette cover picture was taken by local photographer Marvin Long. It features Erickson playing his accordion in a log cabin with a definite western Canadian flavor.

"Music has been my life," says Erickson. He remembers, as a teenager, spending over six hours a day practicing the accordion.

"They (his friends) thought I was a nut."

He plays in the style of an old master, Carl Jularbos, who Erickson has never met but affectionately refers to as "the old gentleman."

Erickson's talent was quickly noticed and was thought to be of such quality that he was given one of only two copies of Jularbo's accordion. It is valued at approximately $8,000.

His cassettes will be marketed in Scandinavia. Erickson says there is not a real market for his style of accordion music in Canada.

Although he has made only 1,000 cassettes to date, he says, "I don't think I'm being unrealistic thinking I can sell 10,000 of these things (tapes)."

He has not restricted himself solely to this style of accordion music. Erickson also plays and sings in a country duo called Willow Creek.

He also owned a music store in Rocky Mountain House and taught music (mostly guitar).

Erickson plans to return to Sweden soon to play at another festival and sell his cassettes.

He made so many friends last time he visited that he has invited 25 Swedish and Norwegian musicians to come to Canada to visit him.

"I hope to be as good to them as they were to me."

The year 2020 — what will it bring?

By Belinda Atkinson
Town council will not put to answer a big question at the end of April: what will Drayton Valley need in the year 2020?

The question will be asked by every municipal government in the province as part of Vision 2020, a project initiated by Alberta Municipal Affairs to prepare for communities' future needs.

According to Manny Deol, town manager, the project is designed to keep rural communities viable at a time when numerous trends are forcing rapid changes on the way people live and work in rural centres.

"In 12 years there will be as many changes as there have been in the last 80 years," Deol reasons.

The program gives insights into current economic, demographic and social constraints that may cause a rural community's decline if not addressed in advance.

Data is presented, for instance, showing rural populations are aging and shrinking, forcing a strain on municipal governments' budgets.

Despite the fact that elderly people contribute less to municipal taxes because of lower incomes, they require more services such as medical assistance.

These services become more costly, according to data, because women have returned to work and no longer have time to volunteer at hospitals and seniors' homes.

Rural economies receive a further blow from the sad state of the family farm and limited life span of gas and oil.

Alberta Municipal Affairs strongly suggests seeking industrial growth to diversify the province's financial dependence.

The report also warns that programs be designed to alleviate ecological dangers created by industry.

The greenhouse effect will force farmers to seek irrigation, de-forestation will affect soil and tourism and acid rain could cause further damage to crops.

With these constraints and trends in mind, town council will attempt to develop social programs, community services and attract industry that can make Drayton Valley strong.

Deol admits it's a difficult job and says, "we can't really predict the future."

But he says councillors are currently gathering their own ideas privately and will tackle the job at the end of April.

Nursery owners expect sales to skyrocket

By Belinda Atkinson
Nursery owners are busy preparing bedding plants and flowers in anticipation of a flood of customers over the May 20 long weekend.

According to Lorraine McClean, co-owner of Pembina River Nurseries, sales skyrocket during the Victoria Day weekend when people traditionally plant gardens, trees and bedding plants.

"We've been busy for about a month," says co-owner Ed McClean. "We don't wait for spring."

Though starting a vegetable garden is always a popular way to spend the holiday, the McCleans are concentrating their efforts on bedding plants and fruit trees.

"We don't sell seeds because everyone in town sells seeds," Ed says.

When they began the business 13 years ago, they said few people decorated lawns with ornamental plants but the practice is now becoming quite popular in town.

"When we first started, people didn't know much about bedding plants," said Lorraine. "They're getting much better. People plan their (lawns) now."

Snap dragons, petunias, marigolds, geraniums and alyssums are now best sellers and Lorraine can't resist taking the occasional drive into town just to see the colorful landscapes.

Lee Bruner, co-owner of Pembina Valley Landscape, agrees people have found a new interest in decorative plants, fruit trees and flowers.

He says people were cautious when he started the business four years ago and only wanted spruce trees.

"Last year everyone wanted apple trees. I couldn't get enough of them," he said.

For first-time buyers who may have hesitated because of the area's short growing season, nursery owners believe this summer will be a great year.

Lorraine says the above-average snowfall experienced over the winter months will provide more than enough moisture for the soil.

Lee is a little more skeptical. He says bad conditions in June could take all the moisture out of the soil but the signs so far have been positive.

"There hasn't been too much winterkill," he says, referring to tree branches that dry out in warm winters and die, sometimes killing the whole tree.

"I think it will be a good year."

Ed McClean prepares bedding plants for busy season.

Commuters enjoy country living — they'll drive miles

By Susan Mosicki
Why would anyone want to drive five to 30 plus miles daily one way to work rather than living in town?

"It's quiet, it's private, and I can do what I want," says Alex Blais, owner of Home Hardware.

Blais lives five miles outside of town on an acreage. He says the disadvantage is that his teenage children have to drive quite a bit and he is afraid of accidents.

Ella Dewald, senior teller at the Bank of Montreal, says she drives 18 miles twice daily.

"I'm trying to sell my place right now and move closer," she says. "I'd like to do something other than just work."

Dewald says that by the time she drives home after work, she doesn't feel like turning around and coming back to town. She would like to get involved in more activities in town.

"My biggest reason (for living out of town) is a large dog," says Keith Ross, inside salesman for Commercial Bearing.

Ross drives 12 miles one way to work every day. "With me being on call (24 hours), it means a lot of driving." He is on call one out of every three weeks.

"The neighbors are good because they're far enough away," he says. He's quick to add, "Not that they're not nice people, it's just the privacy is nice."

John and Valerie Mulligan, owners of Mulligan Insurance, live about 10 miles out of town, but will be moving in to town before August.

"The biggest reason is that my children are getting involved in sports and activities," says John. He says he and his wife make as many as four trips into town every day.

"I'll be easier getting to work, and a little better for the kids; if they want to go to the pool, they can."

"I much prefer the country atmosphere," says Rick Guard, a carpenter for Gest Construction who drives about 32 miles one way to work daily. "I have 160 acres for my backyard."

Guard says some of the disadvantages include the cost of gas, and "the government won't let a working man deduct his expenses for driving to work."

He says he spends about $300 each month on gasoline.

When asked if he would ever move into town, he replied, "Never! I'll die on my farm."

$33,000 given to sports

The Alberta Sport Council has provided $33,000 in funding to 19 amateur groups in Zone 5.

The funding will be used for a variety of innovative ways to assist in sport development.

The Grand Trunk track and field club in Evansburg will receive $300 to help support the development of a year-round training program.

They are the only group in this area to get any of the $33,000.

The biggest grant for $6,000 will be going to the St. Albert judo club to help expand their training opportunities for athletes with the purchase of extra mats.

Spring break-up slows down oil, logging industries annually

For up to four weeks every spring, heavy hauling is slowed down or brought to a complete halt because of road bans or load reductions, as a result of spring break-up.

"Drilling and rig movement comes to a halt," said Art Frey, district foreman for Amoco Petroleum.

Good year predicted for beef producers

Beef producers can continue to be optimistic about prices this-year if the predictions made by analysts at Accent '89 hold true.

Both supply and demand point to a promising outlook for cattle prices in 1989 says Charles Levitt, first vice president and senior livestock analyst with Shearson Lehman Hutton in Chicago.

Levitt bases his one-to-two-dollar-per-hundredweight increase in fed steer prices on a three-per-cent decline in U.S. beef production plus stable, to increasing, retail demand for beef in the U.S.

A Royal Bank official says how much Canadian producers benefit from the improved market will depend on Canada/U.S. exchange rates. The steady devaluation of the Canadian dollar in the 10 years between 1976 and 1986 resulted in increased returns for Canadian cattle producers says Bill Gray, manager of product development with the bank's agricultural services department.

"The recent appreciation of the Canadian dollar eroded the price gain in the cattle market which had occurred due to devaluation of our dollar. Future prices will depend on whether the dollar moves up or down against its U.S. counterpart," says Gray.

"Road bans are the biggest factor in spring break-up."

Frey said break-up affects construction and delivery of material.

"It basically means we finish hauling logs," said Bob Olson, Pelican Mills plant manager. "With load reductions it doesn't pay to haul logs."

"We've adapted reasonably well to it (spring break-up)," said Olson. "Most of the trucking of finished product is done on the highway, anyway."

Lorne Woyanarowich, staff inspector at Energy Resources Conservation Board, said there is a general slow-down in the oil and logging industries during break-up.

"Counties and municipalities put on road bans," said Woyanarowich. Road bans restrict load weights by at least 25 per cent.

"It's a little bit slower (during break-up)," said Dennis Riske, general manager of Den-co Oilfield Service Ltd.

He said Den-co is busy sand-blasting and painting during break-up.

"We get down to about 50 per cent of the work we normally do," said Lorne Fleischhacker, owner of Lorne's Well Servicing.

"We make a point of hauling it (equipment) in before spring break-up," he said. Fleischhacker said they keep it in a rig yard two miles west of town.

He said they take advantage of break-up and repair any equipment that needs repairing.

the word "radical" referred to anything or anyone that originated change. Long-haired hippie-types screaming their lungs out at protest rallies, for example.

Unless you've spent the eighties on the planet Xenon, you know that today, "rad" has taken on a totally new meaning. But slang is fleeting. Our children's children are hardly likely to understand the jaunty lingo we're currently so fond of. No doubt, too, in the near future we will be too ashamed to regale them with our favourites.

Witness the demise of the rich and colourful language of the sixties. With the exception of those few lost peaceniks still inhabiting communes, few Baby Boomers will ever be caught dead uttering yesterday's rad bon mots over brunch. "Groovy, far out, right on, like wow, outrageous, totally cosmic, and neat-o." And how about, "I can dig it, I'm hip, what's your hang up, get your head in the right space, do your own thing, it really turns me on and it's my bag."

There were countless others. If you've ever watched re-runs of Laugh-In, you know of what we speak: "You bet your sweet bippy, here come de judge, sock it to me, whatever turns you on, oh."

So, the times they are always a changing. How long has it been since someone looked at you earnestly and said, "don't jive with me, baby," or "you're a mean dude"?

Say what, Gee whiz, you'd have to be a real square. I mean nerd, to say stuff like that now.

Let us praise the dynamic, transitory nature of a language that dismisses our blunders so quickly, and preserves the best for the next generations.

Scours may create problem this year for cattle producers

By Sue Konyon

There has been 20 per cent more snow this season than last year and Alberta Agriculture sees the snow having both beneficial and adverse effects on farming.

Gerald Laarhuis, district agriculturalist says the late spring due has created problems for calves.

"What happens is that usually by this time the cows and calves have been put onto fresh ground and in larger areas. Because of the amount of snow still remaining they are confined to small quarters which causes disease," Laarhuis said.

The most common cause of death in calves during this time is scours, or known technically as E-coli bacteria.

"If you get scours among the calves expect a five to 10 per cent above-normal death rate," Laarhuis says.

There are measures farmers can take to prevent a herd from contacting scours. A vaccine is available that can be given to cows which is passed onto the calves through nursing.

"The vaccine is not used widely but I think after this season farmers may use it more next year," he says.

If a herd is infected, Laarhuis said antibiotics can be used and in bad cases, electrolytes can be used along with keeping stress to a minimum.

As for crops, Laarhuis sees only good things coming this season due to the snow.

"It is going to make for good spring growing season," he said.

Although the snow will keep the ground moist, Laarhuis says the spring rains are still extremely important for a good season.

"The spring rains are still very important, but we are not worried. If there had been a small amount of snow as was the case last year then we would be concerned," he said.

Peter Dzikowski, agricultural weather resource specialist says last year was unusual. This year, although we have had 20 per cent more precipitation in this area, the snowfall is normal.

Area fire hazard low

The substantial winter snowfall has put a damper on the local forest fire situation.

According to Dan Walton, a ranger at the Lodgepole ranger station, all's quiet on the local scene.

The first fire the Lodgepole station handled last year was on April 12.

"The spring hazard will be a lot later this year," Walton says.

The snow cover, which was evident throughout the area last week, could disappear as early as April 15 depending on the weather.

Despite the late spring, fire permits were available as of April 1.

At this time last year, 54 forest fires had already been reported in Alberta. Firefighters were battling more than 12 blazes alone in the county of Parkland.

Mobile patrols planned for area

Motor Transport is planning a number of mobile patrols in the Drayton Valley area.

That was the message three representatives of Motor Transport relayed to the MD at a recent meeting.

Don Lowe, manager; Wayne Larson, district supervisor and Bob Houston, transport engineer discussed a variety of topics including road bans and the mobile patrols.

'I want to put a name to him; I want him caught'

For the purpose of this article, the victim's name has been changed. We will refer to her as Jennifer.

By Sue Kenyon

One year ago we were all shaken with the news that one of our young people was abducted at gun-point. The news changed the way local residents lived. Children were watched more carefully while playing outside and houses were bolted up and car doors locked for the fear the gunman was still in the area.

For the 20-year-old local woman life has changed. She admits she still will not go anywhere alone. If she is expected at a friend's house, they watch for her and her dad always watches her out the window while she walks from the house to the car.

On Jan. 19, 1988 at 9 p.m. Jennifer walked from Penney's Drug Mart in the Dodson Plaza to her parked car in the parking lot. She was getting off work and planned to head home. The gunman waiting in the backseat however, changed those plans.

"As I was driving out of the parking lot I heard a noise in the back seat. I thought, 'what is that,' and turned my head and saw him sitting there," Jennifer says.

The man took hold of Jennifer's hair and holding a gun to her head, gave her directions to an access road which runs alongside the North Saskatchewan River.

At first the entire episode did not seem real to her.

"I really wasn't that upset because it was like it wasn't really happening. I just remember I talked the whole time. He didn't say much. He seemed really confused, like as though I wasn't acting the way he expected me to act," she says.

The unknown man sexually assaulted her, told her to get out of the car at the North Saskatchewan River, and leaving her there, took her home.

"I made it to the road and hitchhiked back to town. I wasn't standing on the side of the road for more than two minutes before a truck came along."

Once back in town the police were contacted and Jennifer was taken to the police station.

"They had roadblocks set up

Police discovered Jennifer's car in the Westwind's parking lot, at approximately 10:30 p.m., within moments of the report. From there the gunman's tracks disappear.

"I really can't believe that nobody saw him getting out of my car. That is such a busy parking lot. People are always coming and going. I just wish that if anyone saw anything that they would come forward. They would be saving someone else who might not be as lucky as I was," she said in an interview.

These days Jennifer spends a lot of her spare time reading books on sexual assault.

"I've learned that you can not feel the 'wrong' emotion and most of all, that if you are still around to talk about it that you did the right thing," she says.

Jennifer says that reading about it makes her understand it better.

"Everyone's been great"

After it happened she experienced a lot of different feelings.

"Some days I couldn't have enough people around me and the next day I didn't want to see anyone, or have anyone touch me."

She says everyone was just great to her though. "My friends were just super and I basically tried to just go back to work and make my life normal again."

Out of all the problems she has experienced she says the strongest thought that has remained with her is to help other people who may have experienced the same kind of thing, or being there for someone who might in the future.

Jennifer plans to take part in the Lady Beware program run by the RCMP and she is also looking into starting up her own seminar.

"One night have someone teaching self defence, another night have Const. Fedor speak on how to protect yourself and maybe on a third night I could be there to answer any questions people might have," she says.

"If I can save one girl's life

Const. Greg Fedor "...very optimistic case will be solved..."

worth it," Jennifer said. Const. Greg Fedor has been with the case from the start. He was at the RCMP detachment when she came down Jan. 19 of last year and he still keeps in constant contact with her.

More than 100 interviews

The police interviewed well over 100 people in Drayton Valley alone attempting to find the gunman. Fedor says right now they are working on three people in relation to the crime but the amount of suspects constantly fluctuates.

"With the ones you cross off the list, another one shows up," he says.

Although it has been over a year and over 100 interviews, investigators remain positive.

"I am very optimistic this case could still be solved. I personally want to follow through with this case and I want it solved," Fedor says. This is one of the more complex cases Fedor has ever worked on.

"It has also really opened my eyes. I didn't think this would happen in a town of this size," he admitted.

Fedor says that every day he is doing something that revolves around the case.

"I would guess that at least once a day her file is opened and looked at," he says.

The most satisfaction Jennifer says she would get, if the gunman is caught, is simply knowing finally who it is.

"I want to put a name to him; I just want to know who it is," she says.

Jennifer also believes the police will be successful. "The police have been just great and I do believe that they will find him but somehow I just can't get excited about it anymore."

She says she has been excited too often and been disappointed, so although she does think they will catch him, she doesn't let herself get too excited when she hears they are questioning a suspect.

Anyone who might have any possible information, or saw anything on the night of Jan. 19, 1988 should get in touch with Const. Greg Fedor at the local RCMP 542-4456 or call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-922-8477.

The suspect is described as white male, 5-foot-6 to 5-foot-7 with a slight build and a low, soft voice.

The victim's car was a red, 1980 Ford Mustang with black stripes.

RCMP hosting first annual spring ball

The birds are singing, the sun is shining and the local RCMP detachment can't pass up the opportunity to celebrate spring.

So rather than hosting an annual Christmas get-together, they have organized a spring ball to take place May 27 at the Elks Hall.

According to Sgt. Humphrey, Spiral, a highly recommended four-piece band, will provide entertainment for the first of what will be an annual spring event.

The semi-formal event will also feature a buffet dinner, midnight supper and complimentary crested wine glasses.

"There is a limit of 250 people or 125 couples," Humphrey warns, adding some tickets have already been sold.

He said anyone interested should purchase their tickets at the RCMP detachment soon before they run out.

MD supports Bay rail line

The MD has decided to support the Port Churchill development board in their quest to ensure continuity and upgrading of the CNR line to Churchill and Hudson Bay.

According to a letter from the development board, the rail line and services to the Bay must be well maintained and upgraded to promote and retain objectiveness of northern development, national defense and national sovereignty.

Currently, the line is in danger of being closed to suspend major maintenance requirements and services.

So far, the federal government has been silent either intentionally or because of other priorities. This silence is counter productive not only to the development of the route and services but to its very existence according to the Churchill development board.

MD adopts dust policy

The municipal district has adopted a new dust policy.

A copy of this policy is available at the MD office.

Six areas to receive the service at no charge include schools; hamlet main streets; any road, thereof, designated by council; school bus pick-up sites where warranted; individuals with medical problems and community centres.

All other applicants may receive dust control on a shared cost basis. The applicant will be responsible for the $100 fee which is approximately one-third of the dust control treatment.

Practical tips for spring cleaning

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

Whether you are a spotless housekeeper or a "random" housekeeper, there are a number of cleaning projects that must be done around the house.

The vast array of cleaning products available on the market makes selection very complicated. Products have so many different claims, you can almost get the impression you should have a different product for each cleaning task.

Following are a few practical suggestions for a your spring housecleaning.

Carpets and rugs

Rugs stay bright longer when the vacuum cleaner is adjusted to the height of the carpet pile and when the vacuum is pushed slowly several times over one area to remove deep-down dirt.

Spots and spills should be removed within a few hours. Warm water and detergent is the best cleaning agent. Never soak a rug; use a minimum of suds and many clean cloths.

Draperies

To dust draperies tumble in an automatic dryer on "no heat" setting. Remove and hang immediately. Vacuum the pleated section of draperies from time to time so dust does not become imbedded in fibres. Washable draperies can be washed in an automatic machine using the correct water temperature for the fabric and color. Do not overload the washer and press as required.

Resilient floors

The easiest way of cleaning most resilient flooring is to wash with detergent and warm water. Apply wax for extra shine. Damp sponge mop between washings. Heal marks and black metal marks usually come off with a well-moistened soap-filled scouring pad.

For very stubborn stains, use oxalic acid (salts of lemon), rubber gloves and non-metal containers. Extreme caution is necessary.

From April 1st to about April 9th we will be undergoing expansion and renovation. We will be adding another 1,000 square feet of space adjacent to us to the south. This will allow us to widen the aisles, expand the checkout area to speed up service, and to expand our product lines.

We will be open our regular hours (9 a.m. to 9 p.m. - 7 days a week) during the renovation. We will try to maintain the service level as best we can, but there will be some disruption due to movement of shelving and merchandise from one location in the store to another.

We would like to apologize for any inconvenience this may cause our valued customers, but it will allow us to serve you better in the future.

Wheat price depends on weather

The world wheat price outlook is highly volatile and extremely weather sensitive. Canada Wheat Board (CWB) official told the annual Alberta farm market outlook conference.

Bob Roehle, director of market analysis, says the current tight supplies of wheat have meant improved prices. Prices for the next crop year will depend on this year's weather.

Canadian producers are expected to plant more wheat to compensate for last year's losses due to drought and also in response to current buoyant prices. Roehle says widespread spring rains are critical for this year's crop.

Wheat output in the five major exporting countries fell to its lowest level in nine years, says Roehle, causing dramatic rises in grain prices. The European Community is the only major exporter expected to export more wheat in 1988-89 than the previous year, cashing in on poor weather conditions in other parts of the globe.

In 1988-89, for the second consecutive year, world wheat consumption is expected to exceed production and further reduce world stocks to critically low levels. Even with favorable weather around the world, stocks probably can't be rebuilt for two or three years says Roehle.

Moisture levels expected to be adequate

Near-normal winter snowfall across the Prairies has resulted in a generally optimistic spring soil moisture outlook, according to Environment Canada's Winnipeg and Regina climate centres.

As a result of the very dry conditions experienced last fall, some concern remains about moisture levels for perennial forages and pasture lands.

Assuming normal spring weather, mid-May soil moisture levels for annual crops are projected to be adequate to moist across the agricultural areas of Manitoba and Alberta and dry to adequate in Saskatchewan.

The outlook for May 1 for perennial forage and pasture lands is for generally dry soil moisture levels except for adequate to moist conditions for Manitoba and parts of western Alberta.

The Prairie's driest area extends in an arc from Lethbridge to Saskatoon to Regina. In these areas, soil moisture content is projected at 45 to 60 per cent for annual crops and 30 per cent for perennials. Projected soil moisture content is given as the percentage of moisture the soil is capable of holding. A rating below 60 per cent is considered dry.

New treatment for low back pain costs less, speedier recovery rate

Many sufferers from low back pain will be pleased to hear about a new treatment developed by an international team of doctors.

Orthopaedic surgeon Joseph Schweigel of the University of British Columbia, one of 20 doctors who developed and tested the procedure, says it costs less and results in a speedier recovery than does the previously used method of treatment. Patients can be back at desk jobs in one to three weeks.

Low back pain is the second most frequent reason for seeing a doctor. (The common cold is the first.) Many low back pain sufferers' cases are caused by a herniated disc.

The intense pain of a herniated disc occurs because the pulpy cushion — the disc — between the vertebrae has ruptured and is pressing on nerve tissue.

Previously, doctors could only treat the condition by surgically removing part of the disc — a major operation. The new operation instead employs a small, stainless-steel tube which contains a tiny knife. The tube is guided into a two-millimetre incision in the lower back beside the damaged disc. Suction draws the pulpy disc material into a port hole near the tube's tip, where the knife slices off the material, like a guillotine.

The operation lasts about an hour. When the probe is removed, a bandage is put over the tiny incision.

A light in the tomb...

By Pastor H. Heinemann
Emmaus Lutheran Church

The Romans had a practice of lighting up their burial tombs. Apparently they believed the spirit of the dead person came back for periodic visits and the survivors desired the dead person's spirit should be able to easily find the right body.

In several instances, gigantic candles or lamps were constructed with a fuel reserve that would last for centuries. Legend has it that 1500 years after the death of Tullia, Cicero's daughter, her tomb was opened and a tiny lamp was found still burning.

As strange as we find these customs, our modern times seem to also be filled with strange ideas. Enrico Caruso, the great tenor who lived earlier in this century and whose magnificent voice has been preserved for posterity by the more primitive gramophones, made a provision in his will that a huge candle should be constructed that would burn night and day for 150 years. There was no apparent reason for this wish other than to preserve his memory.

In the larger towns and cities the words "graveyard" or "cemetery" have not been used for more than three decades. We prefer to call them "memorial gardens." And they do resemble gardens or public parks with a great array of beautiful flowers, manicured lawns and very few, if any, tombstones.

In addition, these memorial gardens are usually equipped with better lighting than public parks and side streets. Given the rather prevalent superstitions we have about graveyards, isn't it strange we put so much light in a place where people would not be caught at night, except death?

From the

This is not to suggest we should not beautify our graveyards or even light them at night. But it takes more than the glow of a long-burning lamp, a large candle or even a powerful flood light to dispel the "darkness" that a cemetery represents.

Christ, the Light of the World, is the only light that can dispense the darkness of the chamber of death. He did that once for all time when He succeeded to the darkness of death and was locked in a dim and dingy tomb for three days.

But He came, not as a light that was to glow for a short time and leave us an example to follow and then to be snuffed out in death. He overcame the darkness by rising up from His "graveyard." By His death He conquered that which is darkness, our sinfulness and our sins.

By His rising to life again, He has overcome the darkness of death. Through His resurrection He assures us that we too, by faith in Him, shall also rise from our graves and live forever with Him, in the glorious light of a life that never ends.

Farm vacation attractive alternative

By Susan Mosciold

These days, with the hustle and bustle of city or town living, people look for a place where they can "get away from it all."

Every year, numerous families pack up their campers or trailers and head for rural areas to relax.

What does a person do if they don't own a trailer, or if they are tired of overcrowded campgrounds?

"Take a country farm vacation," say Paul and Bonnie Marklund, host and hostess of Pathways Unlimited guest farm near Winfield.

It's a place where people come to see farming in Alberta," says Bonnie. "They come out and relax, pick berries, take walks, and play with the animals. It's like taking a trip without ever leaving the farm."

The quiet, secluded atmosphere provides a refreshing change for urban parents. Their children can run free, play on hay bales, pet the wide variety of farm animals, gather fresh eggs, canoe in summer, cross-country ski in winter, and more.

"They never get bored, here," says Bonnie.

Parents, as well, can be involved in any or all of the activities, and everyone can end a fun-filled day at the farm with a relaxing sauna.

Bonnie enjoys preparing food the 'traditional way' and guests may be fortunate enough to taste homemade bread, butter, or ice cream. In addition, she also picks herbs during the appropriate season for her own special blend of tea. Raspberry leaves, alfalfa, and chamomile are among the many natural ingredients.

Paul has a degree in outdoor education and will point out many unusual plants, birds, and animals one might see on a nature hike at the farm.

The easy-going, extremely hospitable Marklunds make a country vacation even more enjoyable. In reference to their guests, Bonnie says, "They become part of the family."

Groups and organizations can also book a farm vacation. A large modern cabin can accommodate approximately 20 people.

For families with children,

The 'honeymoon cabin' is one of the pleasant accommodations available at Pathways Unlimited.

or one or two couples, "The Honeymoon Cabin," a rustic log cabin in a peaceful setting, is the answer.

"Many families find this (a farm vacation) a very attractive alternative to get away from the crowds," says Paul.

"We just like people. We want to share (the farm farm vacation) a very experiences," adds Bonnie.

Market attracts customers to mall

Merchants in Derrick Mall were pleased recently when Evergreen Farmers' Market once again began setting up craft, baking, and novelty tables on Wednesdays. "We depend on it," said Ron Link, owner of Lynx Cocktail Lounge and Dining Room. "It creates activity in the mall."

Tom Gartner, owner of Bargain Palace, said, "It does bring people to the mall, and these people do come back."

Ruth Cooper and Dorothy Domke, managers of the farmers' market, invite people of Drayton Valley and surrounding area to go and see what the market has to offer.

The market features home-baking, handicrafts, novelties, toys, house plants, and bedding plants, fruits, and vegetables in season.

Youths enjoy Utah trip

Local youths from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, or Mormons, were fortunate enough to be able to visit Salt Lake City recently.

Twelve youths between the ages of 12 and 18 years and four adults from the Drayton Valley branch, joined a larger group (approximately 200) from Edmonton on the five-day trip.

"I think the youths had a really unique opportunity to meet with youth from our church (in Salt Lake City), and to see the history of our church," said Teresa LaRoque-Walker, president of the Young Women's Association.

The group enjoyed a live performance of Music Command (Gilbert and Sullivan musical) and visited Mormon colleges and universities in Utah and Idaho.

They also toured the Missionary Training Centre in Provo, Utah.

"It was a very short trip," said LaRoque-Walker. "But they (the youths) felt it was a marvelous experience." She added,

Stereo set may be worth considering

By Samia Vallewand
Over the years television viewers have had to put up with second-rate sound while manufacturers concentrated on picture quality. All that has changed.

Producers and broadcasters are devoting more attention to the sound track of their programs. Tuners and speakers have been improved and most important of all, stereo broadcasts have become a reality.

Even if you are not eager to listen to stereo, a stereo set may be worth considering. They will deliver a markedly better sound than their monophonic counterparts. Stereo sets produce satisfactorily low levels of hiss or distortion.

The built-in speakers on most stereo sets are positioned far enough apart to provide a discernable stereo effect. Surprisingly, even such unlikely candidates as talk shows benefit from stereo. And concert performances are genuinely improved. Always look for speakers that flank the screen.

If you are in the market for a new TV set this year, consider making a stereo set your first choice. You will have a television that will remain up-to-date for some time to come and you are very likely to have a set that delivers very good sound in both stereo and mono.

In Memoriam

Gone But Not Forgotten
(In memory of Justin Colby)
I'll no longer hear your laughter - I'll no longer see you smile,
And there will be no more complications in your flapping smile.
I know that God must need you with Him up above,
Or He would never be so cruel as to take away someone I love.
Justin, I will always love you - let there never be a doubt.
For you were the one that taught me what caring was all about.
I think about the 'old' times - and my eyes overflow with tears.
It breaks my heart to lose a friendship
we've shared all these years.
I know that I shall miss our friendship well and true.
Because I could never forget such a friend.

You never asked for anything - yet you gave so very much.
Anyone with whom you'd met - their hearts you truly touched.
And never have a moment's peace - they'll never let you go.
Until the day finally arrives when we shall laugh together again!
Arlene J. Lauer

WADDELL Mavis
In memory of Mavis Waddell who passed away April 2, 1973.
God saw her getting tired,
A cure was not to be,
So He wrapped His arms around Her
And whispered "Come with Me."
She was someone we could laugh with
And feed her from all pain.
She suffered much in silence,
Her spirit did not bend,
She faced her pain with courage
Until the very end.

Though you have been gone 16 years,
You live still in our hearts and tears.
In one sense you will never die,
For through life we keep you always by our side.
Missed and loved by wife Vicki, Jerry, Marilyn, Dave, Laura and families.

KOS, Ernest
In memory of Ernest Kos, who passed away April 4, 1973.
Though you have been gone 16 years,
You live still in our hearts and tears.
In one sense you will never die,
For through life we keep you always by our side.
Missed and loved by wife Vicki, Jerry, Marilyn, Dave, Laura and families.

When I grow up...

St. Anthony kindergarten students get the inside story on fighting fires from Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson last Friday during a tour of the town facility. They have a few years of school left but judging from the bright eyes and numerous questions, maybe a few will follow in the chief's footsteps.

Tainted water won't reach Drayton Valley drinkers

By Belinda Atkinson
Drayton Valley water will not suffer odor and taste problems plaguing city water supplies, say spokesmen for the area's water treatment plant.

Plant supervisor Rudy Merschel says rotting organic compounds tainting Edmonton water enter the North Saskatchewan River east of town, after local water supplies have been extracted.

"There's rotting vegetation on a lot of farms," says Darcy Bryant, water technician, "but there are more farms down stream."

This rotting vegetation reached "unacceptable levels" at a city water treatment plant April 4, forcing a six-hour closure.

A city environmental spokesman said the foul odor and taste did not pose a health risk but E.L. Smith, one of two plants in the city, pumped the treated water back into the river.

More serious health risks resulted March 30 when hydrocarbon residues from city streets reached unsafe levels at Rosedale Plant in Edmonton.

The city is now considering moving the plant's intake upstream to avoid contaminants entering the water from 85 storm sewers.

Merschel said Drayton Valley water supplies are not

Five Drayton Valley Social Service workers could begin an illegal strike April 15 if the two sides negotiating a new contract aren't brought closer together.

Alberta Union of Provincial Employees president Pat Wocknitz said last Friday the government and Local 6 are still far apart in negotiations over wage increases and workload reductions.

"We're very upset with what has been happening at the negotiations," Wocknitz told The Western Review last Friday.

She said Local 6, which represents 2,100 social workers, child care counsellors and psychologists across the province, has brought its demands down considerably.

its demands down considerably.

However, Jim Dixon, public service commissioner, said Friday Local 6 has not reduced wage expectations.

"They certainly didn't reduce their demands during collective bargaining," said the spokesman for the government's personnel administration department.

Reports last Monday indicated Local 6 was seeking wage increases of up to 18.6 per cent and workload reductions from 400 clients per month, in some cases, down to 100 to 125.

The government has not budged from its offer of a 3.6 per cent wage increase for 1988, three per cent for April of this year and another one-per-cent increase in October.

He said that increase was in line with new contracts settled for 11 other provincial employee unions and based on a review of rates of pay for municipalities and cities.

Local 6 risked hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines last week for distributing ballots to determine whether social service workers wanted to accept the government's offer or strike.

Dixon said the government will not file legal action against the vote and still offers mediation.

Wocknitz said Local 6 will count the ballots April 15 and determine a province-wide consensus.

On this date Social Service workers could begin a province-wide strike but at present, Wocknitz says: "We're still prepared to negotiate."

Curling club secures land title to proceed with new facility

By Frank Ryan

The Drayton Valley Curling Club hopes to start construction this week on their new six-sheet $800,000 facility.

A major hurdle was achieved last Thursday when town council decided to proceed with an agreement and turn over the title for the land for a fee of $1.

The rink will be built adjacent (west) of the sports centre in West Valley Park. The land the town made available to the curling club for a $1 has been valued at $150,000.

"We've made a big step today," curling club president Bruce Clemmer told council following the announcement.

Prior to the announcement, council and a seven-member delegation representing the curling club went into "camera."

According to Clemmer the 40-minute meeting dealt with legal, financial and structural matters.

The first phase of the project which the curling club hopes to have finished by mid-August will include the lounge and recreation area (67 feet long and 100 feet wide).

There's a chance the shell for the six-sheet facility will be included in the first phase.

Construction on the second phase, that could begin in the fall, will include the cement pad, artificial ice plant and lights.

Clemmer told council the curling club presently has $300,000 in the bank. Including that money, the club has about $500,000 in total commitments for the projects.

According to Clemmer, that's more than enough to handle phase one.

It's the curlers' intentions to make their new facility operational 12 months a year.

Both the Derriek Boxing Club and the gymnastics club have been indicated as possible users of the recreation area.

The Royal Canadian Legion contributed $250,000 toward the recreation centre to be located on the lower floor of the new curling rink.

The curlers have one more year in their old rink. The property has been purchased by the provincial government. Their possession date is June of 1990.

There were also some indications during last week's council meeting that the town may contribute financially to the new curling rink.

Put the skis away

Warmer temperatures are in the forecast this week.

For today (Tuesday) the weather office is calling for highs of +14 C with an overnight low of 0.

On Wednesday the clouds will roll in along with a 40 per cent chance of rain and a daytime high of +11 C and a low of -2 C.

The clouds and rain are expected to be around Thursday with a high of +7 C and a low of -2 C.

Look for the sun on Friday with a high of +8 C and an overnight low of -3 C.

Breton school concerns addressed with visit

By Sue Kenyon

The chairman of the school buildings board will be invited to look at schools in Breton, it was decided at last week's regular meeting of the Twin Rivers school board.

The suggestion was made by trustee Jim Reid after concern was voiced by trustee Carolyn Strand that the board had put Breton schools on the bottom of the priority list for the Capital Plan Projects for 1990.

Dr. George Bevan, superintendent, read the list of capital projects which will be submitted to Alberta Education. The list in order of priority was: first, Eldorado addition; second, Eldorado modernization; Lindale addition, Lindale relocatables, Lindale modernization, Breton addition, Breton modernization.

After hearing the list of projects in order of priority, Strand asked what problems were important to Alberta Education and what problems they see as needing immediate attention.

"Health and safety are the first main concerns followed by space, programming needs, upgrading, and lastly the age of buildings," Bevan said.

Bevan told the board there is a problem with water in Breton elementary school but an architect hired to analyze the problem said it was not a health concern.

Bevan said the reason for Eldorado and Lindale being the first priorities was the overcrowding in those schools.

"Eldorado is presently at 97 per cent utilization and Lindale is at 182 per cent, the highest that has been reported in a long time," Bevan said.

He told the board Breton is at 55 per cent utilization.

"I think we have to look at the policies here. Both schools on this side of the river have not been well looked after. They have waited so long and worked so hard in Breton. I think it should be at least priority two. I feel if nothing is done for schools in Breton we could have a major political situation on our hands," Strand said.

Reid suggested the board invite the chairman of the school buildings board to look at the buildings so he could see the urgency of the situation.

RCMP won't increase patrols

Area drivers who see spring conditions as a green light to drive over the speed limit won't have to worry about extra police patrols.

According to Staff Sgt. Humphrey, area RCMP officers do not go out in extra force during the spring months to patrol traffic.

"We still have our regular work to do," he said.

The sergeant said his detachment patrols the streets and roadways on a "roving" basis throughout the year.

He said, however, patrols will be increased if someone launches a complaint against bad driving on a particular street or the volume of drivers increases due to a long weekend or holiday.

In these two instances, he said, RCMP officers are instructed to make themselves visible to slow traffic down.

Modernization plans give Breton hope

By Susan Mosciak

Breton high school principal Jim Musson was enthusiastic when Twin Rivers school division sent an architect to the school recently to draw up plans for its modernization.

The modernization of the school, although desperately needed, according to Musson, is not definite yet.

"I'm going to maintain an optimism until something is proven otherwise," he said.

"It's just not fair, and it's not right," said Musson. "Our students visit other schools, and every school is better than this one."

"Even everyday maintenance hasn't been kept up (in the past)," he said.

Mayor Bob Mayhew congratulates a young athlete.

Town recognizes local athletes

The town of Drayton Valley paid tribute March 5 to young athletes who've represented the community on the provincial level in the last year.

Proud parents looked on as 57 girls and boys stepped up to a podium at the Legion to accept a certificate and pins from Mayor Bob Mayhew and town councillors.

Award recipients represented hockey, swimming, baseball, figure skating and other sports in which local youngsters have brought their talent and the town's name to the attention of the entire province.

Mayor Bob Mayhew said he was proud to award the children and teenagers, who have, over the past year, dedicated themselves to the sport and succeeded in making Drayton Valley a more active and better community.

Defence base under investigation

The Western Review has learned the town is interested in having the Department of National Defence locate a base in the area.

The town's request, which is being supported by the Municipal District of Brazeau, is being investigated by Yellowhead MP Joe Clark.

Clark has sent a letter to The Honorable Bill McNight, Minister of National Defence, inquiring about the possibility of a base in Alberta that would be closer to Edmonton than CFB Watrous.

Nevertheless, Musson feels the new board (Twin Rivers) must be given a chance to prove itself. He also believes the board is sincere in saying Breton high is high on its priority list.

"I'm going to believe in that, hopefully not naively. We cannot live like this much longer."

Musson referred to a classroom that has a sinking floor, saying that a teacher put a projector on a wheeled cart in one part of the classroom, and when she went to the front of the classroom, the cart rolled away.

"You damn near have to be a goat to live in that class," he said jokingly.

Musson said nothing has changed in the school for the past 20 years.

The "why" of assessment

It happens every year.

Seasoned property owners open their envelopes with a sigh of resignation, while new home or property owners open their envelopes with some misgiving and considerable confusion. Once again, it's assessment time and if you own property your assessment will soon be arriving in the mail.

Most years, assessments do not change radically. Periodically, however, a General Assessment is held to ensure values reflect updated market conditions. As this year is a General Assessment year in our community, we decided to tackle the subject of assessment and dig back through the history to learn where the whole idea of assessment came from, and how the process evolved in Alberta. We found to our surprise, that far from being dull or dry, the contentious issue of assessment made a fascinating study. Over the next few weeks, you'll read why assessment came to be, how it's calculated in Alberta, and, finally how and when to appeal an assessment.

A 2,000 year-old tradition has changed in practice, but not in principle

The dictionary definition of "assessment" conjures up a colorful image. The word has its roots in the Latin "asses(sus)" and means, literally, to be "seated next to a judge." It's not difficult to imagine a citizen of Rome, seated next to a stern judge at a banquet — looking most definitely uncomfortable. (Perhaps he neglected to report a villa during his last property assessment?)

The origins of the word also give a clear indication of the age of the tradition of assessment. Taxation dates back to the beginnings of our society, and assessment goes hand-in-hand with taxation. Throughout the course of history, relatively little time has been assessment used as a tool to work towards a fair system of taxation. Indeed, until the 18th century, assessment was used solely to ensure that the ruler of a territory or monarch of a country received all the "riches" which were presumably his by right.

In modern times, though, and in our democratic society where government is given the right to levy taxes to raise funds for the community's good, assessment is a means of determining taxes on the principle of determining the relative value of property.

The evolution of assessment in Alberta

The pioneers who came to open up the wilderness of Alberta managed to survive through self-reliance, and by helping one another to clear fields and build homes in a spirit of neighborliness.

For a few years, this informal arrangement proved effective. By the early 1880's the first generation of children had arrived and the issue of schooling arose. Here, the spirit of cooperation simply couldn't leap the financial hurdle of building schools and hiring teachers.

One of the earliest and most effective forms of local government in Alberta was, therefore, the School District. School Districts were formed to raise money through taxes to pay for schools and teachers, and while families supported the concept, bachelors and businesses resisted and tried to frustrate the formation of Districts. They were in the minority, however, and soon school boards had sprung up wherever there were settlements of any stature.

Another and more serious problem arose when it came time to collect on taxes in arrears. The school board official was faced with the prospect of approaching a neighbor and demanding back taxes or even threatening to seize the neighbor's property. This could have jeopardized the spirit of cooperation which had built the province, so the territorial government assumed responsibility for collection of taxes. This arrangement lasted until further settlement led to the creation of municipal districts in rural areas and the growth of towns and cities.

On the road to the future

As more and more settlers arrived in the province, they faced a pressing need to build more roads.

Few settlers had money, but all people had energy, it was reasoned. And so it was only reasonable that Labour Districts would be organized. A "supervisor of roadbuilding" was elected to oversee the huge challenge of filling sloughs and building roads. His crews were made up of his neighbors, and the amount of labour they put in was determined by the size of their land holdings. This was only natural in a province which was rural and agricultural in its early days, and carried on in one form or another for decades.

The first "boom" into maturity

The boom years Alberta experienced in the 1870's and early 1880's were insignificant in comparison with the great boom of 1906 to 1913. Alberta had become a province, the railways had opened up the rich and fertile new area, and the population had soared as the era of settlement brought trainloads after trainloads of pioneers to Alberta.

Virtually overnight, a sparsely populated agricultural region became the site of "metropolises" like Edmonton and Calgary, Red Deer, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge. All municipalities and cities faced demands for roads and utilities, schools and other essential services the population needed. Local officials, untrained in the level of administration required and unaccustomed to the magnitude of the requirements, turned to the young provincial government for help.

In 1912, a separate department within the provincial structure was established to assist the municipalities. The Department of Municipal Affairs, as one of its major challenges, assisted in the administration of assessment. An important responsibility was to ensure equal standards of assessment throughout the province so that people living in different areas would be assessed on a fair and equitable basis. Four years later, the tradition of assessing and taxing only land came to an end when towns and villages were permitted to levy taxes on buildings and other improvements.

A giant step forward

In 1918, six years after it was formed, the Department of Municipal Affairs took a drastic but necessary step. The system of assessing land on the basis of acreage was abandoned. Instead, uniform assessment procedures that were based on the value of land, rather than the amount of land, were introduced. This was a radical move, but a giant step towards a more equitable system of assessment. Before 1918, a farmer who owned large holdings of poor farmland and struggled to eke out an existence paid far more than one who prospered on a smaller portion of productive land.

The value system proved to be more fair in the cities and towns as well, and saw the transition in the current system of assessment based on relative value, rather than absolute value of all property.

Further changes

The structure which grew from the early days remained unchanged, but growth and practical considerations altered the process of administration. Between 1912 and 1918, for example, municipalities were required to conduct General Assessments every year to ensure that changes in the value of property were reflected in assessments. The cost of conducting General Assessments annually grew out of proportion, however, and in 1918 Municipal Affairs relaxed the requirement to a five year period. Today, different municipalities hold General Assessments on differing schedules to account for changes in the economy and changes in land values and property values. Municipalities administer and collect taxes in their regions, while Alberta Municipal Affairs monitors the assessment process to ensure fair standards.

Assessment: A matter of relativity

It is clear that assessment has evolved as the province has grown.

While today's municipal governments answer the needs of the people who elected them by striving to provide vital services, they also work with Alberta Municipal Affairs to see that people pay taxes according to their property's value. This value is based on relative standards rather than absolute standards.

Note: Property owners will receive their assessments within the next few weeks. As this is a General Assessment year, these assessments may be significantly higher than last year. Property taxes won't necessarily increase proportionately, though. That's the subject we'll review in our second article in the series on Assessment. Watch for "How Assessment Affects Your Taxes."

New administration complex features refreshing changes

A trip to the new town office in Drayton Valley is worth the trip.

It's certainly a major improvement over their old building located less than a block away.

For starters, the exterior design and color scheme is impressive.

Inside, one will find a refreshing decor that must be a refreshing change for the staff.

All the town's major department heads can be contacted through the new administration complex. The municipal library and fire hall are also in the same building.

One of the biggest changes is in the council chambers. There seems to be ample room for council members to stretch their legs and appropriate space to accommodate delegations and the public.

Like the old town office, space has also been set aside for the mayor.

It is hoped that the public or out-of-town guests who have an appointment with the mayor, will make use of this space.

While the offices for the department heads appear to be a bit on the small size, a designated reference library has been set up that will eliminate a lot of books and files that filled these offices in the old building.

It's hard to imagine that the new administration complex was our old arena. Just to see how that has changed is worth a tour of the new building.

Newspaper campaign, open houses to help with tax notices

The town has launched a major campaign to tell people about the new assessment and annual tax notice.

The extensive newspaper campaign will contain information on assessments and the tax notices and includes some open house sessions.

The town is to be commended for proceeding with this information campaign.

As a property owner in town I am most interested in getting my assessment notice.

I will be most interested to see what the assessor put down on his report, considering he didn't even inspect our home.

He stood at the front door and asked a couple of questions and left.

quarterbacks who enjoys sports on the tube, the addition of TSN is just great.

The announcers bring a different viewpoint to sports in general.

The addition of TSN comes just in time for the NHL playoffs.

Add to that, coverage of 50 Toronto Blue Jay, 40 Montreal Expo and 26 other major league baseball teams.

Just a couple of comments on the most recent provincial election.

Despite the length of the campaign, the number of votes the Liberal and NDP got in the Drayton Valley constituency was a bit of a surprise. Especially considering the amount of campaigning done here.

Tom Thurber was the favorite, considering he was following in Shirley Cripps' footsteps.

No one knew very much about Liberal Garth Werschlir or NDP Lynne Martin.

But, it was obvious from the final figures, that the two had a lot of support in the constituency.

With the federal and provincial elections out of the way, the municipal is next.

Town tour terrific says writer

Dear Editor,

I took the town tour on Sunday, April 3.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all who were responsible for arranging this town tour. I learned much about the past accomplishments, the present activities and the future plans of Drayton Valley. It was free.

I wondered why more people in Drayton Valley did not take advantage of this tour. If you didn't know anything about this tour, then you did not read your Western Review or the little pink brochure that was sent by mail advertising Municipal Involvement Week.

Howard Olsen did an excellent job as tour guide.

Thanks to all who gave part of their Sunday to show us things and places along the way. The tour took more than two hours and was very interesting.

Myths shroud kindergarten's view of change

Dear Editor,

I don't want to belabor the issue, but there seems to be a fair number of myths and misconceptions regarding the Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten and our position regarding a public ECS program.

We are not opposed to a public ECS program at Eldorado school or anywhere else. Our concern is the impact on all students if subjected to downgraded classroom conditions, which could result from the hasty implementation of ECS at Eldorado.

We are opposed to large class sizes in all grades, especially K-3 and high teacher/student ratios. What will the maximum enrolment be in a public program? Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten limits class size to 25 students so we can provide quality education for our children.

The community kindergarten has been in operation for 15 years. As a private ECS we operate under the same mandate as a public ECS program, with the exception that such year the elected local advisory committee assumes complete responsibility for the program operation. All teachers possess the same teachers in a public program (bachelor of education with an Early Childhood diploma). Each of the teachers and teacher aides at the Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten have from five to 15 years of experience in early childhood programs.

The delegation that attended the Twin Rivers school board meeting did not specifically represent the community kindergarten. They were a group of concerned parents. However, it may be worthwhile to point out there were representatives from the Emmaus Lutheran ECS, a program that has been in existence for about 10 years and has frequently been omitted in many dialogues recently.

In all of our years of operation, the Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten has never been offered busing by the county of Parkland, nor have we refused such an offer so we could retain the transportation grants in our own program.

Lynne Zingel, president DV Community Kindergarten

Chamber anticipates 'best ever' trade fair in September

The sixth annual Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce trade fair will be held Sept. 8-10.

The chamber is anticipating one of their best shows ever with over 100 booths in the sports centre.

Entertainment will either be provided in the adjacent curling rink (if phase one is completed by mid-August) or a tarp will be put over the outdoor rink.

Exhibitors from last year and current chamber members will have the first opportunity to register and reserve their booth, on a first-come first-served basis.

After May 15, the remaining booths will be opened to those on a waiting list and the rest of the public.

The chamber has decided on a $50 increase in their booth rentals this year.

Chamber members will be charged $275 for their first booth and non-chamber members will be looking at a fee of $300.

For more information call Simon Kelly, trade fair director, at 642-2700.

Council calls for line painting tender to save money

Town council has decided to put their line painting out to tender.

Council was told at last Thursday's meeting that town crews did the job last year at a cost of $13,830.

A contractor's price two years ago totalled $13,000. Howard Olsen, chairman of the transportation committee, informed council last Thursday the town's line painting equipment is old and worn out and it takes longer for town crews to complete the line painting.

Depending on the weather and when a contractor is available, Olsen figures it will be mid-May before the traffic lines around town are painted.

Another parent angered over bus

By Susan Mosicki

Yet another parent is upset over the discipline problem on bus 711, a school bus that picks up in the Poplar Ridge trailer court west of town.

Eva Flanders said her son is now riding his bicycle to and from school daily because the children on the bus are "uncontrollable."

"It's not the bus driver's fault," said Flanders. "The parents won't discipline their kids."

Flanders feels the children who are getting out of hand on this bus are too much for any bus driver to handle.

She says the situation has gone beyond the bus, and said the same ones who cause trouble on the bus have threatened her son with baseball bats and bow and arrows in the trailer park.

Flanders said she called the police but they could not do anything because no one had been hurt.

"Someone, a parent, should be allowed to ride that bus to help the bus driver — someone who's very strict," she said.

This (discipline problem) has been going on for quite some time. This is ridiculous."

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

Drayton Valley will lose the Wayne Gretzky of law enforcement next month when Yves Robitaille is transferred to Cardston.

The 29-year-old Montreal native loves the sport, among many others, and once received a full hockey scholarship in Vermont.

While in the scenic state, Yves also picked up a degree in physical education and minors in psychology and sociology.

Now it's time for Yves to move on to his second RCMP placement. After five years in a relatively quiet town, he's looking forward to the challenge of a busy detachment double the size of ours.

Yves will also take his bride-to-be, Bonnie, a local girl who works as a secretary at an oil company in Drayton Valley. The two will wed in September.

Church construction may start this summer

The Alliance Church hopes to start construction on a new building this summer.

Town council started the ball rolling toward last Thursday when they amended the land use bylaw to include places of worship in C-2 and C-MX classifications as discretionary use.

Two more readings are necessary before church pastor Glen Lonie can take his proposal to the municipal planning commission.

Council gave first reading to the amendment on the recommendation of the planning board.

According to Lonie, the church has made an offer on .69 acres of land located behind (south) the Coach Motel.

If approvals are all in place by the end of May, Lonie says the development chapel that will seat 80 people, will be started this summer.

Lonie has been pastor of the Alliance Church for the past two years in Drayton Valley, operating without a proper facility.

At the present time their church services are held in office space upstairs in the Social Services building on main street.

Lonie admits it's a bit crowded, but they did manage to accommodate 60 people for Easter Sunday services.

Breton elevator will close

The Alberta Wheat Pool plans to close the Breton elevator at the end of July.

That decision isn't sitting well with the MD.

As a result the MD and the Village of Breton have scheduled a meeting with the Wheat Pool on April 20 in Calgary.

According to a March 8 letter from the Wheat Pool, the company's intention is to operate the elevator on a one-year basis (Aug. 1, 1988 to July 31, 1989).

"The MD is not pleased with the tone of the letter," according to municipal manager John Erickson.

Erickson says the mood of the letter indicates the elevator will be closed at the end of July, and it's the MD's hope that the date will be extended.

"We want to get the 1989 crop year in," he added.

Tiny dancers.

These dancers were a real hit.

Young dancers put on 'terrific' show

By Susan Moscicki

More than 200 people were amused and awed by the excellent performance put on by students of Dancers' Studios at the Rec Plex last Wednesday.

One could not help but smile at the tiny ballerinas in their tutus, or suppress a giggle during a dance to the song Kokomo when young dancers dressed in bermuda shorts put their all into the dances.

More dramatic routines were done by the older students, and were very well executed.

The show featured a main character, Elizabeth, who was looking into her treasure chest of memories, each memory bringing on a new dance.

Dance teacher Alvina Sparring, wanted to put the emphasis on how hard the students worked. "They come for enjoyment of dance," she added.

"It (the show) was terrific," said Lori Thesen, a local resident.

To-dal!

A more complex routine.

Fastball starts May 8

The Evergreen Fastball League kicked-off baseball season April 5 with an organizational meeting to select teams.

The Drayton Valley Knights, Buck Lake Lakers, Wabamun Whitecaps and No Jacks will officially open a season of double header format games May 8.

According to president Wayne Tournear, the league is organizing a tournament to be held July 8 and 9 in Buck Lake.

Although teams have been selected Tournear says interested players are still welcome to sign up.

Oilers vs L.A.

By Frank Pavlick
Canada's Sports Poet

It won't be long now and we're sure gonna find, What happens when something's on Wayne Gretzky's mind,

Cause Wayne has this neat little ice hockey trick,

Transferring revenge to the blade of his stick,

No matter the Northlands or down in L.A.,

When Gretzky shows up he has shown up to play,

Aside from the normal, to win and a buck,

Along with Glen Sather, with whom he, for sure,

Would deep down inside like to settle a score.

The point may be this: Oilers once had it made,

But money decided to make the BIG trade,

How much does it cost to lose one Stanley Cup?

One figure for sure, 99, will show up.

Ball diamonds $1,000 for diamond repair will be upgraded

The recreation department has some plans to upgrade local ball fields.

According to recreation director Paul Nielsen, some improvements will be made to the south of Frank Maddock high in West Valley Park.

Nielsen wants to do something about the sandy/clay surface that players had to contend with last summer on the new field south of the high school.

"It was a nightmare to maintain," Nielsen says.

The recreation department plans to work with minor ball upgrading one of the diamonds in West Valley Park.

User fees will also stay the same this season as in 1988.

Nielsen says these will likely be reviewed in the fall of 1989.

$1,000 for diamond repair

By Frank Ryan

The Drayton Valley Minor Baseball Association has some ambitious plans.

Sandy Buchan, who is returning for his second year as president, says the association hopes to upgrade two diamonds at West Valley Park.

In cooperation with the Drayton Valley Slow-Pitch League, minor ball hopes to make diamonds 3 and 4, located on the south side of the park, all-weather fields.

While minor ball will have to wait for a meeting with slow-pitch before proceeding on diamond 3, they have some money in place to proceed with the other field.

According to recreation director Paul Nielsen, plans are to spread some shale on the high volume areas, install weeping tile and sod the infield.

The town, through a recreation grant, has contributed $1,800 toward diamond repair.

Minor ball got off to a rousing start last week when 100 players registered.

A second registration night will be held April 17 in Room 5/7 at Frank Maddock high school between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Buchan is confident player registrations will reach last year's 280.

Parents, who are required to accompany their youngsters to the registration, are reminded to take the child's birth certificate and Alberta health care number.

The registration fee is $30 per player, an increase of $5 from last year.

Besides making plans for the upcoming leagues, Buchan plans to talk with the provincial baseball association about the possibility of hosting a provincial tournament.

Hines hoping to change luck

Clayton Hines is off to a rough start as the 1989 rodeo season swings into high gear.

After five rodeos, Hines wasn't included in the pro rodeo saddle bronc top 10 standings.

This is a complete reversal of last year when he led the Canadian standings from start to finish.

"It's early yet," the Drayton Valley area cowboy says.

But Hines, who got off to his best start ever last spring with earnings totalling $4,000 at this time of the season, has a history of being a slow starter.

"In 1985 I didn't get into the top 10 until April," he stated last week.

Hines hopes to change his luck before the end of the month as he takes to the road with stops at Hobbema, Saskatoon, Lloydminster, Kamloops, Coleman, Red Deer, Lethbridge and Ladoux.

Last year the former Canadian saddle bronc champion took top money at Saskatoon and Lethbridge, placed second at Kamloops and split third/fourth at Lloydminster and Coleman.

Hines plans on attending about 65 rodeos this year, admitting he may miss some of the smaller ones.

He has hopes of qualifying for the Calgary Stampede and making another trip to the Canadian finals.

Kelso skates to gold medal win

Nine-year-old Joanne Kelso won a gold medal at the Rocky Mountain invitational figure skating competition held recently in Hinton.

The Drayton Valley skater took top spot in the preliminary ladies elements.

She also placed fourth in the preliminary ladies free skate and the silver solo dance.

In solo dance, Kelso

Owen buys Mayfield Inn

The sale was confirmed on the weekend in Edmonton.

Eight competitors from the Drayton Valley club participated in the Hinton meet.

Besides her gold medal performance at Hinton, she won the silver medal at a Winterskate '89 competition at Westlock and a bronze in a Whitecourt meet.

Local teams fare well

Local hockey teams have been chalking up an impressive record at recent tournaments.

The Norette Oilers defeated Lacombe 6-4 in the finals of a bantam tourney. The Oilers rolled to three lopsided wins in round-robin play.

At a novice tourney in Edson, Mohawk won four games and allowed just five goals in the process as they won the 'A' division.

And, at an atom tournament in Edson, DV Meters dropped an overtime loss to Adressan in the 'A' final.

Old Man Winter is delaying a start to the golfing season.

Mike Townley, who is returning to the Drayton Valley course for his second year as head pro, echoes the thoughts of all the courses when he says, "We'll open just as soon as the snow is gone."

If you remember, most courses in the area were open at this time last year.

It's nice to see the Drayton Valley club executive has decided to hold the line on its membership rates and green fees.

We understand Birchwood Village Greens (B. Lindale) plans to advertise the same rates as last year.

The new 10,000-square-foot Leisure Centre at Birchwood is coming along nicely.

The main floor will include a pro shop, lounge, lockers and an indoor pool.

Most of the second floor is taken up with a banquet room that will seat 200 without any problem.

There's also a deck facing the first tee box and the ninth hole.

Town opens arms to female hockey players

Young female hockey players were provided the opportunity of a lifetime last weekend when they were able to participate in a talent identification clinic at the Drayton Sports Centre.

The girls, age 17 and under, attended the camp with girls from all over northern Alberta. The most talented players will be chosen to participate in the 1991 Canada Winter Games in Prince Edward Island.

Alberta director for female hockey Suzanne Triance said there will be more talent identification clinics in northern and southern Alberta before the Games.

"There's a lot of potential with the Drayton team," said Triance.

"It's (Drayton Valley) been a founder of the midget program," she said. "It was the first team to register as midget."

Triance was favorably impressed by the people of Drayton Valley.

"Drayton offered the ice," she said. "And the community opened its arms and offered homes for the girls to stay in."

Triance believed that some of the Drayton Valley girls have the talent to participate in the Canada Winter Games.

Players demonstrate their skills in a face-off during the clinic.

New tax form poses problem for residents

By Belinda Atkinson
A major tax reform has forced a number of area residents to seek help from income tax specialists for the first time.

Spokesmen from four Drayton Valley firms say

"We've had quite a few first-time customers," said H&R Block manager Marilyn Fontaine.

Fontaine estimates 25 to 30 per cent more customers have turned to the downtown office this year.

Allen Perry, of Collins Barrow, admits it will be impossible for tax specialists to determine an exact customer increase until the April 30 deadline.

Fontaine says many customers have tried to make it through the new form and guides but gave up in disgust after encountering changes such as a conversion from personal exemptions to non-refundable tax credits.

Cathy Polsfut, of Polsfut

Accounting, says the confusion has not been limited to a certain group of

She, and other specialists, said everyone from farmers, tradespeople to small business owners have turned to income tax specialists to handle their 1988 return.

Kent Sabine, of Sabine Kjerlien & Company, says while a tax return is different in every case, it is not easy under any circumstance.

He said Revenue Canada published a number of guides to assist people but even these may not help since the government agency continued to change tax procedures after the guides were completed.

6-49 sales show increase

News of the local $1.25 million lottery winner has probably not increased ticket sales, say retailers.

Store managers and clerks say ticket sales have been higher than normal but most attribute the increase to a special $10-million 649 jackpot.

"649 sales are way up but they were up before (Pat Spiker) won," said Value Drug Mart manager/owner

Laurie Tkachuk.

With jackpots normally nearing $2 million, he says the $50-million bonus from March 15 to 29 drew extra players throughout the month.

Even the North End Red Rooster reports only a slight increase in sales despite the fact that its machine selected the numbers March 25 that became $1.25 million worth of security for the Spiker family.

Manager Murray Galavan says it's too early to tell whether sales will be affected by the temporary jackpot increase or some belief his store is a "lucky zone."

Although people aren't closing their bank accounts and buying lottery tickets, he says most are aware his store helped produce Drayton Valley's newest millionaire.

"We have been telling people but only a few didn't know," he said.

For the first week after the win, in fact, the town was buzzing with news of the big lottery winner.

In restaurants, laundromats and on the street, it seemed every conversation included the inevitable question: "What would you have done with the money?"

Water bill to change in May

Drayton Valley's water bill is changing.

This month, customers will be receiving an interim bill. Starting in May, customers will see another change that will include being billed monthly.

It's all part of a recent agreement the town signed with the gas company. That agreement will see one person read both the gas and water meters.

Customers will be billed a flat charge and for actual consumption.

Packaging project keeps Beehive staff busy

Staff at the Beehive Workshop won't have to worry about not having anything to do for the next month.

Last week Beehive executive director Bruce Nichols took on a packaging project that will be part of a province-wide campaign.

The Beehive staff will be kept busy filling 5000 bags with garden supplies.

The job was made available to them by Robert Bayley, Alberta manager for Johnson-Walker Advertising and Sales Promotion Ltd. of Calgary.

Bayley is no stranger to the area. He lived in Cynthia for seven years where he operated the Pumpjack Restaurant.

Johnson-Walker Ltd. is responsible for getting the bags filled with garden supplies and distributing them around the province. The campaign will initially start off in Calgary and Edmonton.

All the bags assembled at the Beehive will be sold in and around Edmonton in support of Unoles At Large and Special Olympics.

The packages will contain a pair of garden gloves, four packages of seed, two garbage bags and several discount coupons.

Staff at the Beehive will be kept busy filling the packages in anticipation of a high volume of sales in the two-month campaign that started Monday.

Is your child ready for Grade 1?

Submitted by D.V. Regional Parent
Educational Society
"How can I tell if my child is ready for Grade 1? Should I hold him/her back?"

These are common questions among parents, especially if their child is of 'borderline' age (birthday in January or February).

When considering a child's readiness, it is recommended a parent observe their child in a peer group setting. The focus should be on social, physical, emotional and language skills. The factor to consider is readiness, not intelligence.

Can the child play cooperatively with other children, cope with large numbers of people, share equipment and take turns?

Can the child listen for 10 to 15 minutes without restlessness?

Can the child give back the main ideas of a story? Can the child follow simple directions, work without being easily distracted and complete a task and listen to authority? (These are all critical to the child's survival at school.)

It is important to remember that not all children develop at the same rate, just as all toddlers do not walk at the same time.

Some may seem socially ready for Grade 1, but aren't voluntarily. Others may show a lack of leadership and are shy but at home display good academic skills.

Some things that may show up in Grade 10 students who were put into Grade 1 before they were six years old are:

The students may not fit in socially. Immature behavior may lead to teasing by others;

Students may be persuaded to do things they are not emotionally ready for, just to be part of the group (peer pressure);

Boys, especially, may be physically smaller which can lead to teasing. As well, there may be a lack of coordination in some high school sports;

And they may not be ready to settle down and complete the independent work necessary for succeeding in high school.

The DV Regional Parent Society feels academic problems these students may encounter stem not from lesser ability because they are younger than their peers, but rather from immaturity in being able to handle the independent work and Sparks fly at council meeting

By Frank Ryan

Sparks continued to fly during last Thursday's town council meeting on a proposed road into West Valley Park.

It all started when town manager Manny Deol told council he planned to start negotiations for the necessary land.

Councillor Jean Saunders questioned Deol as to whether that decision had actually been made.

Howard Olsen and Alex Salfi, who had a heated exchange when the proposal was originally presented by administration, both felt that a concept had been accepted at the last meeting, and a decision hadn't been made.

"We have a long way to go before we proceed," Olsen stated.

It's Olsen's wish that council will meet with landowners in the affected area.

"We have a responsibility to hear from those people," he added.

Before proceeding, Olsen stated he would have to know the dollars involved, if the money was in place and what the options were.

"It hasn't been looked at. Not clear enough. We're not finished by a long shot," Olsen explained to council.

The project will stay on council's status report for further reports.

at risk from hydrocarbon (animal feces) as in the city because storm sewers can not drain into drinking water.

"The lines are completely sealed. Nothing can get in," Merschel said.

Merschel, a 30-year veteran at the plant, said although spring runoff adds dirt to untreated water, he has never seen health risks or even a bad odor or taste resulting from spring runoff in the area.

Japanese teacher will take home fond memories of Canada

By Belinda Atkinson

A young Japanese woman flew 6,717 km to learn about Canadian culture but somehow rediscovered her own.

Etsuko Wako's once-in-a-lifetime trip to Drayton Valley six months ago gave her a chance to learn English and introduce St. Anthony students to the Japanese way of life.

But soon she found the eager students were asking more questions than she could answer.

"They asked so many questions...I had to check on the answers and I learned more about Japan," she said.

"I learned to like (Japan) more," she smiled.

The 26-year-old came to Drayton Valley with a perfect tradeoff. She would learn English and experience life in a natural resource based community while students learned about life in Japan where humans are the only resource and industry its lifeline.

"There's so much open space here and so many stars. At home you couldn't see the stars because there were always such bright lights from the city," she said.

Etsuko left a comfortable job with a trading company and put on hold a six-year relationship with admittedly little English and few expectations of what was ahead.

She's since mastered an impressive vocabulary and says she's dispelled quite a few misconceptions — both about Japan and Canada.

"I thought all Canadian people loved seafood because you always hear about Canadian seafood. But over the Rocky Mountains there (isn't a lot of) seafood."

She also said Canadians wrongfully believe the Japanese are rich.

Etsuko explains the cost of living is high — with theatres charging $15 and a cup of coffee as much as $7 — and many have trouble coping.

Etsuko will return in July with many fond memories of the wide-open spaces and friendly faces she says she has found during her stay.

"In Tokyo sometimes you don't know your next door neighbors. I will miss that here, and the space and elk and deer," she says. "Maybe I won't miss the forty-below zero weather."

She doubts she'll regain her job but says her ability to speak English — an important skill in Tokyo — will help her find a new job. And although she's loved Alberta, and hopes to travel eastward before returning home, she says this is the only trip overseas she plans to take.

"This is my one big trip from home," she says.

Etsuko Wako, right, learns a new way to play with a kami-kusen (Japanese paper balloon) when St. Anthony students place it over an air vent.

Cab driver totals vehicle

A 26-year-old Valley Cab driver was involved in a single vehicle accident on Highway 39, one and a half miles east of Alsa, last Tuesday.

David Hagen, who has been working for Valley Cab for about one and a half months, said the vehicle was a total writeoff.

He was alone in the vehicle at the time of the accident and was not injured.

"There was another vehicle pulled out in front of me but he never stopped," said Hagen.

He said he lost control and the car rolled a couple of times before landing upright in the ditch.

Hagen estimated the loss to be approximately $4,000.

Baptist Church hosts Thetis Island choir

A good turnout enjoyed the special service at Calvary Baptist Church last week when the Capernway Harbour Bible Centre was on hand to give a concert.

The Bible singers came from Thetis Island, BC, just off of Vancouver Island. This is the second visit they have made to the Baptist Church here, youth pastor Tim Lees said.

The special service and choir was actually organized by both the Baptist church and the Alliance Church, Lees said.

The choir also performed a number of untitled Biblical drama skits, all mime, for the congregation and Lees led a special service.

"Usually we hold our pioneer night Tuesday evenings but as the choir was here a service was held," he said.

Taxpayers do have rights

What are my rights and responsibilities as a Canadian taxpayer?

Canada's tax system is based on self-assessment.

On or before April 30 each year you must complete and file a tax return showing your income, deductions, personal amounts and the calculation of your tax payable. You must then pay any tax owing to Revenue Canada, Taxation by April 30 at the latest.

If you do not file a return when you owe income tax, or if you do not report your income or you falsify your return, you may be subject to fines.

However, you are always entitled to the following rights:

The right to obtain full and accurate information so you can complete your tax return correctly;

The right to fair, courteous and helpful treatment in all communications concerning your tax matters;

The right to have the information on your return protected and dealt with in confidence;

The right to be presumed honest unless proved otherwise;

The right to object to your assessment within the time allowed;

The right to have an independent review and to withhold payment of income tax you are disputing until Revenue Canada, Taxation or an independent tribunal has examined your case objectively;

And the right to legally plan your affairs in such a way as to pay the minimum tax possible.

Cancer canvass in April

During April volunteers will be canvassing for cancer. Valerie Cameron, coordinator of this year's cancer drive hopes to be more successful than in previous years.

Cameron, whose father died of cancer less than a year ago, felt compelled to organize this year's drive. There has not been any group or organization to volunteer their services to canvass the Drayton Valley area for the past two years.

Cameron pointed out that not only does the Cancer Society do research but also provides cancer patients with services beyond normal hospital care. All medical supplies are provided by the society for the individual.

To further assist Cameron with her efforts, give her a call at 542-2374 (home).

Stabilization deadline April

April 28 is an important deadline for producers who haven't enrolled in national tripartite red meat stabilization programs and would like to join the plans.

New participants in the national stabilization programs are being given this opportunity to enrol because the program has just become national in scope. Nine of 10 Canadian provinces are now signatories in the hog program and eight of 10 provinces are participating in the beef and sheep plans.

Because some amendments were made to the programs in the milestone agreement, some details of the specific stabilization programs have changed.

Feeder and slaughter cattle producers will benefit from adoption of a monthly support price calculation. While payments will continue to be made quarterly, if warranted, the support price will be calculated on a monthly basis.

This makes the program more responsive, especially to the producer who only sells once or twice a year. The monthly calculation means it will be possible to trigger payments for a particular month when prices may drop below the monthly support price.

Enrolment forms for the beef, hog and lamb national tripartite stabilization programs are available from Alberta Agriculture district offices.

Town council will consider BRTA meets street light request April 20

Town council has received a request for street lights along 47 Street between 45 and 46 Avenue.

That's at the first intersection east of the Turbo station and just west of the Evergreen school.

It's a busy intersection as it handles a lot of traffic in and out of Celebrity Heights.

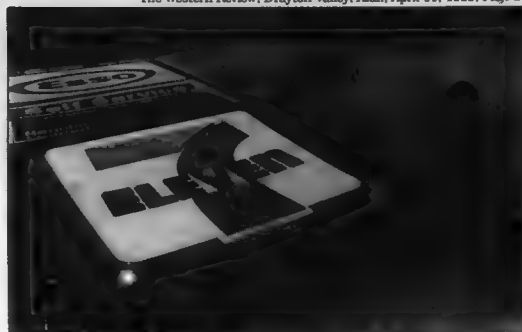

The request from Darlene Feniak, a concerned resident, will be considered in the 1989 operation budget.

Snow removal slips further every year

Mayor Bob Mayhew expressed his disappointment at the town's sidewalk snow removal policy that wasn't enforced enough this past winter.

The mayor made his feelings known during last Thursday's council meeting.

"If we have a policy enforce it, or throw it out," he stated. "Every year we seem to slip a little further," he added.

The mayor's comments came during a transportation committee report on snow removal.

The mayor took exception with the policy when he pointed out a lot of sidewalks hadn't been cleared in the commercial areas.

Councillor Dave Lundberg also questioned the cleaning of sidewalk routes to local schools.

"Students are walking on the streets. It's a real hazard. You spending time dodging students," he explained.

The transportation committee plans to review the sidewalk snow removal policy.

Big Brothers/Sisters recruiting this week

This week is Big Brothers and Big Sisters recruitment week.

The organization desperately needs big brothers and little sisters. Martina Wollin, executive director of the organization said.

Presently there are four big brothers and they have big sisters waiting to be matched up with little sisters.

"I know the need is there. In November we found there were 120 children from single families," Wollin said.

To build interest the group has been in touch with the schools, church groups, and ran advertisements.

"The problem is just that it takes time to get any program off the ground," she said.

Wollin says they have had positive comments from parents whose children are presently in the program.

"They tell me that it has made a great difference in their children's lives," she said.

Volunteers applying for big brother or big sister position go through an extensive screening process and police check, Wollin said.

Children from ages five to 16 are able to join as little brothers and sisters and can stay in the program until they reach 18.

Volunteers must be at least 18 years of age and the group would really like to get more seniors involved, Wollin said.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters will have a booth in the farmers' market in the Derrick Mall on April 12 and there will be a bicycle workshop April 15.

"The workshop is simply the big brothers and sisters teaching the little ones about taking care of bikes," she said.

Anyone interested in the program should get in touch with Martina Wollin at 642-5909 or write to Box 3087 Drayton Valley, T0E 0M0.

Consumers are getting fresh — home economist

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist
Consumers are increasingly demanding fresh products, especially produce.

In fact, between 1974 and 1984, Canadians increased their consumption of fresh vegetables by 33.8 per cent and fresh fruit by 7.9 per cent. A similar trend is seen in the United States. According to a survey of 1309 consumers, one-third are eating more fresh produce than they were a year ago.

With this in mind, it's easy to understand why so many consumers, particularly those with small children, have become concerned with pesticide use on fresh produce. A recent concern has been with the pesticide "Alar" on apples.

I recently received an article pertaining to this topic. The information was distributed through the Canadian Press wire from Ottawa, March 1989.

"The pesticide daminocide (trade name Alar) is a growth regulator sprayed on apples, peaches and grapes to promote freshness, reduce bruising and enhance color. The chemical is absorbed by the fruit so cannot be entirely removed by washing or peeling.

"Late in February 1989, the Natural Resources Defense Council in the United States, released findings of a study suggesting that traces of Alar in fruit cause cancer and nerve damage in children. However, the director of the Health and Welfare Department's Bureau of Chemical Safety said Canadian studies on Alar and its breakdown product, UDMH, do not support claims that children are in danger.

"Furthermore, Stephen Whitney of the Canadian Horticultural Council (an organization which represents Canadian fruit and vegetable growers) states use of Alar has been steadily decreasing. Growers know that consumers are afraid of pesticides. Most B.C. growers have stopped using Alar, and in fact, the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association asked all its suppliers last year to sign affidavits that they hadn't and wouldn't use Alar.

"Canadian standards set the acceptable exposure level for Alar at 30 parts per million. Testing has never turned up concentrations higher than one part per million. Random sampling of the 1988 B.C. crop failed to show Alar at one part per million, the smallest portion current testing can detect."

This provides a bit of comfort to those of us who are concerned about feeding our young children a balanced and nutritious diet. As parents we make choices based on their well being.

You may choose to continue to peel the apples your children eat, or to provide an alternate fruit.

New lighted crosswalks considered by council

Town council is looking at the installation of two lighted crosswalks.

A budget of $16,500 will be needed for the two projects.

The crosswalks to be considered during budget talks by the town include the corner of 48 Street and 50 Avenue (near the swimming pool) and the senior's crosswalk on 50th Avenue near the cemetery.

The cost of installing a crosswalk with street lights and traffic pole is $13,400. The cost to upgrade the senior citizen's walkway has been set at $2,785.

The estimated cost also includes $315 for contingencies.

The new light at the corner of 48 St. and 50 Ave. is expected to benefit the many school children who participate in programs at the pool.

Unique pieces from the past featured in Breton museum

By Susan Mosicki

Few villages can boast the kind of historical background the village of Breton can, and few have preserved that history.

Breton, however, formed an historical society that decided a museum was a must.

"There was a lot of history around here that needed to be preserved," said Olga Reade, Breton and District Historical Society secretary.

According to Reade, the purpose of the museum is to preserve black history, agriculture and logging, and the advent of the oil patch into the area.

"Out of four areas (in Alberta) that had a black history, this is the only one that has a museum," said Reade.

Don Gillies, director, said the blacks came from Oklahoma in 1905. He said they came because, even though they were free (no longer slaves), they were very poorly treated in Oklahoma.

Gillies said Breton was previously called Keystone, and said the village site was chosen because of good availability of water (spring water) for locomotives hauling logs.

Breton and District Historical Museum features an old school room setting and a log cabin setting, both of which, although not exactly as they would have been, are intended to give a person an idea of how the early settlers would have lived.

The museum also features many unique pieces from the past.

Reade said the museum has a small metal horse which is believed to be a toy from the 1800s.

"It was found on the field of one of the original black settlers," said Gillies.

The one-room house effect is realistic in the cabin setting, and one can almost picture the early settler sitting down to a meal, or lighting the wood cookstove to provide warmth and comfort.

As well, it isn't hard to picture children laughing and learning in the old school room setting.

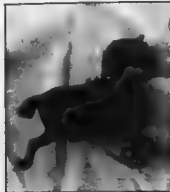

The public is invited to see the unusual antiques and browse through the cabin and schoolroom settings on the second and third Monday of every month.

"I think I was always interested in local history," said Allan Goddard, president. "I like to see it preserved. They (people) said it (Breton) would die when the logging industry died."

But Breton lives on, both in the hearts of the people who live there, and through preservation of its history by the museum:

Pre-Second World War chair.

Toy believed to be from the 1800's; actual size approximately three-by-four inches.

Curriers bought their own stones in 1951-52.

Allan Goddard shows a microscope brought from England more than 100 years ago.

Don Gillies displays a nerve bridle. It was used in the past to restrain a horse. It worked on a nerve behind the horse's ear.

Underwood typewriter from Winfield CPR station.

Old farm tools.

Cabin setting presents a realistic one-room house effect.

Home of the Week

Architect's dream features open beams, vaulted ceilings, ceramic floor tiles, marble floor in bathroom, trac lighting, and much, much more!

This unique, Cape Cod-style house was an architect's dream come true! The chance to design a truly innovative and modern styled home for people who really appreciated it.

The current trend toward open airiness with large, spacious rooms is exemplified here. Open beams and vaulted ceilings expand rooms from the main floor to lofts overlooking the kitchen and dining areas.

Paired doors off the dining area open onto a three-tiered deck into a bright and sunny backyard. Ample space is provided for a large garage with enough room for the kids to play.

Extensive upgrading is apparent throughout this home as witnessed by excellent quality carpets and ceramic floor tiles. The main bath features a marble floor and designer taps and faucets. Custom built cabinets in a European design give clean, unbroken lines to the kitchen work space. Trac lighting, strategically placed, brightens and accent focal points from above.

Dad will be pleased to know the yard work has all been planned for him by an architect and blueprints are available. An artist's concept of a suitable garage design is also available.

This one-of-a-kind home is listed at $104,900. For viewing call Venture Realty at 542-4800.

Inspection checklist available to aid new-home buyers

The 1987 movie, The Money Pit, portrayed a happy young couple moving into their dream house only to watch it begin to self-destruct, piece by piece, moments after they crossed the threshold.

While the movie was a comedy, the reality of living in a poorly constructed house can be financially and emotionally tragic.

If you know what to look for and where to go for advice, assessing the quality of a dwelling is not difficult and is well worth the effort.

Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation has published an inspection checklist to help potential home buyers determine the overall quality of a home. CMHC staff members are also well-versed in the technical requirements of sound construction.

While you don't have to be an expert to notice things like dampness, peeling and cracked paint, and uneven floors, there may be some questions best put to the professionals.

In the case of a new home, find out if the builder is registered with a provincial new home warranty program. If so, to what extent are you covered against defects?

In Ontario, all residential builders are required to be registered under the program. In other provinces membership is voluntary.

To obtain a CMHC inspection checklist, write to CMHC, 682 Montreal Road, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0P7.

Reform party takes case to bank

Joe and Jillian Smith from Drayton Valley want to buy a new home. But with the Bank of Canada's high-interest policy, they simply can't afford it.

The same goes for many Western Canadian small businesses and farmers, who want to expand with a growing economy, but find they simply can't afford the interest charges being asked by Canada's chartered banks.

The federal Reform party is picking up the battle standard and taking on the Bank of Canada.

"We would very much like to know precisely who you rely on in making your policy decisions concerning interest rate levels, as well as the kinds of life experiences and perspectives they bring to their jobs," writes Reform party leader and Yellowhead candidate in the past federal election, Preston Manning.

This was in a four-page letter addressed to Governor of the Bank of Canada John Crow.

Manning went on to criticize the Bank of Canada's approach to solving what they perceive as a problem with national inflation, which in fact is only occurring in the over-heated economies of southern Ontario and Quebec. Alberta's inflation rate last year was only three per cent.

"We believe that the bank's current policy addresses the problems of prosperity in one part of the country at the cost of worsening the real problems of all the other parts," writes Manning.

Even while the federal government is penalizing areas of the country like the West, Manning points out that its regional development spending actually increased by 71 per cent last year, "at the total expense of other provinces." Federal purchases in Ontario and Quebec are running at levels three and four times per capita higher than the Alberta level, while the federal spending budget allocated for Alberta is running at a surplus.

Reform party supporters recently took their case directly to the Bank of Canada, demonstrating outside of the bank's Calgary offices.

Manning's letter was delivered to the Calgary office at the end of the demonstration.

Rates vary in custom cattle survey

A survey of custom cattle service rates has recently been completed by Alberta Agriculture.

Yardage rates for backgrounding calves, calves to finish and yearlings to finish all fell within 11 to 16 cents per day range.

Livestock hauling rates varied with distance hauled and type of transport. For example, a possum belly liner going between 50 and 100 miles would cost between $2.50 and $3.25 per loaded mile. The same distance ranged between $2.40 and $2.75 per loaded mile for a straightliner and $2 and $2.25 in a body truck.

Type of equipment usually determines the rate range for custom corral cleaning. The rate for loaders, three spreaders and four to five operators fell in a range between $150 and $190 per hour. The rate for one loader, two spreaders and two to three operators was between $100 and $145 per hour in the survey.

Fencing rates for three or four wire, labor and equipment ranged between $1,100 and $1,400 per mile. Post pounding, with equipment and two operators, ranged between $40 and $55 per hour. Fence removal rates ranged between $400 and $600 per hour.

Summer highway reports valuable aid to motorists

The AMA highway conditions report has started its summer schedule.

The summer highway report provides information on construction and repair activity, closures and environmental factors affecting main highways in Alberta and neighboring areas.

Reports are prepared every Friday and Monday morning, with updates recorded when conditions change.

The RCMP and Alberta Transportation continue to provide valuable assistance with the compilation of these reports.

Following is a list of AMA highway conditions report information numbers throughout the province:

Edmonton 471-6056; Calgary 246-5853; Red Deer 342-6611; Lethbridge 320-7623; Medicine Hat 527-3664; Grande Prairie 532-0148.

The AMA also provides Alberta information to WeatherNow, the 24-hour specialty channel available to cable television subscribers in the province.

Lighting fixtures recalled

Danbel Industries and Canadian Standards Association (CSA) are warning owners of incandescent wall-mounted fixtures catalogue number WB-43 to stop using them immediately and return the fixtures because of a potential shock hazard.

The fixture consists of a four-and-a-half-inch canopy which is secured over the wall outlet box. A lampholder is secured to a U-shaped metal bracket which also provides a mounting surface for an eight-inch diameter round shield.

There is a potential shock hazard when the fixture is being fitted with a light bulb. An insulating compound over the lead terminals located on the back of the lampholder was omitted during assembly of these units.

If you own one of these wall-mounted fixtures, disconnect the power before removing, package it securely and return it to the point of sale.

Most children's accidents could have been prevented

The second annual national Child Safety Week will be held April 16-22.

This year's theme is 'Child safety: a shared responsibility'.

The objective is to draw attention of the government, industry and consumers to their shared responsibility in product/safety issues.

Last year almost 3000 children under five years of age were treated in the emergency rooms of six hospitals that participate in the department's accident injury reporting program. This is only a small portion of all the children seeking treatment in doctors' offices and emergency rooms following accidents.

Many of these accidents could have been prevented, with extra care by parents, by caregivers, by everyone.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada develops and enforces regulations and promotes voluntary standards concerning the safety of consumer products, with a special emphasis on children's products.

Computer navigation wave of the future

Satellite navigation, smoother transmissions and "head up" displays will be features of the automobiles of the 1990s.

For passenger cars, computer navigation is the real wave of the future. With in-car computers, drivers will get information from satellites or highway radio beacons. Officials can warn motorists of congestion by sending messages to cars or changeable traffic signs.

Already, a California experimental-system lets highway sensors transmit information to cars. And Tokyo is testing a system that will give drivers current traffic and weather conditions, tourist information, and help them find a place to park.

In Europe last year, 1000 cars were equipped to receive messages from infra-red beacons mounted at intersections and on highway signs. The test is part of a project involving 14 European automakers.

Two Japanese car companies have introduced high-tech features that new-car shoppers will find on many other cars in the future.

The 1989 Subaru Justy has a continuously variable automatic transmission (CVT) which eliminates the lurching of normal gear shifting. It also increases fuel economy, because it uses only the most efficient engine speed. CVT makes small low-powered engines feel much peppier.

At Nissan, "head-up" display is available on Maxima and 240SX. This digital display of car speed is reflected on the windshield and appears to be a few inches ahead of the window glass. On 1989 Nissan cars the display shows only speed, but future versions could have more information.

Passive protection

On another safety front, the U.S. Department of Transportation says by 1990 100 per cent of new cars sold will have some kind of driver-side passive protection (air bags or automatic seat belts), extending to the passenger side by 1993.

Read the last chapter first

By Pastor John Martens
DV Pentecostal Assembly

Have you ever known someone who always reads the last chapter of a book first?

Maybe they find some comfort while reading of the conflicts of the plot if they know that somehow, the author is going to bring the protagonist to a comfortable solution. I've got to admit, I'm a lot like that. No, I don't read the last page of a novel first, but I do like to know, for my own life, that everything is going to work out.

When I look at the last chapter of the Bible, I get that kind of comfort. Revelation chapter 22 closes God's written revelation of the salvation that is found in Jesus Christ, with a vision of the scene in heaven. The people of God will be with Him; they will see God's face; His name will be on them; they will reign with him for ever and ever.

Facing life's conflicts knowing how the last chapter of my life eternal will read gives me a great deal of comfort, and also some added durability in the face of extreme stress. This is no credit to myself; the Bible talks of the blessings that come from having a security in Christ.

Firstly, having a scriptural vision of your eternal destiny can give you hope. When a person comes to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ they have a hope they would not otherwise have. This hope provides some crucial resources for overcoming the hassles of life. Secondly, certainty in Christ produces a sense of dedication to a cause. When you know where you are going in life it becomes easy to be determined. I'll call this quality faith. The faith that comes from hope produces diligence in serving God and dedication to His calling. Because of this kind of faith the disciples left all they owned to serve Jesus wholeheartedly.

Thirdly, having a vision of eternal blessings with the servants of the Lord in the presence of God inspires the virtue of love. Morality has its basis in the eternal destiny of God's people. If there was to be no eternal relationship, what possible reason could there be to have a self-sacrificing love for another person? Hope in Christ, who was the ultimate example of one giving up His rights for the rights of others, produces the same quality of care and compassion for others.

Often it has been written that without a vision the people perish. Perhaps you find yourself without a firm grasp of where you are going with your life — and you feel that sense of hopelessness dragging you deeper into the pit of fear and frustration.

Take a look at the last chapter of the Bible today and call out to Jesus; take a hold of the promises He has made for you and don't let go. In Him you'll find the reason for hope, and He'll never let you down. You too can know the last chapter of your life even before it is written by your biographer.

Disaffection for premier widespread in province

Premier Don Getty is smart in seeking another seat in the Alberta Legislature.

It's the right thing for the premier, for the province and for his party.

The Progressive Conservatives won a strong mandate to govern on March 20, even though some items on Premier Getty's personal agenda took a thumping.

Until he announced his decision the government was in limbo. If Premier Getty had decided to step down now, it would have remained in limbo for an unacceptably long time.

The government has issues to study and legislation to pass. The province is now operating on money authorized by special warrant, meaning it has not been scrutinized or authorized by elected representatives. That should not be acceptable in a democratic society, except in emergencies.

Normally, by this time of the year, the provincial treasurer has a budget prepared for the coming year. But that has not happened yet, and it wouldn't happen if the PCs had to put everything on cruise control to pick a new leader.

Now that he has made his decision, Premier Getty can choose a cabinet, win a safe rural seat — possibly Stettler — and get on with the business of governing.

He can also start the process of renewing his party.

It's clear the Progressive Conservatives are in deep trouble in the two big cities. They won only two of 17 seats in Edmonton, and the Liberals made great inroads in Calgary.

The voters of Edmonton Whitened were probably just as surprised as the rest of the province to discover what they had done on March 20. It's a fair bet that hundreds of them voted against the premier to protest some of his dumb statements and policy announcements, never thinking he would actually be defeated.

But disaffection with the premier is widespread throughout urban Alberta.

By holding power now,

Premier Getty can set the stage for a graceful exit and leadership convention two years down the road.

If he had stepped down now, his replacement would have had to come from the ranks of sitting MLAs.

That would have left almost all the contenders from Edmonton, and potentially strong Calgaryans like John Zaozorny and Ron Ghitter denied a chance to turn the Tory ship around.

We're on Your Horizon!

We're looking for a few special kids like Steven.

And we need your help. It takes time, caring, commitment and special people like 12-year-old Steven Uweazy to make a community a great place to live.

Grime and grit real enemies of carpet

By Samia Vallemand

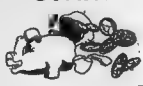

Have you been told that vacuuming a carpet helps keep it from wearing out prematurely? Most of us know this is true. But, just how thoroughly should the job be done?

The mud and soil — including dust, soot and pollen — that lies on top of the carpet can be picked up by a light sweeping with the vacuum. A light job consists of three strokes — forward, backward and forward again.

Deep-seated grime and grit are the real enemies of carpets, however. Particles settle down at the "roots" of the carpet fibres. Massaged by the passing of traffic, they wear away at fibre, matting the pile and dulling the finish and color. The damage will vary with the type of dirt.

Only a thorough sweeping will remove the most deep-seated grime. A complete cleaning may take up to seven strokes of the vacuum head. It is good practice to do this every week or two. Contrary to popular belief a carpet cannot be over-vacuumed. It is dirt that damages a carpet fibre — not cleaning.

The type of machine used will of course affect the cleaning job. A vacuum with strong suction and a brush and beater bar to comb the dirt up is recommended. Always make sure the beater bar is properly adjusted for the depth of pile. Effective carpet cleaning also depends on the sweeping technique. Move the machine wand slowly.

Well, now that we know how to do the job correctly, we just have to figure out a way of making it fun!

Did you know that under the Highway Traffic Act, an abandoned vehicle is described as a vehicle left standing on public or private property for more than 72 hours without the express or implied consent of the owner or person in lawful possession or control of the property?

Survey summary available

Hiring custom operators can be an economic alternative to machinery ownership.

If the equipment is for occasional use, specialized work or for only a short time period, then a custom operator's services might be more financially sound than buying equipment.

Each year Alberta Agriculture surveys and compiles custom operator rates.

Custom services can start with cultivating at a range between $3.50 and $5.50/ac. Rates for other spring work include harrowing at $1.75 to $2.50/ac, granular fertilizer application at $2.75 to $3/ac, and herbicide application at $2.50 to $3/ac.

Mowing and conditioning hay rates start at $7/ac. up to $10/ac. Square baling rates in the survey were between 30 and 40 cents per bale. Stacking and hauling ranged between 20 and 30 cents per bale.

Harvesting rates are more expensive. Swathing rates ranged between $4.50 and $6/ac. and combining between $12 and $14/ac. Round baling rates ranged between $5 and $6 per bale with stacking and hauling at $1 to $2 per bale.

The 1989 annual survey summary is available from Alberta Agriculture district offices.

Mill escapes potential disaster

Two town fire crews responded to Pelican Spruce Mills late Saturday afternoon when a company crew decided the worst of four spot fires that day posed too much of a threat to risk fighting with their own waning water supplies. The fires started Saturday morning when wind blew sparks from a burner on to lumber piles. Plant manager Percy Champagne said a potentially dangerous and costly fire was avoided because smoke was detected early and workers monitored the piles throughout the day. He said this is the first such fire in the mill's history.

Federal tax angers local businessmen

By Belinda Atkinson

Local businessmen see the proposed federal sales tax as another instance of the East profiting at the expense of the West.

"It's the same old story of the whole Canadian economy being based on Central Canada," said Neil Kjørli, owner of Wofab Custom Cabinets.

Kjørli is one of the few area manufacturers who the federal government claims will gain in 1991 when a broad-based sales tax replaces the existing manufacturers' tax.

Kjørli's expenses will be cut by two to three per cent, according to reports, and allow him to be more competitive while consumers attack the $29-billion-a-year deficit at the till.

But Kjørli says the manufacturing-based eastern provinces will benefit while his firm's cost reductions will be lost in a user tax.

The result, he says, will be a blow directly to the pocketbook of the average, working-class Albertan.

Businessmen interviewed last week said Alberta consumers will be furious if the federal government introduces an open sales tax.

Consumers, they said, take great pride in their status as the only tax-free province in Canada.

"So many people have lived in other provinces and had to pay sales tax but the true Albertan is not going to be happy," said Lorne Kvale, major owner of Rocky Mountain Furniture.

Although opposed to the whole idea of a sales tax, Kvale said if it's necessary to reduce the federal deficit, it had better be hidden in the price tag.

A report last week suggested the federal government is considering hiding the new tax.

The provinces may be in favor of doing so, according to an Edmonton Journal article, because it would be difficult to determine how

Kindergarten meeting doesn't satisfy parents

By Sue Kenyon

Parents did not seem completely satisfied after holding a special meeting with the school board to discuss the kindergarten issue.

Most parents were waiting until Wednesday to see registration results.

"This is going to be just like an election," Howard Pearson, principal of Eldorado school where the public ECS is to be installed, he said.

Last Monday night, before registration, about 50 parents showed up to the special meeting called by the school board to discuss the ECS issue. Many parents seem to be either against a public kindergarten or they are against the program being placed as early as September 1989.

Both sides of the argument were voiced Monday. Although the majority who addressed the board seemed against the public kindergarten, there were a respectable number of parents who were pleased with the board's decision to implement the program this coming fall.

Vi Helm, chairman of the Twin Rivers school board, said although it may have seemed like a "hasty" decision to implement the ECS in Eldorado school, the issue had been discussed in depth.

Helm said the reason why the public meeting came after the decision was made was due to the fine time-line the board had to meet.

Speed-limit proposal too fast for Lodepole residents

By Frank Ryan

Chief Whitelock is not happy with the new speed limits the MD is proposing for the Lodepole highway.

Whitelock took his plea for lower speed limits on Highway 620 to the MD council last Monday.

"It's unsafe at the present time," he told council.

In his brief Whitelock outlined five incidents involving school buses.

Reeve Henry Rondeau replied that a letter had been sent to the minister asking for some sort of guarantee the highway would be rebuilt.

"It sounds like it will be next year," Rondeau added. Later in the MD agenda and in the absence of any representatives of the Highway 620 Advocates, an organization Whitelock is president of, a bylaw was introduced that contained a number of speed limit recommendations for the area.

When Whitelock was informed by The Western Review the MD was proposing 100 km during the day and 90 km at night he remarked, "I will not be satisfied with that."

Whitelock did say he would be satisfied if the MD decided to lower both the day and evening speed limits to 90 km.

He is also very concerned with the poor policing on the highway and the lack of controls on the truck overloads.

"I don't feel I am the police officer that looks after the road. I'm a farmer," he explained.

At the present time, Mike Anderson, the MD's special

CBC-TV, based in Edmonton, conducted a series of interviews in Drayton Valley last Thursday on the mill and some of its related problems.

Mayor Bob Mayhew, Councillor Tom McGee and Frank Ryan, editor of The Western Review were amongst those interviewed.

It is not known when the special will be aired.

Bylaw enforcement officer Dave Turner is busy finalizing plans for the town's annual spring cleanup campaign May 1-6.

The basketball court located at the Evergreen school and the Rotary Park tennis courts were busy last week...a sure sign that spring has sprung.

Town council met behind closed doors last week to discuss budget matters.

The April 3 edition of Alberta Report contained an article featuring Yellowhead MP Joe Clark and Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

The town is eligible to receive $723,500 from the Basic Street Improvement program and another $54,900 from the Community Safe Street program.

The transportation committee is looking at its entire safety program after a town employee and vehicle were involved in an accident.

The MD has decided to sell a K-350 packer to Arrow-West Industries for $32,100 and two Fiat Allis model 262B motor scrapers for $45,150 each to Barger Equipment Ltd.

Only six people attended the recent open house to hear about the Drayton Valley airport vicinity protection area regulation plan.

Const. Art Servante was watching for speeders last week along Hwy 22.

Speeders not only problem says resident constable, is still without a vehicle.

RCMP Staff-Sgt. Jim Humphrey says that while Anderson will have the authority to hand out speeding tickets, that won't be his only job.

Concern about speed limits on that highway is something Humphrey is interested in hearing more about.

While Humphrey says he's never heard from the Highway 630 Advocates, the local RCMP detachment has logged a lot of complaints.

Most of these related to the Violet Grove area. "Very few complained about overweight or heights," the RCMP staff sergeant stated.

"It would be nice to hear from these people. Even the bus drivers if they have a concern," he added.

The MD is scheduled to give the necessary second and third readings to their speed limit bylaw at the April 26 meeting.

Whitelock says he will be in attendance to voice his concerns once again.

Proposed Amoco well not welcome

By Sue Kenyon
Amoco Canada representatives were in Rocky Rapids last week to discuss with residents their concerns over a proposed water source well Amoco wants to dig.

Residents began complaining about the proposal after learning that Amoco expects to pump 60 gallons of water a minute, out of the well. Rocky Rapids citizens feel it may affect the amount of water available in the future.

After the first portion of the meeting which lasted almost two hours, MLA Tom Thurber voiced his concern which many of the 60 people attending seemed to share.

"I too have a problem with the depth of the well you are proposing. I just hope that you will be able to prove, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that this will not affect neighboring wells," Thurber said to Amoco representatives.

Don Smith, chairperson of the meeting and public affairs representative for Albertans want to keep tax-free status

much was going to either level of government.

Business and consumer groups in Ottawa, however, argue the tax must be visible if the government is to be accountable to Canadians.

Bob Best, of the Consumers' Association of Canada, said buyers aren't aware that the federal government's share of sales tax has doubled since 1984 with revenue increasing from $5.89 to $12.93 billion.

That is the precisely the reason Home Hardware manager Alex Blais wants the sales tax added on at the till.

It will mean more work for retailers, he says, but will also wake Albertans up to the fact they already have sales tax.

"It's a psychological thing.

Many people still believe we don't have a sales tax but of course that isn't true," he said.

Blais says he'd rather see the government cut spending but "they can't seem to do that."

Kjorlien, however, says the government could easily cut expenses if it stopped doling money out to foreign aide.

"Let the charity start at home," he says.

Newly elected MLA Tom Thurber says the deficit is not the result of foreign aide but a tab for the numerous services Canadians expect the government to provide.

"I don't like it," Thurber says. "But you have to understand most of the debt has evolved from the needs or wants of the public."

Kindergarten discussions indepth — schoolboard

"We had to reach a decision by April 1, which was the advertising deadline. That deadline was not made by the board but by the private kindergartens," Helm said.

Janice Kos, a concerned parent said the main issue seems to be busing, and why can't transportation be offered to the private ECS rather than bringing in public kindergarten.

Helm said that although busing is a main issue it is not the only one. She said that by having public ECS in Eldorado school, they hope students will continue in the public system.

Another parent, Susan

Reid, asked where exactly the meeting would go. She wanted to know if there was any chance the board would reverse its decision of implementing public kindergarten.

Helm told Reid the decision was made.

Reid asked if the board was merely appeasing the parents by holding the meeting.

"We were asked in a petition to hold this meeting, and so we are holding it," Helm told her.

Alvina Sperling wanted to know if there was any attempt made to survey parents before deciding on implementing public kindergarten.

"That is an easy question to answer. There was no attempt made at all. We had a petition signed by 60 parents in favor of it and there seemed to be support for it," Dr. George Bevan, superintendent, said.

A parent from Lindale, Debbie Goddard, told the board she has been very pleased with the public ECS in Lindale.

"I can't see why people are against the public ECS. We (parents) have just as much involvement with our children in the public kindergarten and our children are just as educated as the next," Goddard said.

The issue of portables is another touchy subject with some parents. Many parents attending the meeting made it clear to the board they did not like the idea of their children having to suffer bad weather conditions by walking outside to reach classes in portables.

One parent however was in favor of the use of portables.

"I don't think any children have died from running back and forth from a portable to the school. I felt better actually when my kids were in portables because they are more secluded and therefore have better concentration," she told the board.

How assessment affects your taxes

In our first article in this series on assessment, we reviewed the history of assessment and how the process evolved in Alberta. In today's article we'll take a closer look at how assessment relates to taxes, review recent changes to the rural assessment legislation and see how they may affect your taxes this year, and finally look behind the scenes to learn what's involved in becoming an assessor.

Many people seem to feel that "assessment" is synonymous with "taxes".

Not so. Assessment is just one of two important factors the municipality uses in determining taxes — but the confusion of terms highlights an important clue to understanding the whole issue. This clue lies in the roles and responsibilities of the municipal government, and the rules and responsibilities of the assessor.

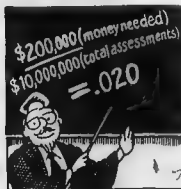

The role of the government

The municipal government is elected to guide the progress and direction of the community. The most visible and contentious challenge they face is determining the budget for the year. Here, they have to respond to two conflicting demands. On one hand, we want to have modern and sophisticated services, want to travel on well maintained roads, want our children to receive the best possible level of schooling, and want first-rate fire protection and police protection.

On the other hand, taxpayers want their governments to keep the budget in a minimum to keep taxes down to a realistic level. In times like these, where every penny counts, people want to be sure they're not paying a penny more than necessary on taxes.

Every year, council sits down to draft a budget based on the services they know they have to provide, and the improvements they feel necessary. This gives them the total operating budget. The Province of Alberta provides funds for many services. Grants to municipalities help support schools, roads and hospitals. The balance of the operating budget is collected from taxpayers.

To determine what share each property owner will contribute through taxes, this balance is divided by the total assessment in the community.

That figure of .020 leads us to the point where much confusion lies. It is the ratiodered mill rate. While it varies according to how much money is required and the total value of the assessment roll, it is the factor by which property taxes will be determined.

A tax rate of 10 mills would mean that tax would total $10 for every thousand dollars of assessed value of property. For example, if an assessment was $50,000, the tax formula would look like this:

$$\begin{aligned} $50,000 \times .020 &= $1,000 \\ (\text{Assessed Value} \times \text{Mill Rate}) &= \text{Taxes} \end{aligned}$$

The role of the assessor

Assessors follow a certification program similar to that of accountants and other professionals. First, they must obtain a diploma from a recognized university, or college or a certificate in Municipal Assessment from the University of Alberta. Then they put in four years of related work experience with on-the-job training courses. Finally, candidates must complete and pass a Demonstration Assessment Report, much as professional appraisers do. Only on completion of all these steps does a candidate achieve the status of an Accredited Municipal Assessor of Alberta (A.M.A.A.). Training, which combines legal studies with economic studies and appraisal techniques, produces people with sound judgement and the ability to work well with other people. And, of course, assessors undergoing their apprenticeship always work under the close supervision of an A.M.A.A. When you meet the assessor, as you may during a General Assessment, feel free to ask questions.

How the assessor values your property depends on where you live. While it is impossible to account for all the variables which affect assessments, these two "scenarios" illustrate fairly typical situations, one in a rural area and one in an urban area.

Scenario One:

You live in a rural area, and can expect to see dramatic changes to your assessment as a direct result of legislation introduced in 1980. These changes were designed to bring assessments up to date and make them easier to understand and compute.

Value is determined in one of two ways. Farmland's assessed according to its productive value from an agricultural standpoint and is related to what an owner should pay for the land if its only use is agricultural. So development or recreational potential are not included, while soil quality and other variables are considered in the assessment of farmland. Other rural lands assessed according to its site, use and value.

Basically, the new levels of value for rural municipalities will be calculated on these new guidelines. Farmland will be assessed to a maximum of $218 per acre (Dryland Acre 1984 Manual), $179 per acre (Dryland Pasture 1984 Manual). Yarps Buildings are exempt to the extent they are used for farming purposes.

Farm Residences Legislative changes for the taxation of Farm Residences are currently under review. When the regulations have been approved additional information will be sent to the municipalities.

Non-Farmland A. Where a parcel is less than three acres, it is assessed at 65% of its value.

B. Where a parcel is larger than three acres, only the first three acres (for the larger area actually in use) are assessed at 65% of market value. The balance is assessed at farmland rates.

Non-Farm Residences are valued at 65% of replacement cost.

Commercial Buildings and Industrial Installations are valued at 65% of replacement cost.

While these new levels reflect major changes, they are being applied equally throughout the municipality and across the province during all General Assessments. So while assessments may rise, the municipality's mill rate may drop correspondingly, depending on budget requirements.

Scenario Two:

If you live in an urban area, the assessor will value your land in relation to the selling price of similar properties in similar areas. This is the basic criteria for arriving at a value, and reflects such key factors as local zoning conditions, traffic levels in and around your property, and the availability of such facilities as schools, shopping centres and churches. Homes and other buildings on your property are called "improvements". These are valued by estimating what it would cost to replace them. Buildings (improvements) are valued at a consistent formula which is standard throughout Alberta. Older buildings are valued the same way, but the assessor will deduct an amount for depreciation. To arrive at a total assessment, the assessor simply adds 65% of the replacement cost of your home to 65% of the value of your land.

Here's how it works:

You live in an urban area, and own a new bungalow built on a standard-sized lot.

The assessor calculates the replacement cost of your home.

1200 sq ft @ $50.00 per sq ft $60,000
65% of the $60,000 replacement cost $39,000

The assessor then calculates the value of your land.

Market value $40,000
65% of market value $26,000
Your new assessment $39,000 + $26,000 $65,000

As it has been years since a General Assessment was last conducted, this figure may be six to ten times higher than last year's assessment on the same property. While the current assessments may seem surprisingly high, remember that inflation over the past decade has seen prices skyrocket. Also, as the assessment calculations are being applied consistently to all property in the municipality, every property owner's assessment will reflect these changes. In fact, the total assessment on which the municipality calculates taxes will increase accordingly. This will in all likelihood mean that the mill rate will drop and taxes will change only in relation to the municipality's budget needs.

The role of the property owner

Because owners can dispute their assessments — but not their taxes — close attention must be paid to the notice of assessment when it arrives. If an owner disagrees with the assessment, he or she must make a complaint during the month of January, or within 60 days of the mailing of assessment notices.

If you're still confused, you'll be pleased to know that the third and final article in our series deals with how to make a complaint and an appeal on an assessment.

Note: A public information meeting will be held to give property owners "all the answers" about General Assessments. For details, check the advertisement in this paper or call the Municipal Secretary.

Lack of awareness of our facilities

The Drayton Valley Ski Club recently completed one of their most successful seasons ever. Snow-wise that is.

A number of promotions toward the end of their 56-day season is expected to help the club meet their financial obligations.

The lack of skiers, other than for the special promotions is something that bothers ski club president Dale Rendflesh. As a result, the ski club executive is already looking at ways to create more awareness of their excellent facility.

Using the downhill ski club as an excellent example, Rendflesh says Drayton Valley has a lot of 'good' facilities.

Some of these include:

- Pembina Nordic trails
- Drayton Sports Centre
- Park Valley indoor pool
- Lions Evergreen rodeo
- Amateur sports of all sorts
- Trade Fair
- Pembina Consortium
- New library
- New administration complex
- Brazeau recreation area

A common problem many of these 'attractions' suffer from, is the lack of awareness.

It's a problem the chamber might be interested in tackling. Short of that, a promotions committee might be an alternative.

Whatever publicity they can generate, would help with the image of the community, and show others that we really do have a lot of good facilities.

Perhaps town should check out business bylaw

Mayor Bob Mayhew is unhappy with the way in which the town's sidewalk snow removal bylaw was enforced this past winter.

He wants to see some changes.

It's a subject we talked about on a number of occasions in this space.

However, it's not the only bylaw that needs some action.

Another one is the town's business licences, as it pertains to out-of-town businesses.

Some of the problems surfaced during a recent incident in town.

The bylaw enforcement officer was called at noon on a Wednesday by a local

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

businessman to see if an out-of-town business that had set up in the Derrick Mall had a business licence.

It was related to the caller that the bylaw enforcement officer was on holidays. So the call was transferred to the licencing department.

They said 'nay' to a business licence, and indicated they would contact the RCMP to enforce the bylaw.

Unfortunately, it was after 3 p.m. that day the out-of-town business was shut down.

The following morning (Thursday), that unnamed out-of-town businessman went to the town office to get a licence.

As the story goes, he just asked to rent space and got away with paying $50. It should have been $25 per day.

It's obvious from all this, the town should have more than one person checking on licences. And, that all the necessary questions are asked about the licence.

Instead of collecting $125 for a five-day licence, the town missed out on $75.

Amoco promises responsibility for well

Amoco said if tests of the well did not work out to their expectations, they would abandon the project and find another alternative.

"There are a number of alternatives, the water source well being one of them. If it doesn't work out economically, environmentally or for the community then we will have to find another way," he said.

Jake Bueckert, district manager of Amoco in Drayton Valley explained their previous pumping station at the North Saskatchewan river has flooded twice, leaving expensive damage behind. Instead of rebuilding to be possibly flooded out again, they want to dig the water source well.

Amoco representatives said repeatedly through the meeting that if any neighboring well was affected adversely from their pumping, it would be Amoco's responsibility.

Roger Clieco, ground water consultant explained that due to recharge, the water level would not be affected over time from the water source well.

"Recharge occurs in the spring when the frost seeps down into the ground. Once the soil is replenished, the remaining water seeps further and this is recharge," he explained.

Mailing may be cheaper, but Pony Express faster

Dear Editor,

One hundred and twenty-six years ago the Pony Express mail delivery was started between St. Joseph, Missouri and Sacramento, California — a distance of 1,920 miles.

This run was made in 239 hours with a basic charge of $1 per item. Unfortunately there was no such thing as subsidies the so after one-and-a-half years the business folded, putting close to 200 people out of work.

If the Pony Express were operating today between Drayton Valley and Whitecourt we could have our mail delivered in 10 hours for $1.

The cost of mailing is much less today but due to progress and modern inconveniences, it takes 17 times as long — 168 hours for my mail to make the trip.

Rockin', rollin' night enjoyed by very few

Dear Editor,

Where are all the kids? Was there something else going on that we weren't aware of? Maybe 12-17 year olds have other interests on a Friday night.

Rocky Rapids decided our young people are worth going the extra mile! We sponsored a teen dance April 7 with K9's Wired for Sound. The price was right, only $3 each, and pop and chips were for sale cheap. We had only 50 kids show up!

Why didn't we get a better turnout? The ones who did come had a great time; that hall was really rockin' and rollin'.

Maybe parents didn't feel like driving three miles each way?

Thanks for your time.

Local sunbathers bashful?

American swimwear magazines are proclaiming "Bare it all" this summer but Drayton Valley consumers aren't taking the dare.

In fact, local swimmers and sun worshippers are even more bashful than Edmonton buyers, according to Dorothy Rendflesh, manager/owner of Mar Ne's Fashions.

"I think they are more conservative than in Edmonton," she says. "I don't know the reason, maybe it's just that there are so many more people in the city so they (retailers) get a greater variety of requests."

Rendflesh does stock two-piece suits (approximately one-quarter of her selection) but the cuts tend to be less revealing and designs less exotic than trends shown in magazines and at spring fashion shows.

Her manufacturers — Sen Queen and Christina — carry the skimpy styles but Rendflesh says it's not economical to put them on the rack.

"There are some pretty exotic types but we can't sell them," she says.

Rather than bare it all to neighbors and friends, Rendflesh says customers prefer a simple, one-piece suit with a low-cut leg that will stand up to a lot of movement in the swimming pool.

She says two material blends — cotton and polyester and nylon and spandex — make up the majority of her stock because of their resistance to chlorine.

"I guess none of us wants to be seen at home"

Rendflesh does say, however, that local buyers often go to a more daring style and cut when purchasing for summer vacations.

"If they're going away, they tend to be a little more brave. I guess none of us wants to be seen at home," she guesses.

Chamber dinner April 26

The local chamber of commerce will host a dinner April 26 featuring guest speaker Mark Blumes.

Blumes will draw on his success as founder of Mark's Work Warehouse and provide insight into marketing, motivation and entrepreneurship.

Tickets for the Legion dinner, cocktails and guest appearance are available through the chamber of commerce until April 21 or by calling 542-7878.

Parents seem to favor community kindergarten

Unofficial registration results for kindergartens in the area are showing that more parents are favoring the Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten.

Although there are still those that may register, results as of Thursday morning are: community kindergarten 61, Eldorado 53, St. Anthony 44 and Lutheran 15.

Lynne Zingle, president of the Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten said, estimations of kindergarten-aged children from the health unit show there are still 60-90 children out there whose parents have not yet registered.

"There may be some stragglers out there who may come in later, or perhaps some feel the kindergarten issue is such a mess. As it is not mandatory they may not enrol them this year," Zingle said.

The kindergarten issue has been a sensitive one since the Twin Rivers school board decided to start up a public kindergarten in Eldorado elementary school.

Dorothy Rendflesh says local consumers aren't drawn in to revealing swimwear trends.

'Magic' will aid family debt

Jaime Gilbert's rare brain malformation can't be cured with magic but the family's large impending debts sure can, assert two local men.

Danny Thompson, business owner, and Howard McKay, school teacher, have organized a magic show and evening extravaganza to raise funds for the 12-year-old girl's treatment in California.

And the April 21 event, according to Thompson, will not only make some of the debts disappear but also conjure up a full evening of entertainment for all ages.

Family Night will begin at 7 p.m. in the Legion with a variety show featuring both local and out-of-town performers.

The Little Rockers band and Big Boppers band will warm the audience up for the magical work of Edmonton performer John Charles.

A dinner and dance will follow.

"It's just going to be a lot of fun for everyone," says Thompson.

Local library to hire three more staff

The Drayton Valley library received a $16,478 grant this month from Employment and Immigration Canada to hire three temporary workers.

The new staff, according to librarian Lois Peterson, will work for a 13-week period programming a new automation system to aid administration in information retrieval.

Once the system is in place and functioning, Peterson says, there is a capacity to expand into a computerized catalogue system for customers' use. But she stresses that won't take place for a long time to come.

"It won't expand for a while," she says. "We have a lot of data to input."

"When it is done (the system) will really help out as far as speeding things up," she says.

Rezewski chosen winner

The chamber of commerce has chosen a winning photograph for the back page of its annual tourist brochure.

Photographer Bruce Rezewski last week received a plaque, dinner for two and assurance his fall scene of the Pembina River will be featured in the brochure to come out sometime in May.

Linda Bennett was the second place winner of a plaque.

According to Natalie Gibson, judge of the annual contest and member of the chamber's tourism committee, six judges voted unanimously for Rezewski's photograph.

Population signs are wrong

The population figures listed on the two entrance signs in town is wrong.

Instead of the 5,000-figure displayed on the signs at the north and south entrances to Drayton Valley, the town has been using 5,290.

But even that may be wrong.

So, to get an accurate figure, town council has decided to take a head count.

Cost of the enumerators is expected to be around $3,000.

Material and training for the task will be supplied by the Yellowhead Regional Planning Commission.

Squeaky clean

Betty Roberts was out last week carrying on that clean-your-windows spring tradition.

Impaired driver guilty

A 29-year-old Buck Lake man pleaded guilty April 13 to a charge of driving over the .08 blood alcohol level. Gregory McKay received a $1,200 fine or 60 days in jail and a two-year driver's suspension.

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

Art Servante is glad to be back in a small town. After nine years in Red Deer, working on the drug squad, general and traffic duty, the 36-year-old constable says it's nice to be in a small detachment where officers aren't assigned to a particular duty for months or years at a time.

The 16-year-veteran RCMP officer came to Drayton Valley, his fifth detachment, six months ago.

And it hasn't taken long, he says, to find a friendly, open atmosphere reminiscent of his youth in Birnie, Manitoba.

And whether it's the move or just his nature, Servante seems a boy at heart considering he was quick to get involved with the Pioneer Boys at a local church and Big Brothers.

Did you know that under the Highway Traffic Act, an abandoned vehicle is described as a vehicle left standing on public or private property for more than 72 hours without the express or implied consent of the owner or person in lawful possession or control of the property?

Mutton buster still swinging

By Susan Mosciaki
Just as some little children take a teddy bear to bed, at age two, a little mutton buster would take his rope and cowboy hat.

T.J. Ditchuk, 4, was roping like a little pro before he could talk.

Lana, T.J.'s mom, says he used to sit on his spring horse (toy horse on springs) and swing his rope, and when he got off, he would rope it.

"He used to watch me (in rodeos), then finally one day he wanted my rope," says dad, Terry. "It was too big for him so I made him a rope of his own."

T.J. has been at it ever since.

"He learned it all on his own," says Terry. "Even now he won't let me show him anything."

T.J. only started riding sheep this year because the minimum age for mutton busting is four.

He rode a sheep in the Superrodeo in Edmonton recently, and brought home a silver belt buckle for riding the longest and the farthest.

At the Superrodeo, T.J. was asked how old he was, and he replied "four", and then he was asked how many years he had been riding sheep, and his reply was "five".

When asked why he ropes and rides sheep he answered, "Because I feels to (feel like it)."

T.J. will soon have many more sheep to rope and ride.

His family's eight ewes are soon to have lambs.

He says when the lambs are born, "I'll tie them all up."

Roping is not limited to sheep for T.J. His mom says that one of their geese was wandering away and T.J. tried to rope it to get it back.

He also practices on one of the family's horses. Terry said the horse just stands there and lets T.J. rope it.

Like most little boys, T.J. wants to be just like dad.

Terry rode in rodeos with the Wild Rose Rodeo Association for about six years. He says he quit because, "It's a single man's life."

Of the rodeos, he says, "It's man against beast. You win some and you lose some."

Terry says a good rodeo clown is of utmost importance. "He's your ticket out of there (if anything goes wrong)."

He had many injuries while riding in rodeos, but an obvious love of the sport has not died in Terry. "What sport isn't dangerous," he says. "When you're a cowboy you don't let fear overtake you — there is no such thing as fear."

Lana, however, is apprehensive about the danger involved if T.J. continues in the rodeo, but believes he should do it if that is what he wants to do.

"I'll support him all the way, however far he wants to go."

Mom and dad say they will try to get T.J. into local rodeos in the near future.

In the meantime, T.J. will be swinging his rope waiting for those little lambs.

Racing team next winter

Plans are underway to offer a Nancy Greene racing team at the Drayton Valley ski hill next winter.

An organizational meeting is planned for later in the month.

All levels of skiers, beginner to expert, five to 13 years of age, are accepted. Bi-weekly coaching sessions are designed to improve the skier's ability in all types of terrain, especially on the slalom course used for Nancy Greene race meets.

Local skiers will be given the opportunity to compete with other teams in the area (Red Deer, Edmonton and Rabbit Hill) and will also be invited to the 1990 Junior Olympics.

T.J. swings his rope, preparing to lasso a sheep.

Soccer season starting

By Frank Ryan

Soccer enthusiasts hope to kick-off the local soccer season May 2.

Registration sessions were held last week and returning president Bill Boos is confident the numbers will be up again this year.

"Our numbers have increased by about 10 every year," Boos says.

Last year about 170 boys and girls played in the program, which is entering its seventh year.

Minor soccer offers four age groups, namely 5 and 6-years-old; 7 and 8-years; 9 and 10-years and under 11.

There were four teams in each category last year.

One major change this year will see a boys 12-and-under travelling team. They will play in the Northwest Central Soccer Association with teams from Hinton, Edson, Whitecourt and Spruce Grove.

Boos is also hoping to field an under-14 team, however, that will all depend on registrations.

Officiating is one area of the game the association hopes to improve on this year.

Experienced officials will hopefully be available to handle the two older groups.

Boos is estimating that by using experienced officials, the association will have to pay out at least $400.

That cost will be reflected in the $30-per-player registration fee, which is the same as last year.

The bulk of the registration fee will include a jersey for each player, trophies and the required Alberta Soccer Association registration. The user fee that minor soccer is required to pay the town will also come out of the $30.

Boos is hoping to hold both an officials and coaches clinic prior to the start of the regular season.

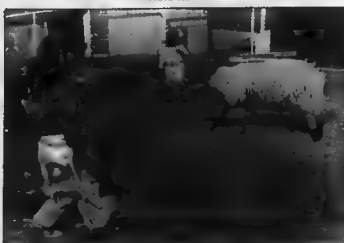

Games will be played Tuesday and Thursday nights from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The 5 and 6-years-old will be utilizing the MacKenzie Park field, the 7 and 8s will play at Park Place, the 9 and 10s will use Frank Maddock high and the 11 and older group will split their time between West Valley Park and St. Anthony school grounds.

Parents with children registered in the soccer program are asked to watch the paper for details regarding the first practices.

Drayton Valley Tiggers finish fourth in playoffs

The Drayton Valley Tiggers had to settle for a fourth-place finish at the recent Alberta intermediate 'B' basketball playoffs in Calgary.

The Tiggers, who have won the provincial crown three times in the '80s, came away with one win in three starts at the provincial tournament.

They opened with a 48-45 loss to Concordia College. Debbie Olson led the local squad with a 16-point performance followed by Janet Parry with 12.

They rebounded with a 44-43 squeaker over Pincher Creek to even their record at 1-1. Deb Manwaring was the Tiggers' top scorer with 12 points. Parry added eight more. The Tiggers would like to forget their final game, as they dropped a 72-46 decision to Dick's Insurance, a Calgary team.

Ball hockey beginning soon

After a year off the local ball hockey season is scheduled to swing into high gear Monday at the sports centre.

League organizers hope to have eight teams sign up.

Interested teams and individuals are urged to sign up at the town office.

Fifteen to 20 players make up each team. Ball hockey is similar to hockey. The only major difference is, that ball hockey is played on the cement floor.

Because of the hard cement floor, players are encouraged to wear much the same protective gear as they do in hockey.

Ball hockey is a non-contact sport. Fighting will not be tolerated. Players tagged for fighting will be kicked out of the league.

The league hopes to have qualified officials for the games. Anyone interested in officiating is asked to call George at 542-6705 or Kevin at 542-7407.

Each team will play twice a week, on Monday and Wednesday nights.

Due to the renovations to the old arena last year the league suspended operations for 1988. They operated four years before that.

Hectic season for Neptunes

The Neptune Swim Club is looking at another hectic

Carolyn MacLock was elected president at a recent meeting.

She will be joined on the executive by vice-president Peter Saunders, secretary Verna Sprague, treasurer Debbie Lauder and an active board of directors.

Lorne Regnier will be returning as head coach. His assistants are still not confirmed.

Sixty-seven swimmers have registered for the upcoming season and that number is expected to reach 80 before practices start May 8.

MacLock has seen a healthy increase in memberships the past two years, going from 45 in 1986 to 80 last year.

In preparation for 10 meets the club plans to attend, including their own July 8, the swimmers will participate in five days a week practices during the months of May and June. Because of the number of meets during the summer months, the workouts will be limited to four days a week for July and August.

CONGRATULATIONS!

As sponsor of the Lariettes hockey club, Nelson's Welding Inspection would like to congratulate the girls on a great season. In this 88/89 season the Lariettes won 26 games, lost 22 and tied 6. Over the course of the year they only lost once by double digits. They attended seven tournaments, held two AAHA hockey camps, and hosted the first ever "Female Midget Provincial Championships", where they won the Bronze.

We are very proud of the girls' dedication and competitive spirit and are pleased to be associated with these pretty ambassadors of Drayton Valley.

Next year watch them fly.

With Birchwood Village Greens and Drayton Valley holding the line on memberships and green fees, it looks like a good year to play the local courses.

Especially when the 18-hole greens fees at Banff will be $39.

Jim Jansen has stepped down as treasurer of the Drayton Valley club.

In other club news, the executive is putting a handbook together that will include items from general meetings and rules of the course.

The intent is to place a copy of this in the men's and ladies' locker rooms and at the bar.

Membership fees must be paid by May 1.

These can be paid at the pro shop.

Golfers in Brooks should be playing on an 18-hole course by July 1990.

However, money is still needed for trimmings on the 11-hole expansion.

Five teams signed up for men's fastball

Five teams have signed up to play in the Evergreen Men's Fastball League this season, and not just four as indicated in an April 11 story.

The five include Mobil Oil, Knights, Buck Lake, Wabamun and the No Jacks.

The first league game is scheduled for May 8.

Women's fastball league has eight teams ready

Eight teams will play in the Drayton Valley Ladies Fastball League this season.

They include Wildwood, Moon Lake, Whitty, Legionettes, The 'Old' Legionettes, Dusters, Lindale and Alder Flats.

All teams are asked to send at least one representative to a league meeting on April 26 at 7 p.m. in the Westwinds.

The meeting will elect an executive, discuss the schedule and other plans for the upcoming season.

The league will hold a bake sale on April 28 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Derrick Mall. Proceeds will be used for league expenses.

Some regulation changes deferred until May 1

Some of the new fisheries management initiatives introduced in the 1989 Guide to Sportfishing which were to be implemented April 1, will be deferred until May 1.

The 1989 Guide to Sportfishing was recently released by the Fish and Wildlife Division. The change in implementation dates is a result of the federal regulatory process taking longer than anticipated.

Two of the new initiatives affected which will not be in effect until May 1 are: the minimum size limit for walleyes and a reduced limit on rainbow trout from the Bow River between the Carseland Weir and the Bassano Dam.

The delay will have a minimal impact on overall programs. Many areas which are affected won't be fished until after May 19 due to unstable ice conditions or closed seasons.

Cocaine can be addictive by merely handling the drug

'As long as there's the business elevator won't close down'

Neil Hiebert, manager of the Alberta Wheat Pool in Drayton is unhappy with an April 11 article which appeared in The Western Review.

Hiebert takes exception with the headline that stated: Breton elevator will close.

He's hopeful the entire issue will be settled Thursday when representatives of the MD and the Village of Breton travel to Calgary to meet Wheat Pool officials.

"We will not be closed July 31. As long as there's business, we'll be open," he told The Western Review.

According to a March 9 letter from the Wheat Pool to Carolyn Strand, the company's intention is to operate the elevator on a one-year basis (Aug. 1, 1988 to July 31, 1989).

"Since we operate on a crop year and taxes are paid on a calendar year, if for economic reasons a decision is made to close Breton on July 31, 1989 we have agreed to keep only half of the tax share. If, on the other hand, the elevator continues to operate to Jan. 1, 1990, there will be no money returned," the letter also stated.

John Erickson, MD municipal manager, told a recent council meeting that the letter from the Wheat Pool was not very hopeful and he didn't care for the tone of the letter.

even taking the drug. Constable Doug Hill of the RCMP told students it is only the female marijuana plant which contains THC (tetrahydrocannabinol) an illegal drug.

"Marijuana causes someone to look drunk yet they have no alcohol in their system," he said.

The price of marijuana (Hill said he was quoting old prices) is $25 for a quarter of an ounce, up to $3,500 for an ounce.

A more potent type of the drug called red hair can be as much as $100 an ounce.

The effects of marijuana are noticeable within three to five minutes and can last up to five hours, Hill said.

The next strongest illicit drug is cannabis resin, known more commonly as hash.

Hash itself comes from the marijuana plant, Hill said, but is produced from the flower of the plant.

"Hash is five to 10 per cent stronger than marijuana and can be light brown, black or dark green. It can come in little chunks or larger," he said.

Hash oil which is simply the oil from hash is a little stronger and a bit more expensive than the solid hash. Hash oil can cost as much as $5,000 a pound.

Hill told students the RCMP have done a fair amount of "drug busts" and he passed around photographs of one specific search the police conducted where they found cocaine, along with other paraphernalia, like syringes. Cocaine is one of the top illicit drugs, Hill said and can be absorbed not only by sniffing or smoking, but through the skin.

"I am sure you've all seen on TV, police tasting a white substance to see if it is cocaine. In reality, if they did that, they would be addicted," he said.

He told students that even if you handle the drug with your fingers it can be absorbed into the skin, causing addiction.

"We are always very careful and wear rubber gloves when handling it," he said.

The top-of-the-line drug is heroin, a powerful drug made by morphine. It is manmade, in illicit labs, Hill said and can be injected or smoked.

Const. Doug Hill

"Smoking it is referred to as 'Chasing the Dragon,'" he told students. "I'd love to know who comes up with these names," he added.

Heroin can be had at $50 a cap; a pound can cost as much as $20,000.

Hill also informed students of the punishments faced when found in possession of drugs or trafficking (selling)

Try for Coach of the Year in '89

By Alister Thomas

If you ever considered becoming a coach now there's an added incentive to do it in 1989.

In place is a new and exciting contest to entice more Albertans to become certified coaches — The Year of the Coach. To enter, simply become certified in at least one level of the National Coaching Certification Program (NCCP) and you will be eligible to win a personal computer worth $1,795 or a $925 watch or a track suit valued at $90.

There are over 100 great prizes to be won. Winners will be selected from each of the five NCCP levels.

One of the goals of the Year of the Coach is to promote the National Coaching Certification Program to coaches, parents, athletes and sports organizers. This program trains coaches for all organized sports including disabled sports.

The series of two-day courses teaches the skills of coaching from a theoretical and sport-specific perspective. It is useful even for coaches who may think they have nothing more to learn about their sport. Like his or her athletes, a coach must always be a student of the game.

After taking Level One of the NCCP, a minor league coach and journalist, wrote: "Hockey looks like a simple game to play, but there are many hidden skills and teaching methods which I was not aware of, even though I had played the game all of my life."

The Year of the Coach is a chance to look back and say "Thanks, Coach" and to look forward to the future of the coaching profession.

For more information about becoming a certified coach, contact Vicki Leonard, the provincial coaching coordinator of the NCCP at 427-6562 (Edmonton).

Relieving stress good for all, especially diabetics

By Susan Mosicki
A Canadian Diabetes Association meeting held at the Elks Hall recently turned out to be an informative session on stress control.

"You can learn to control your own stress," Janice Bertrand, RN, told the group.

"...talking about your problems will help you cope..."

"You have to have some stress, it motivates you, but you don't want too much. Stress releases cortisone which raises blood sugar."

"Communication relieves stress," she said. Bertrand stressed that talking about your problems will help you to cope with them.

Think of all your problems as challenges."

"You will never make enough money," she said. Rather than fighting about it, she suggested a couple should agree how to spend it.

A "mini time-out" is a good idea, according to Bertrand. If you're angry, tell your partner, "I don't want to talk about it, but I'll talk about it in five minutes." This will allow a cooling-off period to avoid saying something you don't mean.

"Try to set goals that are reasonable," she said. Setting unreasonable goals can only lead to a feeling of failure.

"Nobody is perfect," said Bertrand. "So try forgiving yourself."

"Take the word 'problem' out of your vocabulary. Think of all your problems as challenges."

Bertrand said she sees many couples fight over socks on the floor. "Don't worry about the small things. If it were a life or death situation, would you really care if there were socks on the floor?"

Taking a relaxation break was one of Bertrand's suggestions.

"Sit on a chair with your feet on the floor and your arms draped at your sides. Try to clear your mind and deep breathe. Do this until you start feeling more relaxed, and then let your mind go back to your favorite fun time and fantasize that you are there. This is great therapy, according to Bertrand.

Exercise also relieves stress.

For a diabetic, exercise can bring down high blood sugar. If the blood sugar stays up the diabetic may have to use extra insulin, said Bertrand. "Don't bring your problems home at night, and don't go to bed angry," is positive advice, Bertrand said.

Many bulls suffered frostbite this past winter

Severe weather conditions in most of Alberta during January and February claimed many bulls as frostbite victims.

"Don't guess about whether your bulls have been affected, make sure," says Laura Rutter, Alberta Agriculture reproductive specialist. "Bulls of all ages, with or without bedding and shelter, have been afflicted with minor to major degrees of scrotal frostbite."

Rutter says no definitive studies have been done on specific adverse effects of frostbite on breeding soundness. However, she adds, any adverse effect on fertility is likely determined by the severity of the frostbite and the length of time from frostbite injury to start of the breeding season.

Frostbite causes two extremes in temperature within the scrotum. The first extreme is 'supercooling' at the onset of frostbite. The second extreme is 'superheating' as the tissue thaws and inflammation occurs.

"Supercooling is typically of short duration, while superheating usually lasts 10 days after the initial injury. The testicles are extremely sensitive to temperature changes. Altered sperm production and abnormal sperm cell structure are the result," says Rutter.

Rutter says producers should check all bulls for frostbite. Blisters and scab formation will be obvious for about three weeks after the frostbite happens. Scabs will fall off in about a month leaving reddish-pink scar tissue.

If there is evidence of frostbite, the second thing to check is the extent of the injury, she says. "Many bulls frostbite only the tip of the scrotum, about the size of a dime to a quarter. Permanent damage to the testicles is not likely in these mild cases," says Rutter.

If bulls have more extensive injury from frostbite, the chances of permanent injury and delayed fertility are increased. She suggests farmers, or their veterinarian, should check for potential adhesions or scar tissue in the tail of the epididymis, the sperm cords lying on the bottom of the testicles

David Hatto has been involved with student exchanges for two years and says it's the life-long friends which makes it so special.

Hatto, who teaches junior high in the Tomahawk school has been the area representative of ASSE International Student Exchange Program since 1987 and has had two exchange students stay with him in that time.

In the 1987/88 year the Hattos put up Svante Wising a 17-year-old student from Sweden. He stayed with the Hattos for one year and Hatto said when it was time for him to go home there were a lot of tears shed.

"It is very emotional. These children become part of your family and you really miss them when they go," he said.

Hatto himself has four children: Vanessa, 18; Kristen, 15; Janice, 11 and Gareth, 8.

"My children really love the exchange students, all of them feel like they have an extra brother or sister. They establish a very deep friendship which will probably last a lifetime," he said.

He said the cost of hosting a student is left pretty much up to the host family. The minimum you must provide is room and board, beyond that it is up to how much the family can or wishes to spend.

Hatto himself says he will pay for a visiting student on any excursions that he would normally pay for his own children.

"If I am paying for my own kids then I will pay for the visiting student but if my children are paying out of their own pocket, the same is expected of our guest," he said.

As an area representative, Hatto finds suitable homes for exchange students and follows up continually throughout the year while the exchange student is in the country. If there are any problems, it is up to him to make sure they are solved, or at times he has to find another family for the visitor to stay with.

He said one time a student was placed in a home where the family did not place much emphasis on neatness and tidiness.

The area representative asked her if she would like to be placed with another family and she said, "The house may not look tidy but these people have very big hearts."

Hatto says there aren't too many strict qualifications for a host family, even single people can host students.

"Usually I will interview them and they find out for themselves through the interview whether they feel they are good candidates for hosting students," he said.

"We certainly have not had many problems from having students. The pleasure far exceeds any financial burden."

Hatto and his wife plan to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary in four years and will travel to visit all the students who have stayed with them.

Soil project improved

Municipal governments in rural Alberta may soon have a new tool to aid their efforts in selling soil conservation to the farmers within their boundaries.

The county of Flagstaff is currently involved in a pilot project to develop a strategy for individualizing a soil conservation plan says Tom Dietzler, agricultural fieldman for the county.

Dietzler says the county has been wrestling with how best to get information and equipment to farmers and hit on the idea of tailoring plans for individual farmers almost two years ago.

The pilot project began in the aftermath of the water and wind damage and within the framework of the new Soil Conservation Act, says Dietzler. First, the board set long-range goals. The most important, he says, was to initiate individual soil conservation plans for the county's farmers.

Children's dentistry essentially painless

By Susan Moscieli

The days of children being afraid to go to the dentist are now over, according to Dr. Jim Anderson and Dr. Brett Bueckert.

"Things have changed so much. There wasn't much preventative dentistry (in the past)," says Anderson.

"Dentistry for children is essentially painless (now)," he says.

"Most of them (the children) don't even know when they've had a needle," says Bueckert.

The dentists both agree that children must be told what is going to happen, and what the dentist is going to do.

"They trust you because you told them," Bueckert stresses.

Anderson says he doesn't call the instruments by cute names to ease children's fears. "We find children have more intelligence than that."

Easing the fears of a child is actually an investment in a dentist's future. It means the child will come back.

"If they have a good experience they tell their friends — if they have a bad experience, they tell everybody," says Anderson.

Dentists' offices are now more relaxing than the cold, white atmosphere of their offices in the past, chairs are more comfortable, and posters on the ceiling give a child something interesting to take his mind off the dental work being performed.

"We have very few problems with kids," says Anderson.

He says that if a child is really terrified, just an initial checkup is done that day, so that when the child returns he trusts the dentist and isn't afraid.

"We get the odd teddy bear," Anderson chuckles.

Dr. Bueckert emphasized the importance of regular checkups. "Then you don't get into the major problems."

The dentists both say parents are very dentally aware now, and bring their children in on a regular basis.

Happy Birthday
Sherlice!

"The parents want to know what's happening," says Anderson. He says this is a change from the past when parents sat outside the dentist's office until the child was done, and then paid the bill.

When children leave Dr. Anderson and Dr. Bueckert's office, they are given rings or stickers and a toothbrush to take home. After a pleasant visit, this is another good memory they will have of their dentist.

Preserving investment not tax deductible

Terry Clark, CA

The theory is simple enough — especially for the Income Tax Act. Any time you borrow money to produce income — such as by investing in the stock market, a business or in a rental property — then the interest you pay on that money is tax deductible.

Of course the tax laws wouldn't be the tax laws if life was as simple as that. But the basic principle holds good. At least until now. Two recent court rulings have raised serious doubts as to what may or may not be deductible when it comes to interest expenses.

Although neither case was run of the mill, each was close enough to home to make a lot of borrowers uneasy.

In the first case (the Bronfman Trust) borrowed money was used indirectly to produce income. The funds were actually used to purchase (a key word) income-producing properties, rather than to purchase or otherwise invest in the properties.

After a nine-year legal battle — which wound up in the Supreme Court of Canada — it was held that the interest was not deductible.

The reason? The court ruled that it was not the purpose of the borrowing that was relevant, but the taxpayer's purpose in using the borrowed money. And added: "It is the current use, not the original use, of funds that is relevant in determining interest deductibility."

In the second legal wrangle (the Attain Case) the court added even more uncertainty to the issue of interest deductibility.

In Attain, the taxpayer borrowed money to pay off a mortgage, rather than cashing in investments to pay it off. This, too, was an example of borrowing to preserve income-producing property. So to that extent, at least, it was similar to the Bronfman situation.

Even so, the court ruled in favour of the taxpayer — and allowed the interest deduction.

In reaching its decision, the court had taken into account the "true commercial and practical nature of the transactions."

The comforting thing is that interest may still be deductible provided any use of borrowed funds can be traced directly to the income-producing property or investment.

When the lights go out, Black Comedy begins

By Sue Kenyon
The Playworks Players, formally known as Drayton Valley Players, have quite a show planned for April 20, 21, 22.

Black Comedy has a cast of eight with lots of subtle action happening throughout. This is not slapstick humor, but the laughs come from the carefully planned and timed dialogue; it's the old British phrases and expression in the characters, besides the plot which makes this play funny.

This play seems to have everything. The main character is Brinsley Miller played by Shaun Murphy. Watch for his expressions — they can be hilarious and make up most of his character.

Then there is the eccentric, homosexual antique collector played by Rick Flihkema. This guy should have had the lead role in Rocky Horror Picture Show with his excellent portrayal of a feminine man.

Ian Johnston's character is probably one of the strongest. He does the job of holding his character well throughout and the stuffy, protective British father he plays comes pounding through to the audience.

Cathy Wolff plays the "bride to be" and like her father in the play, has a stuffy, almost snobbish air to her character.

Jim Wolff appears at the end of the play, yet the entire story is based on his character. He plays the famous George Bamberger who finally arrives in the darkened home and, well, you'll just have to see the play to find out the end.

One actress who shouldn't be overlooked is Bev Erickson. Through the first act, her character spends most of the time sitting down watching what goes on around her. Her role does pick up in the second-half and is a must for this comedy. Because her acting is so good in the second-half she could easily fill the role as supporting actress.

Linda Bennett and George Spen also appear close to the end of the play. The climax begins when Bennett appears and continues until the final curtain. Spen does an excellent job with his foreign accent and his small role.

If there is one disappointing feature of this play it would have to be the end. Do not go and see this play waiting with baited breath to see the conclusion. You will be disappointed.

As for the actors and actresses and the rest of the play, it is all worth seeing and is enjoyable.

Merritt production brought home

By Susan Moselcki

A show recently performed by Frank Maddock high and H.W. Pickup students in Merritt, B.C., was brought home to an appreciative Drayton Valley audience last Wednesday.

The senior band kicked-off the show with several numbers, followed by the choral group.

The melodrama Greed for Gold, performed by the senior drama group, was a hit with the audience who actively participated in booing the bad guy, Darwin Doom, and standing up for the good guys.

Three dance routines were performed by the performing arts club.

Tineta Couturier, a local young talent, sang Black Coffee while the dancers performed one of their routines.

All went over really well, in spite of minor problems with the stage which kept falling apart during the melodrama.

It seemed as though the dancers were a little inhibited, which was not surprising considering they had to watch their step on the stage.

Timing was great for all concerned, and the show was commendable.

The performing arts club finished off one of the dances with this artistic stance.

My husband is a lunatic,
Whatever sports are on,
Hello there, sports fans,

Chair time, feet up, long gone.

He says he's just a normal guy,
Just does what they all do,
Have they all worn their favorite shirts,

Of course, some women think it's great,
They say I've got it made,
But, if YOUR husband EVER talks,
Would you discuss a trade?

As any wife can vouch,
There'll always be an extra large,

But not right now, he's gotta go,
And watch a crucial game.

Brazeau MD introduces recommendations to lower speed limits on area roads

The Municipal District of Brazeau has taken the first step toward introducing some new speed limits in the area.

Council gave first reading of the proposal at their April 10 meeting. The final two readings are expected at their April 26 meeting.

One of the major recommendations is to lower the night speed on Highway 620 (Lodgepole) to 90 km. The daytime speed limit on the highway, which has come under a lot of criticism due to increased traffic would remain at 100 km.

The report also recommends the 65-km speed limit through Violet Grove remain as it is posted.

Another change is recommended for Secondary Road 618 from Buck Creek to Breton. At the present time the speed limit is posted at 80 km and the report is suggesting 100 km.

Late snow big concern

There has been 20 per cent more snow this season than last year and Alberta Agriculture sees the snow having both beneficial and adverse effects on farming. Gerald Laarhuis, district agriculturalist says the late spring due to all the snow has created problems for calves.

"What happens is that usually by this time the cows and calves have been put onto fresh ground and in larger areas. Because of the amount of snow still remaining they are confined to small quarters which causes disease," Laarhuis said.

The most common cause of death in calves during this time is scours, or known technically as E-coli bacteria.

"If you get scours among the calves expect a five to 10 per cent above-normal death rate," Laarhuis says.

There are measures farmers can take to prevent a herd from contracting scours. A vaccine is available that can be given to cows which is passed onto the calves through nursing.

"The vaccine is not used widely but I think after this season farmers may use it more next year," he says.

If a herd is infected, Laarhuis said antibiotics can be used and in bad cases, electrolytes can be used along with keeping stress to a minimum.

The proposed speed limit through the hamlet of Lodgepole is 40 km that would eliminate two sections that currently allow 50 km.

The report is also recommending 80 km through Fairway Meadows, Northside Acres, Beaver Estates, Westbank Acres, Rex Block and Cottonwood residential subdivisions. At the present time 30 km is posted in some of the subdivisions.

Fifty kilometres is also being recommended for the hall in front of the Easyford and Lindale halls.

The changes are being recommended by administration.

They were introduced to council by Richard Tatro, director of public works.

Merritt trip a 'fabulous' experience

By Delaine Robinson
Work experience student
Last year a high school band from Merritt, B.C. came to Drayton Valley to perform for Frank Maddock high school and public alike.

As part of a reciprocal program the Frank Maddock high school band was to travel to Merritt this spring.

Initially only the band group was to go, but it was later suggested to combine the trip with the fine arts classes. The idea was well received and the drama, choral, and performing arts clubs were incorporated into the schedule.

Much fund-raising effort went into the tour. Students held fruit sales and a community dance.

The group of 63 students and accompanying teachers and chaperones departed from Frank Maddock Sunday April 1, for a five-day tour.

The students were billeted in the homes of residents of Merritt.

The first day in Merritt consisted of a rehearsal followed by a concert at the school. Later in the day the group toured the Copper Valley mine site. In the evening students were permitted to attend a carnival or watch a movie provided at the school.

On Tuesday the students performed for residents of Merritt.

The last evening of their stay a dance was put on for the students.

According to students and teachers the trip was an overwhelming success.

"I think it was a very worthwhile experience; things went well. I am proud of the kids, it is not easy to maintain the level of excellence they did," said Blair Proctor, band and choral instructor, upon his return.

"The billets were great. They tried to help you out in every way. They treated you like family," commented Dana Miller, a Grade 12 student, who was part of the performing arts group.

"The only bad part about the whole trip was the long hours on the bus. Personally it was a great experience, it was fabulous," remarked Miller.

132 students to attend Camp Kasota this year

By Delaine Robinson
Work experience student

Each year Grade 5 students at Evergreen elementary school participate in an Outdoor Education trip. This year 132 students will be sent at two separate times to camp Kasota, on Sylvan Lake.

There are five areas of activity: orienteering and archery; science, arts and crafts; survival and canoeing. The course objectives are to teach life skills which will stand the children in good stead in their life outside the classroom.

One of the more popular activities is the talent night, when all the cabins are encouraged to put on plays, skits or sing songs.

"It's great, just when you think you have seen it all, the kids come up with something new," remarked Chris Kelly, Evergreen school principal.

The program is entering its 15th year and is said to have been very successful. "The program sells itself," says Kelly.

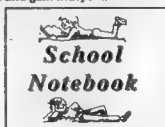

Volunteers play an important role. Parents have been very helpful in offering their time, says Kelly. "Some even want to return in the years following their children's trip."

Kelly sees the trip as a method of combining learning and fun, as well as a valuable growing experience. "Many of the children have never been away from home for five days; it gives them a chance to mature and gain independence."

CPAWS wants public involvment

The Edmonton Chapter of the Canadian Parks and Wilderness Society (CPAWS) has recently become the volunteer steward for Bellis Natural Area.

The volunteer steward program, initiated by the Public Lands Division of Alberta Forestry, Lands and Wildlife in 1987, invites the public to become involved in the site management of Alberta's many and diverse natural areas. As protected public land, natural areas are set aside with the main objective of maintaining their natural features.

CPAWS, the newest member of the volunteer steward program, is a national non-profit organization concerned with Canadian parks and natural environments. The society has been predominantly oriented towards advocacy and public education.

By becoming a steward for Bellis, the Edmonton chapter hopes to get the public involved in natural areas, conservation, preservation and wildlife management.

Bellis Natural Area, located one mile west of Bellis and nine miles east of the town of Siquity Lake, is a rough and sandy area comprised of vegetated dune complexes, numerous ponds and wetlands, jack pine stands and dry grasslands. It is a highly diverse area and provides excellent wildlife habitat. Located just south of the natural area is the Alberta Forest Service's Pine Ridge Forestry Nursery.

Town council ratifies Chesterman's contract

Town council has ratified a proposed contract for building inspector Al Chesterman.

All that remains is for administration to proceed with the necessary steps to finalize the contract.

The contract expires at the end of 1989.

Council was told at its last meeting the new contract does not include any changes in the rates.

Some of the inspector's duties as outlined in the proposal state: "The contractor shall ensure that all development and construction requiring a permit does in fact have a valid permit; examine all building plans for compliance with the Alberta Building Code; approve or reject all applications for building permits as they relate to the bylaw; conduct on-site inspections of buildings for which permits have been issued; shall ensure that no permit is issued until the appropriate permits fees are paid or credit approved and the contractor agrees to appear in court to give evidence in cases where a dispute has arisen."

A copy of the contract fees for 1989 can be obtained at the town office.

Airseeders effective

How and should airseeders be used to seed specialty crops are common questions the Alberta Farm Machinery Research Centre is getting as peas, lentils and other specialty crops gain popularity.

Centre manager Rick Atkins says testing special crops isn't a normal part of their test procedures for airseeders, so the centre doesn't have extensive experience. Plans are to include at least one pulse crop in future testing, he says.

"However, our experience to date indicates airseeders can be used effectively to meter and distribute specialty crops such as peas and lentils.

"We recommend producers take time to properly set up and calibrate their airseeders for that situation," says Atkins.

Specialty crop seeds have to be treated differently than traditional cereal seed, says Atkins. Certain varieties of any specialty crop can be more susceptible to cracking and splitting. This means the seed must be treated very gently by the meter to minimize damage.

"Meters that are less aggressive, for example, external flute or feed wheels would be an advantage when using these types of seeds. So is a distribution system that minimizes the number of headers, bends and corners," he says.

Air velocity and corresponding seed velocity can also be a problem area in using an airseeder for specialty crops. Both velocities are determined by a fan speed setting. The higher the speed, the greater the velocity and the greater the potential for seed damage.

Compounding this factor is that seeding rates for special crops may be two to three times the rate used for cereal crops. High air velocities must be used to prevent overloading and plugging of the system, so a balance has to be found so the system flows freely and grain damage is minimized.

McGurks: an ear when confused, hug when needed

By Belinda Atkinson

It's chaos: the stereo's blaring, girls are dancing and uncle's playing Somewhere My Love on the organ.

But it's a typical afternoon for Doris and Dennis McGurk who have known no peace since 1982 when they took in the first of over 100 foster children.

"It would be too quiet around here if it was just us," Dennis raises his voice over rap music and shrieks of laughter.

"Some days you'd swear it's grand central station," Doris shakes her head.

Doris says her extended family has become so well known among area teenagers that strangers frequently call her "auntie" — the title used by her foster children.

Their reputation has even spread to the Drayton Valley Pathfinders club which used the home in a recent scavenger hunt.

"The little old lady who lived in a shoe..." was the clue that sent girls scurrying in the McGurk's direction.

The two have taken children and teenagers from every possible background: young offenders, runaways, prostitutes, sexually, mentally and physically abused.

Some parents would be leery of inviting such influences for their own children — Kevin, 18, Mona, 15, and Derek, 12 — but Doris says the experience has been positive, especially for Mona who plays an active part in the program.

"Mona gets to see what's out there. I think she's learned a lot and loved many of the kids," Doris explains.

Because the McGurks foster many girls Mona's age, she is often given the job of tour guide. Some have been trouble, Mona says, but she's become accustomed to ignoring peer pressure.

"Lots tell big stories. I usually say, 'that may have been fun for you but that's not my idea of fun,'" Mona says.

"They all become friends," she looks around the kitchen table for backup. Three teenage girls, donning newly styled hairdos and freshly painted nails, giggle in agreement.

Doris is quick to comment the kitchen table acts as a family mediation centre.

"...we've stayed up until 2 or 3 a.m....I'd be ready for bed..."

Many nights, she says, have been spent counselling, laughing and, occasionally, arguing over pots of coffee and packages of cigarettes.

"We've stayed up until 2 or 3 a.m.; my eyes would be dosing off and I'd be ready to go to bed. Then we'd get on a different topic and keep talking," Doris says.

Some discussions have been frivolous — the cute boy in biology class. Others have dealt with the pain of running away from a bad home life to a dangerous street life.

But Doris and Dennis have been there, regardless, and say the rewards have been plentiful.

Some children, Doris smiles, have traded in the sunny and uncle tag on those nights for a more endearing mom and dad.

Doris admits some foster teens spend their entire stay fighting rules, fighting the McGurks, fighting the world. Oddly enough, it is often those young people who call

Some teens spend entire stay fighting rules, fighting us, fighting the world...but rewards are plentiful months later to talk or to ask if they can return.

"One young man phoned us two months after he left and said, 'all those things you told me were true.' When he left...he could hardly wait to go but gradually the impact of the loss had sunk in."

Doris and Dennis don't claim to be super foster parents. They don't have a secret for success and they haven't been able to help every child.

Dennis says they simply offer a home, rules to live by, an ear when a child is confused and a hug when it's needed.

"It's hard to put a name to anything you do. You live day by day. You just do it," Doris adds.

And according to the girls who currently stay at the home, the McGurk's methods are working.

"I didn't think I would like it when I first got here but these people are great. I love them," asserts a 16-year-old foster girl.

Adolescent age group in desperate need of home atmosphere, understanding role model says worker

The number of foster parent volunteers has decreased significantly in the last few years, forcing a strain on the system, according to Wayne Marshall, manager of child welfare in Spruce Grove.

And while those still offering a temporary home to problem children tend to shy away from adolescents, Marshall says this is the age group most in need.

Marshall agrees teens are not easy to care for. "They tend to be more difficult and the family problems are more severe than they used to be," he says.

But the child welfare worker says adolescents between 11 and 15 years of age are in desperate need of a home atmosphere and an understanding role model.

"We ask that the foster parents provide the basic nurturing; a stable family atmosphere," he says.

Marshall admits many aspects of the system are lacking. Child care workers and foster parents, he says, have advocated for years that there is a need to better train foster parents.

Social workers are available to provide counselling and treatment, but he says parents also need occasional help.

"Sometimes people quit or need to take a break. It gets very pressured, especially if a child has to leave after (he's) developing a relationship."

He also stresses "nobody is going to get rich" by taking children into their home.

But it's a very necessary program, he says, that people must do out of their sense of humanitarianism in order to find rewards.

"By enlarge, most people get something out of it," he says.

Advantages outweigh disadvantages for several rural acreage owners

By Susan Mosciak

Rural acreages are in great demand this year, according to Bonnie Hunter, a realtor with Venture Realty.

"We have more demand than we have supply," she says.

"They (clients) want within a 10-mile radius, and under $100,000," says Hunter.

She says rural acreages can now be financed for as little as 10 per cent down.

"People are always interested in rural acreages, but this year more so than last year," she stated.

"It's an ideal place to raise kids, and the advantages outweigh the disadvantages."

Hunter says another of the reasons a 10-mile radius is popular is because many companies allow employees to take home company vehicles providing they live within 10 miles of town.

Chad Nichols, of NRS Realty, does not relate the same story for his firm.

"They're moving moderately well. They haven't sold really well in the last three years."

Nichols said, however, that 20- and 40-acre parcels outside of a four-mile radius have been selling fairly well.

He says acreages are popular with "somebody that wants just a little more room".

Busy season for 4-H club

By Bonnie Kohut
Our club has had a busy season so far. Besides our regular meetings and doing record books, some of our activities included a calf tour, curling and public speaking practices. We attended Ice Capades and a day of skiing at Lake Eden. A big thank you to Doreen Gilbert for helping our club prepare for the speak-offs which were held March 5 at Tomahawk. The winners were Jeff Androschuk for juniors and Bonnie Kohut for seniors. Both spoke at the district speak-offs at Lindale school March 12. Congratulations to Jeff who won first place and Bonnie who placed third. The next calf tour will be held May 12.

COPP to join union?

County officials haven't confirmed whether or not the County of Parkland Patrol has applied to join a union.

County director of personnel Gary Palamarek said any application to join the County of Parkland Employees Association would have to go through Alberta Labor Relations.

He would not say if the patrol had made such an application.

Reeve Ron Pollock said he was unaware of the patrol's possible desire to join the union.

"There have been some rumblings on that," he said. Chief Const. Bill Price says he believes the patrol members had applied to the existing union but could not elaborate.

Three members of the patrol, who operated out of Drayton Valley as the county police, are now stationed in Tomahawk.

Program designed to help producers

Alberta farmers will soon be eligible for two new federal-provincial farm financial management programs geared towards maintaining family farms as viable businesses.

Federal Minister of Agriculture Don Mazankowski and Alberta's Minister of Agriculture Peter Elzinga, announced that each government will contribute $2.6 million to a three-year farm financial management training program and for a farm financial advisory service.

The federal funding is provided under Canada Employment and Immigration's Canadian Job Strategies program.

"These programs will help ensure farm families are prepared to meet the complexities they face in today's business of farming," says Mazankowski. "The programs are designed to help producers help themselves through rough spots in the marketplace and to put their farm operations on a firmer financial foundation."

"The program will supplement existing counselling and consulting services," says Elzinga. "In addition to the new farm advisory service announced by the province in June 1988, they will allow us to develop a new and a much-improved financial management training program based on our past successes."

Young doctor on the rocks?

An area boy helps another remove dust from his eye after roughhousing it on the weekend. Onlookers are interested in the outcome of the 'operation' and pay attention to the procedure.

Be sure plumbing materials have been thoroughly tested

Most people take Canada's clean, fresh water supply for granted and don't think twice when they reach for a glass of water.

According to statistics from the Ontario Section of the American Water Works Association, the increased life expectancy rate that has taken place within the last century is due more to improvements in water treatment and supply than to advances in medicine.

When having plumbing work done, you are affecting one of the most critical systems in your family's home — the fresh water supply. That's why it's important the plumbing materials chosen should have been thoroughly tested and approved by organizations like CSA to fit properly, wear well and protect your family's supply of clean, fresh water.

In an effort to get that message across, CSA has produced a public services announcement video on plumbing which has been released to television stations across Canada.

Strong demand for goat meat among ethnic groups in Canada

Specialty crops and livestock have made a difference to Alberta farmers looking for ways to maintain a positive cash flow when traditional commodity prices tumble.

One area of diversification has been goats. Demand and return for goat meat has been strong, but Alberta breeders are looking at improving production and a more formal marketing system for their product.

These topics will be discussed at a symposium and general meeting of the Alberta Goat Breeders Association (Meat Goat Division) at the Leduc Elks Hall April 22. Keynote speakers, Roy Berg and Dorian Bromhen, will focus on production. Berg, of the University of Alberta, will talk about goat genetics and Bromhen, of Western Breeders, will highlight exotic goat semen. Management and marketing are other agenda items says Ken Smith, one of the association's directors.

Anyone interested in goats is encouraged to attend says Smith. One of the objectives of the symposium is to make farmers more aware of the potential of goats, he says.

"Northern Alberta farmers, in particular, have a strong comparative advantage in production. Goats don't compete for pasture grass with cattle and sheep, but can actually enhance the pasture by eating weeds and brush." He uses his goat herd for brush control during the summer. The goats prefer aspen, rose bushes and willows to grass, he says.

The association is also looking at organizing the supply side of its industry. "This will enable producers to market through a producer-owned agency to large order buyers both domestic and foreign," says Smith. There is strong demand for goat meat (chevon) from Canada's diverse ethnic community, especially around Christmas and Easter.

Meat goats are one of three types found in Alberta. Producers have also had success with dairy and angora goats.

Preschoolers need smaller serving portions

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

The food your child eats will affect his growth, health and daily activities. With a positive attitude and encouragement, the good food habits a child learns now will set the pattern of living for a lifetime.

Planning meals and snacks following Canada's Food Guide is an excellent way to ensure nutritious eating for the whole family. At every meal, include foods from each of the four food groups.

Since the preschool child is not growing as quickly as in infancy, his appetite may not be as great. The Daily Guide for Preschoolers provides suggestions for child-size servings. Keep in mind the stomach does not grow as fast as other parts of a preschooler's body. Serve small portions of food and allow your child to ask for more.

Planning meals according to the Daily Food Guide chart will provide your preschool child with more than 50 nutrients, making vitamin and mineral supplements an unnecessary addition to the weekly shopping bill.

Fat, salt and sugar are not included in the Daily Food Guide for Preschoolers. Used in moderation though, they add variety and flavor to your child's diet.

Fats such as those in gravy or sauces are high in energy but provide few nutrients. They should make up only a small part of your child's meal. Butter, margarine and other visible fats such as peanut butter may be used daily for taste and variety and to supply a few nutrients. Fat is necessary in a diet, but should be kept to a minimum.

Salt is used to season food. Highly salted foods, however, should be discouraged. Other seasonings such as parsley, savory or lemon juice may be substituted.

High sugar foods should not be served to your preschooler in large amounts. They quickly spoil a child's appetite for more nutritious foods. It is best to serve sweet foods immediately following mealtime and to encourage your child to brush his teeth immediately after meals to help prevent dental cavities.

Because a preschooler's stomach is small, nutritious snacks are important. They provide the extra energy your preschooler may need between meals. Nutritious snack foods are chosen from the four food groups and should be low in fat, salt and sugar.

Your preschool child will learn about food through imitation, practice, encouragement and guidance. As much as possible, make mealtime a happy and relaxed time of day.

This, together with providing nutritious choices, will allow your child to grow up enjoying meat foods, while developing good eating habits to last a lifetime.

Home Hardware celebrates 25 years service

Home Hardware, Canada's largest hardware chain, is 25 years old.

The first store opened in 1963 in St. Jacobs, Ont.

Now, Home Hardware has 1,000 stores across the country.

Alex Blais, owner/manager, has operated the Home Hardware store in Drayton Valley for the past 11 years.

operators and department stores.

It all started with Walter Hachborn, co-owner of a hardware store in St. Jacobs, Ont. He saw a trend developing. The competition, the larger and more powerful, was starting to threaten the existence of the smaller, independent dealer.

On Jan. 1, 1964 120 independent hardware dealers joined together under the name of Home Hardware. By forming a large buying group they were also able to purchase their products for less. The savings were passed on to their customers and the dealers were able to remain competitive with larger discounters, franchise

In 1963 he proposed a relationship of 122 Ontario hardware store owners, a dealer-owned company that would join smaller independents into a large buying group so they could purchase their products for less.

The day Home Hardware was formed, Walter Hachborn was elected president.

The operation of Home Hardware's 1,000 stores is controlled from head office and a huge distribution centre in St. Jacobs.

In 1970 Home Hardware formed two new divisions — HomeAll Building Centres and Homeland Furniture. These dealers enjoy the benefits of Home Hardware's buying power and corporate services such as administrative staff, computers, distribution and communications networks to minimize overhead.

Daycare celebrates eight years

Parents and the general public were invited to attend an open house at Happy Daycare Ltd. last Wednesday.

"We had a big crowd," said Parviz Lookmanjee, director. She said most of the parents that have children in the daycare were there, as well as people who showed up, to have a look at the facility.

Lookmanjee said it was the eighth anniversary of the daycare. She said she originally had it in her home for the first four years, and that it has been at the present location for the past four years.

The daycare is now licenced for 84 children.

'Why can't you just dust me?'

By Rev. Wes Herbert
DV United Church

Surely spring is here! A little more snow perhaps — certainly more rain. The earth will be cleansed, well-watered to bring forth its increase.

We need the cleansing rain. But all this mud and muck, pools and puddles — it's 'Tide' for sure or is it 'Sparkle'?

A mother speaking to her son said: "Surely you want to be a clean little boy, don't you?"

"Yes," he replied, "but why can't you just dust me?"

No water, no soap! Why not? We dust furniture, floors, sometimes clothes — right! Some things just need to be shaken and the dirt falls off.

"Why can't you just dust

me?" To be really clean takes soap and water. Why can't you just dust me?" We vigorously try to dust off selfishness, but it doesn't work. Selfishness gets deep inside us, so deep not even soap and water will reach. Only the power of the spirit of God cleanses of our self-centeredness. That power is claimed through prayer.

Simple prayer contacts the power that cleanses the heart. A New Testament writer put it this way: "If we freely admit that we have sinned, we find God utterly reliable and straightforward — He forgives our sins and makes us thoroughly clean from all that is evil." (1 John 1:8)

"Why can't you just dust me?" Because dusting just won't do. Nothing superficial will do. But if we confess our sins to God, that will do — it will do so much, so very, very much to make us clean inside. We need the cleansing showers of the spirit.

Penalties contribute to Sabres' loss

By Shellie Carson

Gwen Samardzie and Barbara Johnson report a great time on their spring break holiday despite a shaky takeoff due to engine trouble.

They saw the Hello Hollywood production which has been playing for 14 years. At dinner one evening they shared the dining room with Madame Sedat.

Several area hockey players, members of the Warburg Sabres hockey club, played in the bantam D provincial tournament at Foremost in March. The first game saw a well-disciplined team from La Glace defeat the Sabres 9-5. The Sabres outplayed La Glace in the first period but were unlucky around the opposition net. Too many penalties, a problem that remained constant the entire weekend, was a contributing factor to the Sabres' demise.

Call for advice for chemical disposal

By Samia Valleovand

You've just finished painting the kitchen and it's perfect. But now you are left with a bit of paint in the can and some dirty paint thinner. Of course, it is not environmentally responsible to just pour them down the drain or put them out with the trash...so what do you do with them?

Chances are you don't know how to dispose of them, or even where to find out. Now there is help. The Canadian Chemical Producers' Association has set up a toll-free referral centre that can direct puzzled consumers to the people best qualified to answer their questions.

The centre operates between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Eastern time and the phone number is 1-800-267-6666.

And that leftover paint? According to Environment Canada, your municipal government or provincial environment agency can direct you to the nearest disposal site.

Engineering Assistant

Required immediately for major oilfield construction project in Drayton Valley area. Drafting, piping, technical background & ability to read construction drawings preferred.

THANK YOU, THANK YOU. The March '89 fundraising campaign for the Kidney Foundation of Canada was a great success. This year our total amount was $8,373.90. In three days of cubicles and ball-swinging, it was quite gratifying to see the people of Drayton and outlying areas dig once again a little deeper, to help the Kidney Foundation in support of their research. Extra special thanks to those who came, Evelyn Haight, thank you for such dedication and caring. The Fertig Family

1980 financial blow-out still smoking

By Belinda Atkinson
Members of town council are still haunted by nightmares of a financial blowout that hit Drayton Valley nine years ago.

Mismanagement and questionable practices by previous municipal governments had forced a $16-million deficit, according to Mayor Bob Mayhew, that is just now being capped.

When Mayhew was elected mayor Oct. 15, 1980, he attributed his success to a "general feeling the town needed to tighten its belt."

That reasoning soon became the basis of his first term in office and the reason for numerous resignations, wage freezes, job abolishments and cuts to grants and programs. Many of these brought public outcry and a few put the town before the eyes of the province.

Over the next months, the situation worsened to the point where on April 3, 1981, town council imposed a temporary freeze on all town spending and hired an economist to devise an immediate plan of action.

Mayhew is still leery of discussing those times for fear of "pointing fingers" at previous governments which had incurred the massive debt.

He did, however, release a July 14, 1980 letter from Alberta Municipal Affairs which could have built a case against Perry Mason.

Senior Municipal Inspector R. E. Ahlstrom cited the misuse of $499,455 worth of debenture funds for council's general operating budget.

In addition to "numerous" bylaw infractions, it seemed council had tried to avert a hefty deficit by transferring money specifically allotted to programs into general maintenance of the town.

This infraction, according to Ahlstrom, was contrary to sections 378 and 380 of the Municipal Government Act and could result in "penalties" to any member who voted for the transaction.

"It's against the law. Council could have been convicted," said Mayhew.

Other unrecorded infractions included the previous council's claim in 1980 that "a pile of black dirt" was a $100,000 asset to the town.

Council was forced to replace $400,000 worth of debenture funds and borrow $1.2 million from a local bank to meet the town's payroll.

This came after much contemplation, Mayhew said, over whether to write a letter to then Municipal Affairs Minister Marve Moore claiming the town was broke.

Had he done this, Mayhew explained, the province would have taken over spending and councillors would have lost the authority to purchase so much as an "eraser."

Over the following months, Mayhew et al authorized the sale of its portion of the Spruce Grove Asphalt Plant and other government-owned business ventures.

Combined with the abolishment of numerous administrative positions, the town was converted from from socialism to capitalism.

"I was about as popular as a skunk at a picnic," said Mayhew. More than one controversy backed that statement.

Drayton Valley is still operating under a strict budget and gone are the days when council purchases anything without cash.

Under previous 25-year debentures, Mayhew said council was making payments on the old swimming pool while it was being torn down. The same was true for the arena which after extensive renovations houses the new, significantly smaller administration.

The town now owes $7.1 million with monthly bills,

Drug charges skyrocket

By Belinda Atkinson
More drug charges have been laid in the first three months of 1989 than in all of 1987, according to RCMP Corporal Dave Caporale.

And charges for possession of cocaine have skyrocketed in Drayton Valley and area this year to the same number as in 1987 and 1988 combined.

Despite a 60-per-cent rise in all drug charges from 1987 to 1988 and stunning figures for only three months of this year, Caporale says it would be incorrect to assume increased drug activity.

"I think we've just spent more time in this area and tried to pick up the pace," he said. "There is no way to know for sure but I'd say it's no worse than before."

Caporale said a decrease in other crimes such as break and enter has given RCMP officers extra time to investigate drug offences.

He also stressed Drayton Valley is no worse off than communities of similar size such as Whitecourt and Rocky Mountain House.

"It's an ongoing problem in every community," he said.

Caporale said most charges were laid against local individuals whose drug involvement was limited to softer narcotics.

He preferred not to label some drugs as lesser evils but said highly addictive and expensive narcotics are seldom found in small towns.

Town councillor Charlie Miner is optimistic the town could actually become debt-free in the future.

"If it's at all possible or feasible for a town to operate in the black, I would suggest that if the same path is followed and the procedures are maintained then it could happen," he said. "That's the goal."

"Drayton Valley could be debt-free in not too many years," added Deol.

West-end residents fight to keep schools

By Susan Mosciello

People in the Buck Lake/Alder Flats area who were tired of waiting for their school situation to resolve itself, decided to do something about it.

A statement of concerns in the community was drawn up and over 300 people (one person per family) signed it, representing almost 100 per cent support.

The residents (of the west portion of the County of Wetaskiwin) demanded that:

1) The school building in Alder Flats be modernised commencing immediately, and education programs be improved;

2) The parents to the east of Alder Flats/Buck Lake school attendance area be surveyed

Cartoonist Carl Hogan penned this cartoon in 1981 to show the seriousness of Drayton Valley's financial situation.

to see if they were willing to send their children to an Alder Flats/Buck Lake high school, and if interested, to the east of Pendryl that roles of the schools be reversed;

3) Furthermore, we support that the Alder Flats/Buck Lake attendance area remain as one regardless of any change in municipal boundaries."

The people in the west end of the county (Wetaskiwin) are concerned that if the proposed annexation of Alder Flats into the Branson MD goes forward, they will lose their schools.

The residents who were involved in drawing up the statement of concerns have recently dubbed themselves the West End Educational Committee.

Representative Bill Duffy said the group was "trying to get everybody's support." He said MLA Tom Thurber is also involved. "He's working with us to try and obtain our goal."

Duffy says the most important of the three demands in the statement of concerns is "to insure the school areas remain the same".

"This may not be a problem if Alder Flats isn't accepted for annexation," said Thurber. But he said he is supporting the people in the area concerned. "Yes, I am to the point that I think the schools should remain in the area. I don't want to see any of the schools closed."

Thurber also mentioned the Winfield residents are hoping to implement a distance learning program in order to keep the high school grades in their school.

Regarding the modernisation of area schools, Barry Allen (a Pendryl-area resident) said, "There has only been minimal work done for 15 years. Fire standards were brought up to code and that was it."

"We can make a public announcement May 5 telling people what we have accomplished," said Duffy. "We'll have a general meeting (after May 5) and decide what we want to build or maintain."

"It looks favorable for the future — I'm sure about that," he asserted.

Fate of private ECS still up in the air

By Sue Kenyon

The community kindergarten held its general meeting last week and no definite decision was made as to the fate of the private early childhood education.

Lynne Zingle, president of the kindergarten said the committee voted on three alternatives, the most popular vote being to transfer everything to the school board for their public ECS program.

"Twenty-one people voted in favor of transferring everything to the school board, 12 voted for staying private and eight voted for staying private for one year and then looking at the issue again."

Zingle said there were many hard feelings at the meeting as they felt the 12 and eight people who voted in favor of staying private, made up 20 and so the vote should be considered 21 against 20.

"So far we have not done anything. Unfortunately there are people out there who think we have just given away the store so to speak, but we have not decided on anything or signed anything," she said.

Zingle said she feels the school board is genuinely interested in negotiating fairly, and if a mutual agreement is met between the community kindergarten and the school board then another general meeting will be held and the kindergarten dissolved.

"My feeling is that as long as the children get quality education and good teachers, the children don't care if the kindergarten is public or private," Zingle said.

The community kindergarten has registered

Drug offenders local

"Heroin is a scary kind of drug. A lot of people charged with possession of marijuana don't want to have anything to do with heroin," he said.

And of the 11 charges of trafficking in 1988 and four so far this year — including the first charge for selling cocaine — he said most offenders are local and know their buyers.

This is, in fact, how RCMP officers have received some of their tips.

Offenders "looking out for number 1" may provide information, he said, to reduce their own sentences.

"In order for us to make a deal we have to go through K-Division (Edmonton headquarters)," he said.

Though not a common practice, he said it can be done.

Caterpillar information meeting May 2

The MD is gearing up to handle the forest tent caterpillar invasion.

An information meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, May 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the provincial building.

Representatives from Forestry Canada, Alberta Agricultural, MD and local aerial applicators will be in attendance. They will present information relating to tent caterpillar life cycles, products registered for control, aerial application restrictions and the MD's policy regarding control.

The meeting is intended to provide information for rural residents as appropriate action can be taken.

The meeting is being hosted by the MD's agricultural services board and Alberta Agriculture.

Caterpillar invasion expected

Drayton Valley area residents should prepare themselves for yet another serious outbreak of forest tent caterpillars. Within the next few weeks the leaves on the aspen poplar trees will emerge. Along with this emergence will be an expected appearance of the tent caterpillar.

This year will be the third consecutive year of severe outbreak in the district. For many area residents, extensive and unsightly damage caused by the caterpillars has been ongoing with little relief for several years. The current cycle began in 1976 with peak populations in 1982 and 1988.

Larvae of tent caterpillars generally begin by defoliating the upper branches of the preferred aspen tree; severe infestations will strip the tree completely. Defoliated trees usually leaf out again during July.

To assess the potential infestation levels, one would have to count existing egg bands on the tree. The egg bands are usually located on twigs no larger than half-inch in diameter — egg bands are a dull grey color with a rough, hard texture, a quarter-inch in width. If you find more than 10 bands on a tree with a three-inch trunk diameter or 20 bands on a tree with a five-inch diameter, you can expect total defoliation. The caterpillars usually remain on the tree on which they hatched until it is totally defoliated.

Assessing your assessment:

What to do if you feel your property assessment should be changed

In our first two articles we took a look at the history and evolution of assessment in Alberta and reviewed how assessments relate to taxes.

Now, we'll take a closer look at the procedure to follow during a General Assessment, and how to make a complaint if you disagree with the results. You have the right to complain and appeal your assessment, but not to appeal your taxes, so it's essential you take action within 30 days of the mailing of your assessment notice.

Meet your Assessor

As this is a General Assessment year, assessors will review all assessments in the area. If changes have been made to the property, an assessor will conduct an inspection. It may be to the owner's advantage to accompany the assessor during the property tour, for two reasons. The first is that this provides the opportunity to ask questions about the assessment procedure and get first-hand answers. The second — and this is particularly important in rural areas — is the owner will be on hand to answer the assessor's questions about the productivity of the land or other relevant topics. This kind of two-way communication can prevent a misunderstanding from happening, and ensure a fair assessment. But what happens if an owner doesn't agree with the assessment?

The right and responsibility to appeal

It's up to the owner to take action if he or she feels an assessment is unfair. In a sense, owners play the part of their own "counselors", so they need to know what issues may be reviewed.

Because assessment is based on value in relation to other property, the only way to appeal an assessment is on the basis of how property was assessed in relation to similar properties.

To provide an opportunity to compare one assessment with others, the Assessment Roll is open during the month of January or for 30 days after the mailing of assessment notices. The Roll lists all properties in the municipality, gives their legal descriptions and shows their updated assessments.

Owners are advised to visit the office of the Municipal Secretary, and plan to spend time reviewing the Roll. If they know of properties similar to theirs, they may be able to simply look them up and record all the details. If an owner is not aware of other similar properties, or needs other information about the assessment, he or she will be well advised to attend the Open House to talk with the assessor.

After meeting with the assessor, an owner may still feel the assessment is not equitable. In this case there are two steps that may be taken. The first is to appear before the local Court of Revision. To arrange for an appearance, the owner sends written notice to the Municipal Secretary. (Here, the owner may simply fill out the portion of the Assessment Notice designed for this purpose.)

The owner then is advised when and where to appear before the Court.

Step One: The Court of Revision

In today's uncertain economy, disputes about assessment aren't uncommon. More and more people faced with the growing challenges of making ends meet are paying close attention to their assessments, and are overcoming a reluctance to spend time in taking steps that could reduce their taxes.

To hear complaints, the municipal council appoints a board to sit as the Court of Revision. This board is made up of ratepayers, (often Councillors), from the municipality.

Their role is to make impartial decisions on the basis of the evidence presented by the owner and the assessor.

It's important to remember that the Court of Revision has no control over taxes or tax rates. It can only hear evidence on whether or not the property has been assessed on an equitable basis in relation to other properties of similar characteristics and value.

If, after hearing the owner's complaint and the assessor's rationale, the Court rules against the owner, there is still an option open.

Step Two: The Appeal Board

An owner may, within 21 days of the mailing of the Court of Revision decision, make an appeal to the Alberta Assessment Appeal Board. This Board is appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council to hear appeals arising from decisions of the Court of Revision. Owners who are not successful in their appeals may wish to pursue the matter in a court of law, but would be wise to seek legal advice at that point.

Assistance Programs

The government of Alberta has developed a plan to exempt all residential property from provincial education costs. A portion of taxes levied by the municipality are paid by the province of Alberta through the Property Tax Reduction Program. This amount is shown on the tax notice. In some cases, additional property tax reductions may apply if owners are unsure of eligibility for these programs and wish to learn more about them, they can obtain brochures and application forms at the municipal office.

Open House

While there are two steps to take in appealing an assessment, the ideal situation will be one in which there is no need to make an appeal. One way to prevent the frustration is for an owner to talk with the assessor when he or she assesses property. The owner is to meet with the assessor for an explanation of terms and procedures.

It would make good sense for concerned property owners to attend the Open House to review their assessments with the assessor. To learn the date, time and location of the Open House, contact the Municipal Secretary.

Lodgepole residents unhappy with MD's proposed bylaw

The pleas of residents living along the Lodgepole highway appear to be following on deaf ears.

On numerous occasions people representing the concerned residents have taken their case to Alberta Transportation and the MD.

Their major concerns include:

- Speed limits on the existing highway
- Big loads
- Concern for their school buses
- Width of the existing highway
- And, width of new section

All of these are valid concerns.

But up till now, talk hasn't proved anything.

A perfect example of that was demonstrated at a recent MD meeting when highway representatives asked for a reduction in speed limits. They cited several reasons for the request, including five incidents involving school buses.

In response, the MD introduced a motion calling for the same 100 km during the day on the highway and only 90 km at night. The night-time speed limit is the lone change.

Cliff Whitelock, president of the Highway 620 Advocates, isn't happy with the MD's action.

And he plans to be in MD council chambers April 26 when the second and third readings are expected on the proposed bylaw.

Because of the poor response to the people's concerns to date, residents who travel the highway might consider packing the MD council chambers in an effort to get their point across.

CBC arranges interview, resident 'clams' up

A CBC-TV crew was in Drayton Valley recently to film a special on the mill and its related problems.

Prior to their arrival, a number of interviews had been arranged.

One of these was with a resident of the Hillcrest area who had bitterly expressed his concerns to the mill, town council and The Western Review.

Much to their surprise, upon arriving in town the unnamed resident decided not to talk.

Why they asked?

Ironically, CBC's arrival came three days after the town's Pelican steering committee met for the first time.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

The resident they had hoped to talk to just happens to be a member of that committee. You can draw your own conclusions.

Upon further investigation by yours truly, we've been told that 'something's cooking' and that is the reason behind the silent treatment the CBC got.

Sounds familiar.

Oh, how sweet it is.

I'm referring to the Oilers' loss to the LA Kings.

It's especially sweet for us Calgary Flame fans.

A lot has and will be said about the Oilers/King series.

All those aside, one thing that must be considered is the emotional aspects.

The series brought together a lot of real close friends. In many ways it's unfortunate they had to meet this way

Canada Employment office to open in Drayton Valley part-time

Canada Employment is increasing its services to Drayton Valley and area residents.

Starting May 2, Canada Employment will visit Drayton Valley every Tuesday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Their office will be located in the provincial building.

For the past two years they have worked out of an office in town every second week.

According to Gene Kushair, employment supervisor, the change was made to handle the demand.

Besides expanding its office, Canada Employment is now providing a display job board. It will be located in the chamber office.

AADAC one of many

Dear Editor,

Thank you very much for the coverage you provided for Youth Challenge '89. I would, however, like to make one correction.

AADAC was one of many agencies from the Drayton Valley Interagency Group that cosponsored the conference for junior and senior high school students in Drayton Valley.

The Youth Challenge '89 organizing committee consisted of representatives from the interagency group as well as staff and student representatives from Frank Maddock, H.W. Pickup and St. Anthony schools. Cosponsorship also came from the many local businesses that donated door prizes and the guest speakers who provided their valuable time, and expertise gratuitously. Speakers came from Drayton Valley as well as from Edmonton, Wetaskiwin, Hinton, Ponoka, Spruce Grove and Wildwood.

Those of us who had the challenge of sitting on the organizing committee acted merely as a catalyst to make the event happen. It was the community and school support that made Youth Challenge '89 a success.

Gilbert fundraiser well supported

The people of Drayton Valley turned their pockets inside-out once again for Jaime Gilbert at Family Night held in the Legion hall last Saturday.

"As long as there's a need for the money and a bit of entertainment I don't think people get tired of it (giving)," said Danny Thompson, host for the evening.

He said approximately $2,500 was raised although he did not have the exact figure yet.

"There was a lot of support from businesses and everybody that we approached pretty well."

Thompson said that approximately 150 people had to be turned away after tickets sold out.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by the Little Rockers, the Big Boppers, magician Jon Charles, Lorrie Cooper and the B-Blue Band.

The Little Rockers are Grade 6 students of Evergreen school, and former classmates of Jaime's.

Evergreen school teachers made up the Big Boppers.

Thompson said another fundraiser is in the works for Jaime. He said a magic show is being organized and will be held in about six weeks time.

Boy finds diamonds in bushes by school

Little boys often bring home dogs, garbage and anything else they may find, but what happens when they bring home diamonds?

A Warburg family is still uncertain as to whether diamonds found by their young boy are real or fake.

Last Thursday a boy walking from school came across what appeared to be diamonds, in bushes near the Thoraby elementary school.

Thoraby RCMP say they will be sending them to be priced by a jeweller but Corp. G. Tonn is skeptical.

"I am pretty sure we are looking at costume jewelry. They are too big to be real diamonds," he said.

Bus drivers won't strike

County of Parkland bus drivers will not strike, according to Marvin Tkachuk, superintendent of schools.

"The employees' association (County of Parkland Employees Association) and the employer (County of Parkland) have agreed to a contract," said Tkachuk. "Both sides managed to achieve a compromise."

Tkachuk said, "The increase (for the employees' association) over two years will be just slightly over eight per cent."

The strike would have affected students in Tomahawk, Entwistle, Spruce Grove, Stony Plain, Wabamun, and Seba Beach.

Elevator must be used

Bretton elevator — "...use it, or lose it," was the message at the recent meeting with the MD of Branson, the Village of Braton, and the board of directors of the Alberta Wheat Pool in Calgary, says John Eriksson, manager of the MD.

Eriksson said the elevator is being kept open so far, but it will depend on the farmers. "If they utilize it, they will keep it open."

"In reality, 10 per cent of production from our municipality goes to that elevator," he said.

The elevator situation will be reviewed at the end of July, according to Eriksson, and if enough farmers sign up to maintain tonnage, the elevator will remain open. If not, he says a closure would not surprise him.

Electoral system lacks efficiency, but won't collapse

By Belinda Atkinson

The electoral system is not on the verge of collapse but could be far more efficient, said Yellowhead's returning officer in the Nov. 21 federal election.

"Certainly there are a number of things I would like to see changed," said Al Clark. "It could be far more efficient but I could do the job again under the same system."

Clark was responding to Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marc Hamel's warning to Parliament April 17 that the electoral system needs a "last overhaul."

Hamel said political patronage, a tight-fisted Treasury Board, contradictions to the Charter of Rights and one-time officership appointments have forced the process into a desperate state.

Clark agreed with some of the problems cited by the retiring chief electoral officer but said others were unfounded.

The charge of doling out officerships as "political plums" to faithful supporters, he said, is not entirely true since the party's selection is first reviewed by the non-partisan Elections Canada.

Clark admits he is a long-time member of the PC party, both federally and provincially, and knows MP Joe Clark well.

"He knows most people in this constituency. I make no excuse for that," the Hinton resident said.

"I don't look forward to the next election. I've never taken more abuse..."

He said political affiliation in no way interfered with his duties as returning officer, nor did he feel the job could be construed as a reward.

"If Jean-Marc Hamel thinks working as an electoral officer is a gift, he should come out for an election," Clark said.

"I don't look forward to the next election. I've never taken more abuse. I've never felt more humble in my life," he said, adding he had one day off in 50.

Clark also argued with Hamel's assertion that the Treasury Board was tight-fisted.

He agreed a computer should have been provided but said they did not spend the entire budget allotted to the constituency.

He further disagreed the system is entirely at fault for the thousands of Canadians who were turned away from polling stations.

He was informed of 50 to 100 residents who could not vote but said confusion over provincial and federal enumerations was at fault. Clark said those people did not contact his office despite ample revision time.

"A lot of people phoned us and we got them on the list," he said.

Clark hesitated on Hamel's strongest charge that inexperienced officers are chosen over trained personnel due to party affiliations.

If former officers — such as the one chosen by the Liberals in the last election — disagreed with the process, they should not have replaced their predecessors, he said.

"That's just the way the system works."

Clark said he contacted the Liberals and New Democrats but "couldn't get anyone involved."

Clark was adamant, however, that Hamel was correct in demanding reforming legislation be introduced.

"If Bill C-79 is passed then all these things will be looked after," he said.

The legislation was first brought to the House of Commons in 1987 but died on the order paper when the three parties could not meet approval, as is tradition with matters concerning the electoral system.

Hwy 22 upgrading not planned for this summer

Alberta Transportation doesn't have any plans to upgrade Highway 22 north of Drayton Valley this summer.

Joe Schlaut, district transportation engineer with the highways department expects some traffic counts to be taken, but says no work is scheduled.

His reply isn't sitting very well with Steve Hall, a resident of Northside Meadows.

Following a number of near misses involving traffic turning off Highway 22 into the residential area, Hall petitioned Alberta Transportation to improve the road.

At the time, Hall said he would prefer to see a double line from the golf course north to the Rocky Rapids/Cynthia corner.

Traffic turning into Northside Meadows was the only concern raised.

Similar concerns were raised over three other intersections, namely the airport/ski hill road, the entrance to the campground and the golf course.

ECS future unknown

70 students so far, but the turnout at the general meeting was poor.

"I told everyone who registered that the meeting was important; that decisions on the fate of the kindergarten would be made. Every parent who has children in the program knew about it plus we advertised it and only got 40 people out," Zingle said.

Zingle hopes the poor showing means that parents may cool down and let a decision be made.

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

After working in B.C., the Yukon, Nova Scotia and Drayton Valley, Al Kaufmann comes to an unlikely conclusion.

"People are the same everywhere," says the 16-year veteran RCMP officer.

Kaufmann has many opinions about life and people, all, he says, formed from the work he prefers to call a long and varied education.

Now settled in Drayton Valley and planning to stay, he wishes he would have kept a diary of all his experiences, including five years in a northern, two-man detachment where diplomacy was a skill necessary to survival.

But just get a few veteran officers together, he says, and suddenly the stories are flying. And no matter where the officers are from, the stories are the same.

Local youth to broadcast baseball

Steve Thompson is working on the Edmonton Trapper baseball broadcasts.

The 18-year-old Drayton Valley resident, who graduated from Frank Maddock high last year, will be the studio producer for the games being carried on CKO Radio (101.9 FM).

The experience will prove to be a valuable experience for Thompson, who is taking radio and broadcasting at NAIT.

As studio producer, Thompson will be responsible for inserting commercials and reading the news.

Breton club may buy 100 acres

After leasing land for 22 years, the Breton golf club is finally looking at purchasing approximately 100 acres.

"We've had a lease on that land for 22 years and we don't actually own the land," said Elvin Strand, club president.

Strand said Alberta Housing Corporation (present owner) wants to sell the land and is expecting fair market value. He said AHC wanted what they had paid for the land, but have decided to sell it for fair market value and the club feels that it is now time to purchase.

"It may take several years before everything is actually finalized," said Strand.

Ducks Unlimited receives award

The success of a Ducks Unlimited fund-raising dinner held in Drayton Valley last October has earned the organizer an award.

Doug Meszaros, who organized the dinner, received a plaque in recognition of the $9,185 the dinner turned over to the organization. The award was given to the local organization for raising the highest amount of money for a town with a population under 5,000.

Several people worked on the dinner with Meszaros, who had previous experience with Ducks Unlimited organizing such an event.

53 teams sign up for slow-pitch

Slow-pitch continues to grow by leaps and bounds in town.

Fifty-three teams will take to the field May 1. That's an increase of nine from last year's line-up.

In 1985, 12 teams made up the league.

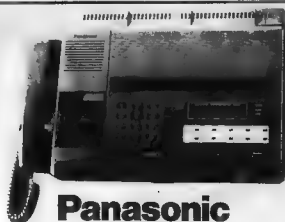

Marty Prentice has been re-elected as president. Garry Janzen is back as treasurer and Paul Sander is the new secretary.

Slow-pitch decided at an executive meeting last week to contribute $3,000 toward improving diamonds three and four at West Valley Park. Minor ball will contribute an equal amount to the diamond improvements.

Wearing tile will be installed on both diamonds and the infields will be sodded.

Voyageur canoe trips may start up

Most visitors to Drayton Valley use the motor vehicle as their means of transportation.

But, Wally Wright at Voyageur Adventure Tours in Rocky Mountain House has other ideas.

He thinks there's a market for voyageur canoe trips on the North Saskatchewan River.

"We anticipate some groups will want to go to Drayton Valley," he says.

Tours on a stretch between the Bighorn Dam on Abraham Lake and Drayton Valley include half, full-day and overnight trips according to Wright.

Wright says he will even custom design a tour.

He says it's a nice three-day relaxed trip from Rocky Mountain House to Drayton Valley. Smooth and easy. No rapids. Isolated and very scenic.

The voyageur canoe trips is a new venture for Wright. In the past the Rocky Mountain House canoe member provided transportation on the North Saskatchewan River on a volunteer basis.

But after taking some Japanese visitors on the river last year, he got the idea of offering tours.

Trips down the North Saskatchewan to Drayton Valley may not materialize this year, but it is something Wright plans to promote.

The original nine holes are open at the Drayton Valley course.

President Vi Helm says it will likely be May 1 before the new nine are playable.

Helm admits the snow didn't melt as quickly in the new area where there's lots of trees...and that is the main reason for the delay.

The ladies league starts May 1 followed by the men on May 9.

There's shouldn't be any problem this season with the leagues interfering with the public as they will be playing on separate courses (front and back).

The first fun mixer is scheduled for May 12 with the club championships May 27-28.

The Country Swing Driving Range, located just north of Drayton Valley on Highway 22 was a busy place last week.

If the crowds there were any indication, local courses should be in for a banner year.

Students escape into the wild to create art

If you happen to be travelling through the Kananaskis or other remote regions in Alberta this summer, you may come across a group of people exploring the landscape from behind their easels.

Each year fine arts instructors with the faculty of extension at the University of Alberta gather groups of intrepid artists armed with paints and canvas and head into the wilds.

Their destinations range from the Rockies to the badlands to the bush, but their aims are the same: to spend a week exploring, interpreting and recreating nature with oils and acrylics.

Days are spent in demonstration, painting, some individualized instruction and critiques, while the evenings often bring campfire gatherings and discussions of art and life in general.

Fine arts director Alfrie

Schmidt has been instructing the faculty's spring and summer landscape courses for over 14 years.

"One of the benefits of the program is that, by getting far away from the classroom, there is total involvement in painting and intense submersion into nature," says Professor Schmidt. "When they go back into their classrooms or studios, they can recreate that experience and vision."

The format of the program allows the artists, who already are beyond the stage of needing basic instruction, to work individually with more advanced instruction as required. In addition, participants have the opportunity to gather feedback from their peers as their work progresses.

Many of the participants return year after year to these open-air studios; some are returning this summer for their 10th time.

MD gets headaches over frozen culverts

The unusual winter has created a lot of headaches for the MD.

Richard Tatro, director of public works, says his staff has been busy dealing with frozen culverts. He blames most of the problems on the rain followed by the snow storm that hit the Drayton Valley area at the end of January.

"We've been working very long hours," Tatro said. Crews had the situation well in hand as of last Wednesday, almost three weeks after work started on the culverts.

Meanwhile, Tatro says he had hoped to get their road construction projects underway by mid-April, but that has been delayed because of the weather.

Tatro reports a number of "soft spots" on MD roads, but says they haven't experienced any serious flooding.

Adults returning to classrooms to share experiences

High school graduation does not mean the end of school.

In fact, a growing number of parents, volunteers and community members are returning to the classroom to share their services, experience, and expertise with students and teachers throughout the province.

Some serve on school advisory councils, others inform students about the world of work, still others help students with their homework. These individuals are partners in the successful achievement and happy experiences of Alberta students.

The opportunity for involvement is as varied as the interests of the partners themselves. Coaching sports teams, assisting in the library, supervising field trips and tutoring are particularly popular.

Cheering the track team, packing the gymnasium for school concert or attending an open house, all work to provide a positive learning environment.

Young students take special delight in the memories of senior citizens who bring textbook history to life. While students benefit immeasurably from parent and community involvement, often the advantages run both ways.

"When you give, you end up getting so much more in return," explained Sharon Guzak, a parent volunteer at Lee Ridge elementary school in Edmonton's Millwoods area.

"You feel good about yourself because you did something positive. Children are our future, and when all is said and done, nothing in the world is more important," she stressed.

Teachers openly welcome and encourage participation. School accomplishments and student achievement, they agree, depend on the cooperation and support of both home and community.

Teachers are able to devote more time to students with special needs, as well as more time for professional tasks including planning, evaluating and instructing.

Participation, however, does not always mean a trip to the school. Sometimes contributions are not as obvious but every bit as important.

Parents can provide the right atmosphere for studying: a desk or table, adequate lighting and peace and quiet.

Encouraging reading and visiting interesting places also reap long-term educational benefits.

At all grade levels, helping a child to develop a positive attitude toward learning, their teachers and school are important links in the partnership between home and school.

Oxygenated fuel in '89?

In a dramatic boost for oxygenated fuels, such as ethanol-enhanced gasolines, General Motors (GM), the world's largest automobile manufacturer, plans to recommend the use of oxygenated gasolines for their new cars in 1990.

GM chairman Roger Smith in remarks before a California forum in Los Angeles said that as part of the company's efforts to make further progress toward the nation's air quality goals, GM will recommend the use of properly blended oxygenated fuels.

The advantage according to Smith is that oxygen from the ether or alcohol portion of these special fuel blends can act to make the engine's air-to-fuel ratio leaner, resulting in less carbon dioxide.

This move is seen by the U.S. alcohol fuel industry as a positive sign that these oxygenated fuels will gain more prominence as high octane, environmentally benign components of the nation's gasoline pool.

Area cattle thefts may be related

Areas around Leduc, Camrose, Tomahawk and Thorby have been having problems with cattle thefts recently, Corp. G. Tonn of the Thorby RCMP says.

In Thorby there have been a total of two thefts which resulted in six calves missing.

Tonn says the thefts may very well be related as the areas aren't that far apart.

Staff-Sgt. Jim Humphry of the Drayton Valley RCMP say so far this year there have been no cattle thefts in this area.

Private rail service proposed

The Reform Party is calling for talks to begin immediately between Jasper businessmen, the federal government and CN Rail, to draft a request for proposal inviting private operation of a passenger rail service between Jasper and Vancouver.

According to a press release issued by the Reform Party, this move would insure that passenger rail traffic along this vital rail corridor goes uninterrupted if the federal government decided to cut VIA passenger rail service as a cost-cutting measure.

And, the Reform Party says the Yellowhead constituency, particularly Jasper, Hinton and Edson, deserve better than a wait-and-see attitude from Tory MP Joe Clark on the possible scrapping of the VIA rail passenger service.

Yellowhead Reform Party candidate Preston Manning, who ran against Clark in the last federal election, says it's obvious the Tories were quick to take credit for VIA's reinstatement in 1984, but are trying to avoid being known as the party which took it away in 1989.

"They can't have it both ways," says Manning.

He says unlike the Tories, the Reform Party has no choice but to wait and see what the government proposes. But the party is strongly in favor of talks beginning immediately between the Jasper business community, Transport Canada and CN Rail or alternative approaches to providing passenger service along the Rocky Mountain/Vancouver corridor.

Alberta Tourism plans to expand

Alberta Tourism Minister Don Sparrow and Max McCann, president of the Tourism Industry Association of Alberta (TIAALTA), were pleased to announce that TIAALTA would be playing a larger role in the Team Tourism Marketing Program.

TIAALTA, in partnership with Alberta Tourism, will now administer the five-year program and will participate in an annual program review. The association and the department will work in close cooperation with the 14-member tourist zones.

"On the basis of the completed zone marketing plans, almost $468,000 has already been approved through Team Tourism. That amount has been matched with dollars from individual operators and private sector consortium members," said Sparrow.

McCann added, "The program is off to a strong start. We are excited about the enhanced role that industry will play in implementing this successful marketing program."

Alberta Tourism is nearing completion of the program's kick-start. To date, four of the 14 coordinated zone brochures have been completed, while the remaining brochures are in final production. A part of the footage for the first-ever series of regional videos is complete. A radio editorial series will air across Alberta this spring, featuring popular Canadian celebrity Austin Willis.

Alberta Tourism has also installed computer systems and supplied training in each regional zone office to assist with the accounting program for Team Tourism.

Team Tourism is a $30-million joint industry/government marketing program funded by Alberta Lotteries. Introduced by Alberta Tourism one year ago, Team Tourism encourages an integrated approach to regional tourism marketing by industry.

Hunting for treasure

Cole (left) and Clifford, both 4, confided they were on a quest to find treasure last week. They feared pirates were on their trail. If they could escape the vile clutches of their enemies, the two boys said they might build a fort.

Giveaway promotion starts in summer

Plans have been announced for another new-car giveaway promotion.

The 10-week promotion will start in July and end in mid-September.

This year's shopping promotion is being coordinated by the chamber's retail merchants committee.

Judy Forrest and chamber secretary Karen Kirkwood will be coordinating the project.

Last year the chamber ran a very successful 20-week promotion. During that time upwards of 400,000 ballots were filled out by shoppers.

But Not Today

By Frank Pavlick
Canada's Sports Poet
I'm gonna let them get me down,
I will accept defeat,
I know for sure that I'll admit,
That I'm in full retreat.
I'll quit competing, trying hard,
And humbly walk away,
That is exactly what I'll do,
Someday ... but NOT TODAY.

I'll get to work on negatives,
Get nothing further done,
By watching what the losers do,
I'll learn to not have fun,
Live out my life rejecting life,
Until I'm old and grey,
Sounds like the perfect way to live,
Someday ... but NOT TODAY.

I'll tell the world that I concede,
It's down and out for me,
And when I hear those pessimists,
You bet that I'll agree,
Concur with losers, suck my thumb,
Say what complainers say,
I know that's what I'm gonna do,
Someday ... but NOT TODAY.

Amoco still gets feedback over well

Amoco Canada is still getting feedback from the public meeting they held in Rocky Rapids last week concerning a water source well.

R. Whaley expressed in a letter to Jake Buekert that he is still concerned with the amount of water Amoco proposes to pump.

"Fifty gallons a minute sounds like such an insignificant number, but please remember that minutes are endless. One day's production at this rate would equal 72,000 gallons. In a 30-day month 2,160,000 gallons would be used. Over a one-year period almost 26,000,000 gallons of water would be lost forever and your study is based on a 20-year span," Whaley said in his letter.

Whaley expressed many concerns that residents felt the evening of the meeting; that besides all the promises Amoco is making, they remain skeptical.

"You, (Jake Buekert district manager of Amoco) made reference at one point to 'the sins of our fathers' and about not wanting to accept responsibility for past errors caused by Amoco. Can you provide some guarantee that you won't be the 'Father' my children allude to in years to come?" Whaley said in a letter to Buekert.

Duke Anderson, district engineer stepping in for Buekert last week, said Amoco has not yet made a decision on whether to go ahead with their original plans or not. He said Whaley was the only resident Amoco has heard from since the public meeting.

Travelling zoo visits Lindale school

By Delaine Robinson
Work experience student
The Storyland Valley Zoo from Edmonton, made a rare appearance at Lindale school, April 18.

Although there are daily trips to schools and malls in Edmonton, rarely does it get out to the rural schools.

The travelling zoo is comprised of two attendants and 12 animals. The animals can be selected from a group of 21, which are alternated frequently.

"If one of the animals starts to get sick or needs rest, we usually leave them at the zoo for a couple of days," commented attendant Larissa MacLean, who has worked alternately between the Valley Zoo and West Edmonton Mall's zoology department.

The travelling zoo was at the school for most of the afternoon and made three, 45-minute presentations.

The content of the presentations ranged from the animals' eating habits and life spans to unique talents and dispositions.

A wise old owl named Garfield, a speaking crow named Bran and an energetic woodchuck named Alice, were among the 12 animals presented to the students.

Some of the animals were born at the zoo and have known no other life. Others are orphans which have been brought to the zoo by the fish and wildlife department. "Most of the animals have been hand-raised and a very used to people," MacLean told students during her presentation.

The program has been running for five years and is in effect only from January to April.

Storyland Valley Zoo attendant Larissa MacLean brought animals to Lindale last week as part of a rare out-of-Edmonton tour.

Course teaches life-saving methods

Twenty members of the general public are currently attending a first-aid/cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) course at Frank Maddock high school. Instructor Rob McLellan says this course will earn students a standard first-aid certificate, as well as a CPR heart-saver certificate.

McLellan wanted to stress the importance of activating emergency medical services as quickly as possible.

McLellan says people take this course for work requirements and school purposes.

He says this particular course is especially interesting because students learn to triage (mass casualty care).

Two women practice techniques to be used when a patient is choking.

McLellan wanted to stress the importance of activating emergency medical services as quickly as possible. He also stressed this course only qualifies students to sustain a patient until more advanced help arrives.

Students learn bandaging techniques.

Council to look at water pressure

Council is taking a serious look at water pressures around town.

Gord Wark, a representative of ISL Infrastructure Systems Ltd. discussed the problem recently with town council.

He outlined the alternatives and recommendations for controlling the water pressure system for the town, the Poplar Ridge area and lands adjacent to the town.

After hearing about three alternatives, council decided to accept the ISL recommendation to utilize in-house pressure-reducing valves to address the immediate problem of low water pressure in Celebrity Heights and Celebrity Estates. And, to increase the water pressure by two PSI (estimated pressure contours) increments within the next six-month period to minimize the impact on the water distribution system.

Further to that, council will assume the cost of installing the pressure-reducing valves for 63 lots in the subdivisions that are already developed, and that the owners of those lots still not developed, be informed the purchase of the valve is part of the development permit.

The estimated cost of installing the 63 valves is $6,300.

Clean-up May 1-5

The town's annual spring clean-up will be held May 1-5. During spring clean-up week, regular garbage pickup will occur. All lawn and hedge clippings, bags of refuse, should be ready by 8 a.m.

Special hours will also be in effect at the landfill site: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

There will be no charge for use of the landfill.

If you have any large items to remove from your property such as appliances, furniture or car bodies, call the town office at 542-5327 to arrange for pickup. There will be no charge.

School children will also be participating in the annual campaign cleaning school grounds.

Potential safety defect found in child restraints

More than 7,000 units of the Cosco Auto Trac child restraint have been distributed across Canada with a potential safety defect, warns the Alberta Motor Association.

The seat has a retractable harness system which should automatically adjust to fit the child. But the webbing guides are too narrow and don't allow the harness to retract fully. In a collision, a child's body would move too far forward, possibly resulting in serious head injuries.

The defective seats were manufactured by Cosco Inc. and distributed in Canada by Cambridge Recreation Products between Jan. 1, 1987 and Dec. 31, 1988.

Owners of child restraint seats should examine the information label found on the back of all approved units. If it's a Cosco Auto Trac distributed by Cambridge Recreation Products, consumers should immediately contact Dorel Industries Inc. at (514) 323-5701 or write 4750 Des Grandes Prairies, St. Leonard, Quebec, H1R 1A3.

New webbing guides will be sent free to owners by Dorel. The replacement parts are easy to install and effectively correct the harness retraction problem.

Basement aerobics help stay in shape

By Belinda Atkinson

If the staid, institutional setting is keeping you away from exercise programs, a local aerobic instructor has the answer.

"Come on over to my house," is Vicki Johnston's philosophy since starting Fitness For Life in her home three years ago.

Johnston offers aerobic workout sessions, weight training, fitness testing and lifestyle counselling from the basement of an otherwise normal, middle-class house in Aspenview.

There are all the signs of home — barking dogs, children, a cat and rabbit — as well as any equipment one would want to get in shape.

And Johnston is not just a mother of two trying to earn a little extra spending money on the side.

Before coming to Canada 10 years ago, Johnston worked as a physiological measurements technician in intensive care and cardiology.

After finding her credentials didn't conform to Canadian standards, Johnston went back to school and eventually earned the exercise field's highest ranking title of certified fitness instructor three years ago at the University of Alberta.

Her endeavor in Drayton Valley, she says, is preventive medicine rather than corrective.

Johnston currently has 40 clients participating in some of her 15 weekly classes.

She alternates rapid aerobic work with weight training on two skill levels to achieve an overall body workout.

Those more skilled run a "super circuit" — changing from aerobics to a weight station every 30 seconds. Beginners work at a slower pace of two-and-a-half minutes of aerobics to one-and-a-half minutes weight training.

"When working at a slower pace, you build muscle. That's absolutely vital at first."

"Many women work themselves into a sorry state where they can't lose any more weight because they don't have muscle."

"Some women come in here and say they're eating like sparrows but can't lose weight. That's why," she explains.

This is where Johnston says lifestyle counselling becomes so important. They have to want to lose weight, know what's required and be prepared to dedicate themselves.

And while Johnston demands much of her clients, she also offers a flexible plan. Johnston says routines are changed occasionally and individualized to each person's liking.

This method, she says, has paid off for clients and the business.

"I have a thriving business," she says.

Johnston opened a gym downtown approximately five years ago that became a "big flop."

She stuck with the business for three years but said it was "very stressful" near the end just trying to keep it going.

Now, clients are literally knocking on her door.

Plugging the hole

Crews were busy last week repairing a water leak behind the Sears store. Here, two workmen survey the repair job.

Depot lineups will continue for a while

Long lineups at the Beehive Workshop bottle depot will be continuing for a little while longer.

Bruce Nichols, the Beehive's executive director says their much-anticipated expansion is still very much up in the air.

At the present time, the Beehive is waiting for a reply from Social Services on a request for $200,000.

That money is urgently needed before the planned expansion, on property east of Woodland Chrysler, can proceed.

According to Nichols the Beehive has about $179,000. This figure is made up from $100,000 the association hopes to get for the existing property and the remaining $79,000 has been raised through various fundraisers.

They also have a surplus which isn't figured in the totals.

Originally, May 17, 1989 had been set as the tentative date for the official and turning of the Beehive Enterprises' new 9,000-square-foot facility.

Now, the Beehive is playing a waiting game with the provincial government.

Nichols had a meeting yesterday (Monday) with Drayton Valley MLA Tom Thurber in an attempt to speed up the process.

Long lineups at the bottle depot is just one of the problems the Beehive has to contend with out of its present building on 50th Ave.

According to Nichols, the existing building was designed for 15 people and 31 are currently working out of the facility.

Three Breton break-ins last week leave residents shaking heads

The AIF supply store and Macleods in Breton were broken into and suffered losses due to theft last week.

A variety of items were stolen including a television set, VCR, ammunition, etc. The total value of the stolen goods was estimated at $5,000.

RCMP said the same culprits appear to have also entered the Roman Catholic Church. The church suffered an undetermined amount of damage.

"It's an awful shame that this kind of thing has to happen," said Rosemary Durrant, owner of the Macleods store.

No charges have been laid to date. The police investigation is continuing. If anyone has any information regarding these incidents, please contact

Const. Peter Clark of the Breton RCMP.

Breton RCMP warn people not to hire handymen

The Breton RCMP detachment has issued a warning after area residents were charged "a grossly exorbitant amount" for repairs to the exterior of their homes.

Const. Peter Clark said they have reason to believe a number of incidents are related and officers have begun an investigation to find the culprit(s).

Clark requests that anyone approached by a suspicious individual immediately report details and licence plate numbers to the detachment.

MD annual meeting lonely

Annual meetings held by the MD in Drayton Valley and Breton last week drew poor turnouts.

Only two people from the public turned out for the Monday night meeting in Drayton Valley with eight turning out the following night in Breton.

In contrast, the MD had 13 staff members, including the five-member council in attendance.

Reeve Henry Rondeau was concerned.

"It's unfortunate. But, I guess they're satisfied," Rondeau told The Western Review.

John McGowan, from the province's municipal affairs department attended the meeting in Drayton Valley, but he wasn't called on for any explanations.

One of the items dealt with at the abbreviated meetings was the reading of the financial statement by Bill Fleming.

The statement showed that when the MD started their operations in July 1988 they had $886,259 in machinery and equipment. That increased to $3,171,481 in six months.

Another area of the budget that showed tremendous growth was vehicles. In July 1988 the MD vehicle total was $166,541 compared to $352,078 by the end of the year.

The financial statement also showed that Reeve Henry Rondeau had received $32,296 in monthly salary and expenses during the first six months of operation.

Councillor Neil Norton was paid $20,505 and Bob Booth received $16,549.

Rondeau took time at the annual meeting to praise the MD staff.

"They have worked very hard. I'm proud of the work they have done," he stated.

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT Valley Motor Inn

(formerly Twin Pines Motel)

Come in and Meet Our New Managers: Pat and Bill Campbell.

Motel changes hands

The Royal Bank sold the Valley Inn March 31 to Rusty's National Hotels.

The 62-room inn was under receivership through the local bank and managed by Renford Inns, an Edmonton-based chain with 12 facilities across Canada.

New owners Bob Campbell and Adam German purchased their third property — in addition to one in Hinton and Fort McMurray — and dropped the national hotel chain as management.

According to new manager Bill Campbell, the owners plan to re-design the front end office and restaurant but also want to maintain the same clientele and service.

"We're going to stick to the same type of clientele. We won't go in to a dining-room style of restaurant...just good, home-cooked meals," Campbell said.

Active senior citizens' association volunteers praised by governments

The Purple Pansy Senior Citizens Association has been commended by the federal and provincial governments.

Past and present board members were recognized for their involvement in the successful operation of senior citizens' self-contained housing. The self-contained apartment units have made affordable housing available to Drayton Valley seniors at 25 per cent of income for over 14 years.

"We appreciate the time and expertise you have contributed," the ministers noted.

The Hon. Alan Redway, Minister of State (Housing), Yellowhead MP Joe Clark, the Hon. Dennis Anderson, Alberta's Minister of Municipal Affairs and Drayton Valley MLA Tom Thurber recognized the importance of the self-contained housing to seniors and thanked them during Volunteer Week April 9-15.

"We appreciate the time and expertise you have contributed," the ministers noted.

Under the senior citizens' self-contained program, Alberta's 13,921 apartment units represents a capital investment of over $624 million. About 75 per cent of the projects are cost-shared by the provincial and federal governments, with the Alberta government unilaterally subsidizing the balance.

Development projects booming across Canada

By Murray Ramsack, CA
Across Canada, residential, commercial and industrial real estate development projects are booming. And investors are clamoring to get a piece of the action.

If getting in on the ground level is something you've been considering, what criteria should you use in making your investment decision?

First, you should satisfy yourself the land to be developed is in a good location. This may seem elementary, but we've all heard stories of investors wowed into buying Florida land, only to find later they'd bought a very expensive piece of swamp.

In the same vein, check out the zoning requirements for the property. Is there approval to go ahead with the type of project planned? A developer who wants to build a condominium on a site zoned for industrial use may face a wait of 18 to 24 months for zoning approval or changes to the municipality's official plan. During that wait, the capital you invest is tied up, unable to work for you.

If you're serious about investing in a certain project, have a chartered accountant draw up several cash flow projections for it. These should indicate high, low and medium costs for financing the project. As well, the projections should give you an idea of the break-even point for your investment and the projected capital value of the development in years to come.

The projections should take into account factors such as potential fluctuations in interest rates, the possibility of having to infuse supplementary cash into the project after ground has been broken, the amount of time the developer will have to carry a construction loan before being able to switch to permanent financing such as a mortgage, insurance costs and the cost of falling behind schedule.

Further, investigate pre-opening costs closely. Under tax reform, many expenses incurred both before and during construction may no longer be written off but, instead, must be capitalized.

Your CA should verify whether you can write off expenses associated with arranging a mortgage, with professional services used during construction or with landscaping, for example. He or she also can review the ways in which investing in a development project will affect your personal income tax position.

In the process of evaluating your potential investment, don't forget to assess just how much you're putting at risk. If investing in an attractive project means borrowing heavily or risking a substantial percentage of your savings, you may want to reconsider. Indeed, one of the most important questions you can ask yourself when it comes to investing in real estate development is: "How much do I stand to lose in the worst of all cases?"

$109-$110,000 popular price for new homes

By Sue Kenyon

New homes are still popping up in the area but contractor, Rick Nordstrom says a lot of the luxuries are being taken out and more affordable homes are being built.

"Rather than the $140,000 homes, we are building units worth $109-$110,000. There seems to be more of a market for them," he says.

As a contractor, he must be very careful when building. He admits it is easy to get carried away, but the price of the house goes up and they have problems selling them.

The cost of housing in the area, Nordstrom predicts, will go up simply because the price of lumber has gone up.

"We are looking at an increase of about $10,000 over one year. A home worth $140,000 this year will probably sell for $150,000 next year," he said.

The new tax law may also affect the cost of housing, especially if the ground costs go up.

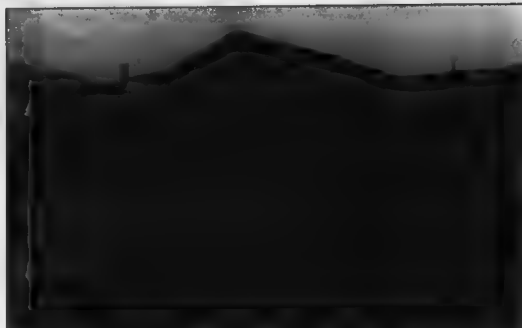

Nordstrom says presently average lot sizes are 55-60 feet by 120 feet. He doesn't see that changing but says the cost may go up.

"Most lots now go for $19,000-$24,000, if the price of the lots go up, it could affect real estate greatly," he said.

Right now, affordable lots are available in Northview and Aspenview, two new subdivisions. However he said that subdivisions like Celebrity and Boardwalk are not selling. The average lot price in both runs about $45,000 he said.

Nordstrom says more buyers are looking for acreages now.

"Acreages go up and down in popularity. They went really well in 1978 and then bottomed out. They seem to be picking up again," he said.

This home in Aspenview has been sold. They don't stay on the market for long.

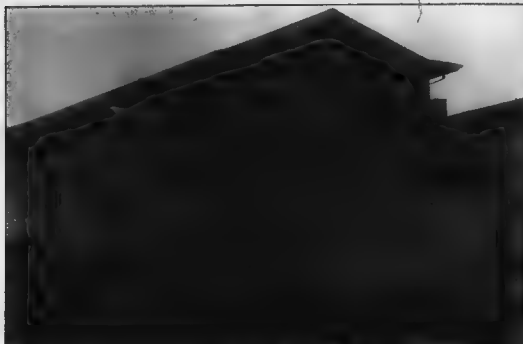

Luxuries like wood are being removed.

The windows and door of the kitchen is a Nordal trademark.

Rick Nordstrom

This home will sell in the vicinity of $140,000. Luxury homes like this are not as in demand.

Semi-circle windows are an added touch.

High ceilings compliment entrance area.

Long windows compliment this living room.

Home of the Week

Picture your family in this beautiful 1,700-square-foot bi-level with immaculate living space. Only 11 years old and still smells like new.

This well-kept home features five bedrooms, three baths, two fireplaces and a woman's dream for a kitchen. The large (17 ft. x 10.6 ft.) kitchen features a built-in dishwasher and garbage disposal.

This beautiful home sits on 10 acres of land. There is an attached double garage with basement entrance, and also a single garage for that extra vehicle. But it doesn't stop there.

Five acres are fenced for livestock, a barn which has two stalls, three pens with water and power, two granaries, three sheds and a chicken coop.

All of this to offer plus a generous view of Drayton's night light — and a view of the mountains on clear days.

This 10-acre package and home is priced at only $142,000 and can be viewed through Farmers and Ranchers.

...only 11 years old and still smells like new. Immaculate home has lots to offer...

New group promotes Canada meat

A group representing Canadian meat in the international marketplace. The Canadian Meat Export Federation will start by targeting beef sales to Japan. Agriculture to promote. Among the mandate objectives are promotion of Canadian meat products to export market consumers, retailers, wholesalers and food service outlets, assisting federation members to better understand market dynamics, providing support materials and coordinating general marketing efforts such as seminars, missions, market studies, product demonstrations and trade show participation.

Currently, the federation is developing promotion strategy and expanding membership. It hopes other provinces and meat industry representatives will get involved.

New stamps designed

Parkland board wants school fees consistent

The County of Parkland school board may set fees for different activities to ensure consistency throughout county schools.

Notice of motion on the proposed policy was served at the board's April meeting.

The first draft of the policy reads that fees would be set annually prior to the commencement of the school year for things like textbooks, equipment rentals and transportation.

"We need to be consistent in all our fees throughout the system," said trustee Helga Mertz during a discussion on the proposed policy.

She also said the board should have an idea in subsequent policy drafts of what to charge for the different activities and equipment rentals.

Superintendent Marv Tkachuk agreed fees among the schools should be made consistent. He added there are too many different fees at different schools.

Tkachuk said the board just does not have enough money to pay for everything without charging supplemental fees to students.

Use common sense during break-up

The spring season brings with it a natural hazard of which people should be aware.

Ice break-up on rivers and lakes can be extremely dangerous for those thinking of going out onto the ice for one reason or another.

The Drayton Valley area has not had any past problem with accidents due to ice break-up says Cpl. Dave Caspale of the Drayton Valley RCMP, but his advice was not to go on the ice.

Staff Sgt Jim Humphrey says there are obvious dangers during spring break-up, and that people should use common

Education a sound investment

Alberta's future leaders and workers will start Grade 1 this year full of enthusiasm and curiosity. Providing the best possible education for these young people is a top priority of interest to all Albertans. Education is a sound investment in the future.

The provincial government has announced a 6.5 per cent increase in provincial per-student operating grants to school boards for the 1989/90 school year. With this increase, total government funding for education will be about $1.5 billion, more than double the funding provided 10 years ago.

Alberta leads other provinces in the delivery of quality education, with innovative policy and programs. For example, 'distance learning' gives students access to a broad variety of classes, regardless of where they live.

The new language education policy underlines the importance of high proficiency in the English language while recognizing the diverse language needs of multicultural Alberta.

The Native education project continues to address, in many meaningful ways, the needs of Native students throughout the province, in addition to creating a greater awareness among Alberta students of the many contributions Native people have made to Alberta.

Weekend of fun and learning at Selections '89

By Janet Carlyon
Regional 4-H Specialist
Selections '89! Here we come! An opportunity for many Alberta 4-H members to join in a weekend of fun and learning and to possibly be awarded a chance to travel throughout Canada and the United States.

About 140 4-H members will be milling around the Olds College campus this weekend. Throughout the weekend they will explore a

Sewage plant expansion costs up

The news, wasn't all that good.

During a recent briefing on the sewage treatment plant expansion, town council heard the project is 10 to 15 per cent above the projected cost.

Frank Lotz, a representative of ISL Infrastructure Systems Ltd. attributed this to inflation and the catch-up (cost riding) in the construction industry.

At the present time ISL is working on the completion of the tender documents for the project and reviewing the design with administration.

With the planned expansion, the plant will have the capacity to service 13,000 households. This is an increase from the present 9,000 households.

theme in small and large groups. Award selections are based on each member's general knowledge (4-H and otherwise), 4-H and community involvement and personal conduct.

National 4-H careers conference, agricultural camping tour of Alberta and Northwest Territories, and an exchange to Indiana are only a few of the program opportunities. Also selected this weekend will be the new Premiers Award winner to replace the 1988 winner Lisa Properzi of the Barrhead area. This person will represent 4-H members at various provincial and local events for the next year.

This weekend's program will centre around the theme, 'Bring out the best' and will look at creating positive relationships. Members will be faced with numerous challenges throughout the weekend to help them bring out the best in themselves.

This year the Selections

Program will see a record-high representation from the northwest region. Thirty-three members from across the region will put their best foot forward and enjoy a great weekend.

Prayer not easy, but it works

By Father Martin Carroll
DV Catholic Church

Christians throughout the world have recently celebrated the great feast of Easter, and at this time many reflect on what the resurrection of Jesus meant to the apostles and the other followers of Jesus.

In the Acts of the Apostles we can read about those Christian communities and see how they were influenced by the teachings of Jesus. We see those early communities gathering together and sharing with one another; they helped and supported each other as they tried to answer Christ's call for them to love one another as He loved them.

We also see them at prayer when they gathered together. This should not surprise us since Jesus gave them the example of praying; indeed, the apostles were so influenced by the example of Jesus they asked Him to teach them how to pray. In response Jesus gave them the prayer which we call the Lord's Prayer.

He also gave advice to them

Increase in area land clearing noted

There has been a fair bit of land cleared this past year and Gerald Laarhuis, district agriculturalist says grain prices and economics have a lot to do with it.

"Grain prices have been really good so I think it encouraged people to clear more land," he says.

Laarhuis says that although the amount of land clearing going on may seem to be a lot, it remains in the Sermon on the Mount (Mt. Ch. 6: 7-8). He told them not to use a lot of meaningless words because the Father knows what we need before we ask Him.

But how to pray? It is surprising how we can persist in the idea that our prayer can control God! We inform Him about what is going on and call His attention to what He should be concerned about. A prayer like this assumes God is ignorant and has to be informed. Our prayer informs Him or tries to convince Him to change His mind. We are not above slipping a bribe into our prayer either: "If you do this for me God I promise I will always..."

But prayer is not to change God. It is to be changed by God. Perhaps many realize that if they keep on praying something will happen to them and so they avoid prayer. All prayer has one thing in common — a conversion. But it isn't God who is converted — we are. Perhaps that is why we hold to the illusion that prayer does something to God. We don't want to be converted.

Prayer is not easy, but it does work. Does it work for you? You must look within for the answer, but only after having prayed for a while. If after praying you sense you have more peace in your life, that you begin to see others in a more compassionate way, if you face up to problems you have avoided in the past — then something is going on within you, the change has begun.

Garage/bake sale April 29

By Sylvia Davidson

The Violet Grove Community club held its annual elections April 18 and as a result, Holly Vos found herself holding the president's position. Mary Bigelow was voted in as treasurer, Susan Merrifield as secretary and Verlie Klap as vice-president.

The board of directors include Wes Davidson, Sylvia Davidson, Charlie Puckett, Kelly Starling, Maryelle Berezowski, Josie Calvert and Cindy Bierko.

A bottle drive was held in mid-April and netted the club $193. The money will go toward a bingo fund to help set up for bingos in the fall. Charlie Puckett and a crew of volunteers are meeting later this month to build picnic tables for community use at outdoor functions.

A garage and bake sale is scheduled for the weekend of April 29 at the 4-H hall.

Get well wishes to Cindy Bierko who is recovering at home from recent surgery.

The social evening held in March was a success and enjoyed by all.

Robert Davidson is wrapping up his first year in forest technology at NAIT and will return home at the end of the month.

The next general meeting will be May 2 at 7:30 p.m.

New gown reduces infection risk

A new surgical gown that reduces the risk of infection in the operating room has been designed by a textile professor at the University of Guelph.

The number 1 requirement for any surgical gown is that it prevent the flow of bacteria from doctor to patient (and vice versa).

Cotton has always been the best fabric for surgical gowns because it removes perspiration. However, as the gown grows wet with sweat, it acts as a breeding ground for bacteria, which escape easily through the cloth. Surgeons sometimes wear plastic aprons underneath their gowns to increase sterility, but this also increases perspiration.

University of Guelph professor Keith Slater has now designed a gown made of Gore-tex, a material that breathes without absorbing bacteria.

The gown also has dolman sleeves that provide good ventilation around the armpits and fit tightly around the wrist. The gown's seams are taped and welded electrically to ensure total water resistance.

- You must have a principal residence in Alberta with a mortgage interest rate exceeding 12%.
- Benefits are available on a combined mortgage amount of up to $75,000. This can be any type of mortgage loan, as long as it is registered with Land Titles or Central Registry.
- There is no restriction on home type, as long as it is your principal residence, located in Alberta, and is registered as being owned by the applicant(s).
- There is no restriction on income or marital status.

If you meet these basic Program qualifications, you are likely eligible to receive benefits under the Alberta Mortgage Interest Shielding Program. - You must have resided in Alberta for at least six months prior to applying for benefits.

- The home being purchased may be of any type, but must be the principal residence of the applicant, and be located in Alberta.
- The applicant must make a minimum cash down payment of 5% of the total house price (including land) or $1,500, whichever is greater. The amount of the down payment will be higher than 5% if the cost of the home is more than $80,000. This down payment cannot include the $4,000 interest-free loan.

Buck Lake

Committee asks school boundaries remain

By Joan Elmont
Representatives from the County of Wetaskiwin, Forestry and Environment, hosted a tent caterpillar seminar April 11 at the Buck Lake hall. Only seven people were in attendance.

The West End Education committee met with the Wetaskiwin County Board of Education April 4.

In their presentation they asked that school boundaries remain as is, whether or not the municipal boundaries change in the future.

They asked that, if there was enough response from parents in the Pendryl area, that the east boundary be extended to accommodate them. They received a favorable response from the county.

Parkland school board asking for $5-M grant

One area needs to be clarified before the county of Parkland school board can go ahead with its bid for transitional funding caused by the loss of the Twin Rivers school division.

The board is waiting for a response from Steve Cmybol, director of school administration with Alberta Education.

Cymbal will give the board an assessment of its proposed 1989-90 budget.

He'll also weigh the school board's staff reduction report and different proposals on the actual funding.

Marv Tkachuk, superintendent of schools for the county, updated the board on its transitional funding at their April meeting.

Tkachuk said the board administration is waiting for Cymbol to assure the board the figures are realistic before any further formal school board action is taken.

The board also passed a motion to have information sessions with affected municipalities regarding the funding and what effect it will have on municipal budgets.

The meetings will be to show what the budget is and inform the municipalities of the impact on taxes because of the split, Tkachuk says.

The school board is asking for a transitional grant of $5

Farm fatalities in Alberta decreased by one-third in 1988, the second year in the last three to record a major annual decrease.

There were 12 farm fatalities last year and 18 in 1987. Last year's total is also significantly below the four-year — 1984-1988 — average of 19.

The six- to 10-year-old group is the target for the Farm Safety Rural School program. The support and acceptance the program received from farmers and rural schools has been a factor in the decline of farm fatalities.

Farm machinery claimed seven lives of the 12 lost in farm accidents. Some of the contributing factors in the deaths were extra riders, a step a victim was standing on breaking, attempting to dig out a tractor that was still in gear and a bale falling off the prong causing a tractor to flip over.

Alberta communities involved with CTAP

Seventy-two communities have had community tourism action plans (CTAPs) registered in the past year.

There is now a total of 84 plans formally endorsed by local councils and registered by Alberta Tourism. More than 300 or 75 per cent of Alberta's communities are involved with the CTAP program.

The CTAP program was officially launched in 1987 to encourage communities to capitalize on local and regional tourism resources through strategic planning. The tourism action plan manual helps communities identify assets, address concerns and develop goals and objectives to improve their local tourism industry.

Once plans are registered, municipalities are eligible to receive capital project funding assistance through the community tourism action plan.

Keeping our commitment in rural Canada

One of the most important parts of our commitment to rural Canadians is making postal products and services more accessible.

To help us do this, we draw on the resources and the expertise of local business. Where practical, we are approaching business people in communities across the country and offering them the opportunity to provide you with postal products and services. As a result, you can now buy postal products or services in more locations at convenient hours, often including evenings and weekends.

Real benefits for everyone

More outlets. The objective is to increase the number of rural locations where you can access postal products or services from 5,000 to 7,000.

More convenience. Retail postal outlets are conveniently located in businesses close to other services in communities across Canada. Longer business hours give you even more accessibility to postal products.

More business for local merchants. Local merchants are being given an opportunity to provide postal products or services. This strengthens their business through increased customer traffic, and maintains the business base of the community.

More efficient service. With local merchants retailing postal products and services, Canada Post Corporation is able to concentrate on reliable pick-up, processing and delivery of mail to Canadians.

Canada Post Corporation is delivering on its promise.
We're in rural Canada to stay.

Freeze branding more humane

By Gerald Laarhuis
District Agriculturist

Branding is the surest method of identifying ownership of cattle, however, conventional heat branding has always been a painful and stressful procedure for cattle.

For farmers looking for an alternative, freeze branding is now accepted as a more humane alternative to hot iron branding. Although freeze branding requires different equipment, is more difficult, requiring more time, the final result is a legal, distinct brand.

The preferred freeze branding procedures involve the use of copper-alloy irons cooled in liquid nitrogen. The hair must be clipped from the area of the brand and the site must be washed with alcohol to remove dirt and oils from the skin.

The freeze method of branding is considered more humane and less stressful because the freezing desensitizes the nerve endings, thereby reducing pain. The process is similar to frostbite — first the branded area will swell, then within several days the swelling disappears and there will be no evidence of any brand at all. The brand will become visible again with the regrowth of white hair in a couple weeks. The most desirable branding procedures destroy the color pigment of the hair. On white cattle the branding irons are applied longer which results in destruction of the entire hair follicle resulting in no hair on the brand.

For those interested in freeze branding, Alberta Agriculture will be conducting a demonstration at Charlie Parker's farm (three miles west of Buck Lake). Ninety head of yearlings will be freeze branded. Interested people are welcome to view the procedure any time between 10:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Wednesday, May 3.

Dangerous goods seminar to be held May 9

A dangerous goods seminar will be held May 9 in town.

The three-and-a-half-hour seminar, being sponsored by the town, will be held at the Elks Hall beginning at 7 p.m.

The seminar is designed to help people identify dangerous goods and potential responses and assist in dealing with accidents where dangerous goods are involved.

Certificates will be given to participants.

For further information call Dave Turner at 542-5327. There's no charge.

Freeze method of branding is considered an alternative to hot-iron branding as it is less painful, less stressful.

Microwave cookware tested

By Samia Vallemand
Microwave ovens are great for reheating leftovers, defrosting frozen food or cooking convenience meals. Such simple tasks usually call for simple cookware — a dinner plate or plastic storage container, for example.

But, more ambitious microwaving requires dishes that can withstand high temperatures and longer cooking times. Our product testing labs looked at 13 different brands of microwave cookware.

Dishes for use in both types of oven — including pieces similar to those you may already have in your kitchen — topped the test. Before you set out to buy microwave cookware, take a good look through your kitchen. You may already have what you need if you own ovenproof glass or glass ceramic dishes. Plastic microwave cookware is also available. Some of it can be used in a conventional oven, as well. Most of the plastic cookware is not recommended for conventional-oven temperatures beyond a range of 180 to 215 degrees C or 350 to 420 degrees F. All of the tested models emerged intact from the conventional oven. While still usable, the plastic models were in less-than-mint condition. They all changed color — some slightly, some more dramatically.

Consumer's Corner

The product information office of CAC-Alberta can give you all of the test results as well as the names of recommended cookware. Just phone 420-0747.

Reducing deficit one of several federal government's priorities

The speech from the throne, read by Governor General Jeanne Sauve April 3, opened the second session of the 34th Parliament.

The speech emphasized five fundamental objectives of the government's second mandate:

To build a stronger economy. Measures will be implemented to reduce the deficit.

The government will continue the process of implementing the free trade agreement with the United States and actively participate in the multilateral trade negotiations through the Uruguay round of GATT.

We will work with provincial governments to reduce interprovincial trade barriers which create distortions and inequities in Canada's economic development.

Government procurement policies will be increasingly responsive to regional considerations. Crown corporations which no longer serve a public policy role will be privatized.

A commitment to national unity. The government will continue to seek ratification of the Meech Lake Accord which is the indispensable first step to further evolution of the Canadian Constitution, such as senate reform.

Around the Province

Council expenses

The 1988 financial statement shows Edson taxpayers paid $68,000 on salaries and travel expenses for six councillors and the mayor.

Building opening

A new county administration building in Ponoka is scheduled to open May 2.

Yellowhead Report

By Joe Clark, MP

Protecting our environment. The government will establish the National Round Table on the environment and the economy to provide leadership and to form new partnerships among Canadians to deal more effectively with environmental concerns and their relationship to the challenges of economic growth. We will also work to improve the quality of our atmosphere.

A caring, compassionate society. There will be a continued commitment to those social benefits which support the family and the elderly, while recognizing the need to direct more assistance toward those with low incomes.

Fostering values that make Canada unique. The government will continue the commitment to the growth and development of Canada's cultural life, to the linguistic duality, and to the rich and diverse multicultural heritage.

Cards of Thanks

WE WISH to thank the Drayton Valley Legion for their kindness and help for giving us money and letting us use the Legion van to go to my brother's funeral in B.C. Also to Rose who brought me flowers from the Legion. Special thanks to Vern and Lou. 8:16

Bride and her
THANK YOU, we the family of Roland Marcotte, wish to thank everyone who took part in the preparation and burial of the casket and prayers. Also thanks for the preparation of food, flowers, donations and musical entertainment. We were overwhelmed by the generosity, compassion and caring received from the numerous relatives and friends during these difficult times. It certainly was a joy to have a humbling experience. Thank you from his 5 children: Vivienne, Gerald, Lillian, Richard, and the families.

FERTIG, Marynn (Wayne)
In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Marynn (Wayne) Fertig who passed away April 26, 1989. God called him home, it was His will. But in our hearts we love him still. His memory is as dear today as when we met and think of him. When we are all alone, For memory is the only thing. That goes on in our hearts. Always remembered and sadly missed by wife Edie, Wayne, Cindy, Sandy, Doug, Denise and families.

JONES, Bob
In loving memory of Bob Jones, husband and father, who passed away April 28, 1989. We think of you in silence. We often speak your name. All we have are memories And your picture in a frame. We cherish you slowly fade away. Our hearts were almost broken. You fought so hard to stay. But when we say sleeping. So peaceful, free from pain. We could not wait your back. To suffer that again. Nothing can be more beautiful Than the memory we have of you. To us you were very special. And God must have thought so too. Our family chain is broken. And nothing is the same. As we God calls us, one by one. Our chain will link again. Sadly realized and lovingly remembered by Mike, Brent, Susan and Clayton, Pat and Calvin.

DAD
Time goes so quickly. Yet moves real slow. Leaving heart fresh as dew. You always cared. Would listen to me dream. Encouraging, believing in me! The moon rises high in the sky. As high as you were in my eyes. I think of you. So full of courage, strength and faith. Loveless flower deep in me. So many things to have loved you for. Somewhere forever in my heart. Yet happiness forever being a part of you.

YOUTH
Your spirit is here. Warning me through. Telling me to go on - be strong. And yes I will. For do I not want to forever be? Just like you. Donna May Mike Musson, owner of Frank's Saw Service has been busy recently sharpening over 20 lawn mower blades daily.

MD reduces speed limit

The speed limit has been reduced on Secondary road 620 from Lodgepole to Highway 22.

The MD of Branson decided at its meeting last Wednesday to ratify a recommendation from the Highway 620 Advocates, and go with 90 kilometres per hour, both day and night.

"It will help," says president Cliff Whitelock.

Originally, the MD indicated it was going to go with 100 km during the day and 90 at night.

However, pressure from the Highway 620 Advocates changed that.

Upon learning of the MD's decision Whitelock said, "I'm satisfied with their decision."

Next on Whitelock's agenda is to get proper policing along the highway.

He suggested last week that his group will likely be meeting with the RCMP to discuss their concerns.

Meanwhile, Whitelock and his group met last week with Drayton Valley MLA Tom Thurber. He was given a number of recommendations that will be forwarded to the highways minister for consideration.

If those recommendations aren't met, the Highway 620 Advocates will push for a meeting with the minister.

"This road is so unsafe it's ridiculous," says Whitelock. Another concern of Whitelock's, is reports of increased logging truck traffic on the highway.

Pool deficit draining budget

By Frank Ryan

The Park Valley indoor swimming pool recorded a $100,831 deficit last year.

Mayor Bob Mayhew says it's something council will have to address, but he's not alarmed.

Recreation director Paul Nielsen echoed the mayor's statement.

The pool's financial statement shows revenues totalled $164,145 while expenditures reached $265,077.

The deficit will be reduced when a contribution of $19,600 is received from the MD and another $5,047 from the County of Parkland.

Mayor Mayhew says wages have increased $10,000 since the indoor pool opened four years ago. The financial statement showed that wages totalled $175,868 last year.

When the pool opened, town council set a maximum budget deficit of $100,000.

The mayor says recreation people are working on this, and it's too early to say if there will be cutbacks.

The town also recorded a deficit of $58,395 at the arena.

This figure represents half a year in the old Centennial Civic Centre and the remainder in the sports centre.

Expenses at the two arenas reached $120,000 including $77,487 for salaries while revenues totalled $61,849.

The MD will also contribute $12,847 toward the arena deficit.

Mayor delays TAP plans - Gibson

By Belinda Atkinson

Drayton Valley's involvement in a government-funded tourism program is falling behind other communities because of Mayor Bob Mayhew's lack of attendance at meetings.

The charge came from tourism committee member Natalie Gibson last week after learning that 23 area communities have already developed programs under the Community Tourism Action Plan (CTAP) and are ready to collect grant money.

These Battle River Tourist Association members, she said, have reached status code four under program guidelines whereas Drayton Valley is only at status code two.

This means the local tourism committee is aware the program exists but has not yet developed any projects to cash in on the grant announced last year by Tourism Minister Don Sparrow.

"The last three tourism action meetings were cancelled because Bob Mayhew couldn't attend," Gibson said.

Because of this, she said the committee has only discussed the program three times.

Mayhew told the group to go ahead without his involvement but Gibson argued this cannot be done since he is a voting member of the committee.

However, the mayor said the committee is capable of developing plans without his attendance.

Ideas to improve tourism, he said, should come from the people rather than him.

"They can get the whole thing organized without me," he said. "Our representative from council attends those meetings."

Mayhew said Gibson is probably not aware council met last week with Deputy Minister of Tourism Bernard Campbell, at which time they discussed the CTAP at length.

He is aware Drayton Valley is behind other communities but said definite plans will be made in good time.

While 23 member communities are about to implement projects, Gibson said 16 others are ahead of Drayton Valley at stage three (in the process of developing), nine have reached stage two and 10 fall behind the local committee at stage one.

Jamie's life-long dream comes true in Edmonton

By Belinda Atkinson

A deceased boy's wish came true last Thursday with the announcement that funds are now in place to begin construction of a $3.1-million recreational facility.

Before his death two years ago next month, Jamie Platz said he wanted to leave something behind and be known for something he'd done.

His life-long struggle with cancer and perseverance through 80 operations so touched Peter Pocklington, he offered $1 million toward the new Edmonton YMCA on the condition it would be named in his honor.

"It makes me feel proud that Jamie did get through to a lot of people," said Jamie's mother Gail last week.

She said a bronze statue and story board at the entrance will outline her boy's courage from his first operation at 18 months until his death at 11 years of age.

Gail is currently co-writing a novel about the Buck Lake boy who touched many people's lives.

"He taught me a lot in his lifetime," she said.

Warm

The warm weather will continue this week. For today (Tuesday) look for a daytime high of 14 C and a low of 5 C.

On Wednesday, it's expected to be mostly sunny with a high of 17 C and a low of 3 C. The clouds will roll back in Thursday with a high of 14 C expected dropping to 4 C. Friday will have a high of 11 C and drop to zero overnight.

Tenders closed last week on bids to renovate the Pembina Educational Consortium's new office building.

The consortium hopes to move into the vacant town office building in August.

A team from the Lindale school competed in ITV's Hi-Q television program recently.

They were defeated by Haythorn 395 to 215.

Baumann Resources of Drayton Valley is still waiting on approvals for their proposed sweet and sour water disposal and cleaning facility near Edson.

An ERCB spokesman said the project is being held up because some of the residential concerns have not been met.

A tent caterpillar information night will be held tonight (Tuesday, May 2) at 7:30 p.m. in the provincial building.

The Highway 620 Advocates have asked the MD for $1,000. The funds would cover the cost of hall rental, stamps, phone calls and miscellaneous items to assist them in working on improving the Lodgepole Highway.

Trail Mapping Service has been awarded an $11,010 contract by the MD to produce a municipal map. The first order is for 1,000 maps.

The municipal district has received $50,000 through the Utilities Officer grant program.

The Battle River Tourist Association, including Drayton Valley, will be featured in the May 15 issue of Alberta Report.

Mayor Bob Mayhew says Canada Post is looking into complaints the town had received over the location of some supermailboxes.

Check fire permit regulations before burning on private land

You've got the match lit and the wood's dry but before you start that fire are you sure you don't need a permit?

The men who regulate fire permits for Drayton Valley, the MD of Brzeau and the surrounding greenbelt admit the laws are complex.

At the same time, however, they say knowing when or when not to get a permit is necessary to guard against a false alarm and possible expense to the land owner.

Regulations for inside the town limits are the easiest to understand. Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson will not issue permits because no burning is allowed.

The only exceptions to this rule, he said, are burning within a privately owned backyard pit or in a campsite pit within town limits.

"No permit is required but people should basically use common sense. With a fire screen or mesh there shouldn't be any problem," he said.

Mike Anderson, public safety officer for the MD of Brzeau, said any farmer burning on his own land must first acquire a fire permit.

He said this rule is vital during the summer permit season (April 1 to Oct. 31) to avoid false alarms that could end up costing the fire starter great expense.

Anderson said fire permits are free and can be picked up through one of eight fire guardians in the area.

Only seven guardians (usually placed in rural grocery stores or gas stations) are currently in place but Anderson said the eighth will hopefully be secured by the middle of May.

Bob Hilbert, forest ranger in Lodgepole, said cooking and warming fires are allowed throughout the greenbelt without a permit during the summer months unless the fire hazard becomes extreme.

In that case, he said, warnings would be issued and the right to have a fire would be suspended.

When it comes to waste fires at logging and oil outfalls, however, Hilbert said a fire permit must first be obtained.

These fires are often large and if rangers are not informed, Hilbert said the result could be very costly for the company involved.

Charges pending in bush fire

By Susan Moscicki
A cozy, family wiener roast turned almost 200 acres of land near Sardine Lake into a blazing inferno last weekend.

Don Renner and his family decided to have a wiener roast on a bush quarter-section which they are purchasing. "We started that (the fire), he said quietly.

"We're probably looking at 160-200 acres," said Allan Smith, Breton fire chief. "It started from misguided camping instructions — they (the Renners) were a little negligent."

Const. Dave Heslop of the Breton RCMP says charges are pending.

The Breton and Rural Fire Protection Association responded at about 1-1:30 p.m., and did not return

Entrepreneur motivates businessmen

Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce members were motivated by a knowledgeable speaker at their recent supper meeting in the Legion hall.

Mark W. Blumes, president and chief executive officer of Mark's Work Warehouse, who was described as an evangelist for business, had several interesting concepts to share with local business people.

"Look for a unique factor," he said. "Set a standard of excellence. For example, if every other business in town answers the phone in three rings, you could decide that you will answer the phone in two rings."

Blumes said that making a business plan is important, and once you make it, share it. Other ideas will help to improve your plan.

"If you have a poor quality image, you cannot pour money on the problem (ie: advertising)," said Blume. Face your problem and deal with it, was his advice.

Asking your customers how to improve your business and listening to them will be to your benefit.

"Do what you do, do well," said Blumes. In other words, stick to what you know and do it to the best of your ability and do it with a passion, he emphasized.

Grant Monsour, chamber president, said the reason for the speaker was to encourage entrepreneurship and customer service in Drayton Valley.

until about 10:30 p.m., said Smith.

To get the fire under control, he said, "We fire-guarded the perimeter of it."

"I think people have underestimated the conditions quite a bit," Smith stressed. "It's extremely necessary to realize we are into the fire season."

Renner and his wife said they were thankful that no one was hurt. "It's a heck of a way to meet your neighbors," said his wife. "It'll be sandwiches from now on."

Const. Heslop said charges are pending on two other fires in the Breton area last week. He emphasized that fire season is from April until October, and permits are required for any open fires.

Dry conditions were underestimated by a Millet couple last weekend when their campfire roared out of control and destroyed almost 200 acres of bush near Sardine Lake.

Thurber doubts lobbying efforts will force change in Alberta's many rural constituencies

By Susan Mosciak

A recent decision in the B.C. Supreme Court finding that rural ridings have too much political power may have an effect in Alberta.

As reported in the Edmonton Journal, several Edmontonians have already launched a challenge against Alberta's electoral boundaries, which are balanced against city voters.

Alberta's rural ridings currently control 41 out of 83 seats in the legislature, yet represent only 37 per cent of the province's electorate.

Tom Thurber, Drayton Valley MLA, doesn't feel rural ridings have too much political influence.

"We (the rural ridings) worry about not having enough representation," he said. "A per capita basis is not always the fair way."

"Agriculture in rural Alberta is so important to our economy," he stressed.

Forestry, energy, agriculture, and a good part of tourism is handled in the rural ridings, according to Thurber. "These are some of the factors that we have to bear in mind when we do that (review boundaries). A lot of people in cities make use of these facilities."

Thurber maintained the rural areas are the biggest part of revenue-earners for the province.

Boundaries will be reviewed according to Thurber, but he said he doesn't feel there will necessarily be a major change.

Controlled burn

Firemen were out in full force last week to make sure this controlled burn stayed under control. A large patch of grass and rundown building near Aspenview were burned because it was felt they were a fire hazard.

Council

Notes

Members of town council attended a two-day retreat in Edmonton last week.

New chairs have been added to the council chambers.

The visitors' gallery can now accommodate 26 people.

Howard Olsen is the deputy mayor for the next six months.

An amendment to the land use bylaw got second and third readings last Thursday.

The changes were necessary to open the door for the Alliance Church to build on land immediately south of the Coach Motel.

The new ambulance authority agreement got second and third reading last week.

The mayor of Spruce Grove will visit Mayor Bob Mayhew tomorrow (Wednesday).

A tour of the new administration complex is part of the day's agenda.

Local mill star of CBC show

A six-minute special report on Drayton Valley's mill was aired on CBC-TV last week.

Interviews were done with residents of the Hillcrest area, Bob Olson representing the mill, Mayor Bob Mayhew, Councillor Tom McGee and Frank Ryan, editor of The Western Review.

The special report also included footage inside and out of the mill.

The special presented most of the issues in the mill and its related problems.

Proper museum needed to preserve the past in Drayton Valley Museums are a big part of our life.

That's where one finds out about the local history and the many pioneers who opened up the country. Of the hardships they encountered and many of the tools they had to work with.

Museums seem to be popping up all over the country. In many small communities, old railway stations are being converted into the local museum.

In Breton, they are using an old school house and in Evansburg, their museum is centered around an old log house.

Unfortunately, as it may seem, the town of Drayton Valley, that boasts a population in excess of 5,000, doesn't have a proper museum.

Mind you, the Drayton Valley Historical Association has tried. While some of their artifacts were on display in the basement of the old County Parkland building, they looked into the possibility of securing some land and a proper building.

Now we learn, that most of their artifacts have been put away in storage as they had to vacate their space with the arrival of the new MD.

If town council or their tourist action committee is looking for a project...why not a museum?

The town was born out of the oil and gas industry. But there's nothing in town that lets visitors know that.

Maybe the town would consider combining a general museum with that of the oil patch.

Roadway petitioners have the right to be heard

When people submit petitions over an issue, they have a right to be heard.

That's what's encouraging in the town's (administration) proposed roadway into West Valley park.

Despite what the eventual outcome may be, Councillor Howard Olsen has suggested a meeting with the two groups who submitted petitions on the issue.

"We have a responsibility to hear from those people," Olsen told a recent council meeting.

It's been obvious from the day administration introduced the proposal, that

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

they were in some sort of rush to push it through.

Hopefully, Olsen will get his way and a meeting will be held with the petitioners and the people living in the affected area.

If you're ever playing golf at Birchwood Village Greens this summer make an effort to see the fantastic woodwork around their two fireplaces.

It is truly a fine piece of craftsmanship.

The woodwork around the fireplaces is that of Neil Kjolrien of Wofab Custom Cabinets, a Drayton Valley area business.

First it was a railway, then a federal pen and now the town is looking into the possibility of getting a Department of National Defence base.

The railway is something that might get support here, but the federal pen and defence base seem a little far-fetched.

Big thanks to everyone who attended benefit night

Dear Editor,
This is a letter of thanks to anyone who was in any way involved in the Jaime Gilbert benefit night April 21.

A great deal of planning and cooperation was needed to coordinate this event. It was very obvious everyone had a great time — even the workers.

Not everyone is as fortunate as we are to feel such a sense of community as was felt by each and every one of us who were there to share in the enjoyment.

To Jaime and her family our prayers are with you as you face the future. God grant you the strength and courage you need.

To the Evergreen school staff, the Cuisine Caterers, the Thompsons, the donors, the entertainers and everyone else involved — A big thank you! God bless!

Dear Editor,
To the cast and crew of Black Comedy presented by Playworks Players Theatrical Guild, a big bouquet of long-stemmed roses. Makes a person realize they don't smile or laugh enough in today's rapid-pace lifestyle.

Once again, thank you for an entertaining, laughter-filled evening. Such an immense amount of talent in a small community is incredible. I await the next presentation with anticipation of yet another comedy hit.

Sewage treatment facility costs skyrocket by 20 per cent

Town council learned last week the cost of the sewage treatment facility expansion had skyrocketed by 20 per cent.

A report to council from ISL Infrastructure Ltd. says the pre-design cost was underestimated by approximately 20 per cent.

As a result, the total cost of the expansion now sits at $1,838,000.

Council has decided to put the project out to tender.

It includes expansion to meet the needs of 9,000 people and options for a new chlorine facility, a laboratory in the existing plant and septage pit improvements.

The expansion will be paid through a 50/50 cost-sharing program with the province.

The increase in costs has been attributed to the change in design regarding aeration cells and piping and the increased cost of the aeration equipment and the installation of it.

Frank Lots, a representative of ISL, told council in a written report that he had met with Alberta Environment to see if anything could be cut out of the project to save money and still meet their standards. Alberta Environment suggested leaving the project as to meet standards.

Lots added, that all costs for the project have been recalculated using the most current available prices and their estimates have been based on projects of a similar nature.

He's not expecting any more increased costs.

Nashville may never be the same

Watch out Reba — here comes our Tineta

Tineta Couturier has the singing talent to take her to the top.

By Susan Moscieli
Once in every lifetime, one comes across a true talent who has that something special that will take them right to the top.

Tineta Couturier, a young, local singer, appears to have that talent, and has attracted enough attention recently to have been requested to sign a three-year recording contract with Boots Leisure Incorporated (Boots Records).

Tineta entered in the Boby Curtola 'Singing in the Shower' Talent Search, and was one of two finalists. She sang a duet with Boby Curtola, and Curtola's wife Ava took so much interest in her she told Tineta to call Boots Records.

Tineta will be going to Nashville June 5-12, and will spend most of the week in the recording studio.

She will also be experiencing any country singer's thrill of a lifetime during that week. She will be singing on the stage of the Grand Old Opry in the Grand Old Gospel (held after the Grand Old Opry).

The excitement will not stop when Tineta returns from Nashville. She will spend two weeks in Edmonton, and two weeks in Calgary with the Curtolas singing at charity functions.

Tineta has a unique style. She combines innocence with sex appeal in a way that few can do successfully.

"I like country with a lot of rhythm in it," she says. "I revolve around music."

She says she has had enormous support from local people, and is grateful for all of the encouragement.

"If no one had encouraged me, I don't know if I would have kept singing."

Like most singers, Tineta has a favorite song artist. Reba McEntyre is this young lady's preference.

But Reba McEntyre might have to move over to make room for Tineta Couturier...and Nashville may never be the same.

Tineta, 16, has her own unique style.

New budget hits pocketbook

Canadians will feel the effects of Michael Wilson's new federal budget in the pocketbook.

Here are the highlights:

* Excise levies on cigarettes increase by $4 a carton.

* The excise tax on gasoline will go up by one cent a litre immediately and by another one cent per litre Jan. 1, 1990.

* The personal income surtax on all individuals increases by two (2) per cent beginning July 1, 1989.

* An additional three (3) per cent will be applied to taxpayers with an annual income in excess of $70,000. These people will now pay eight (8) per cent.

* The existing refundable federal sales tax credits for adults and children will be doubled.

* Unemployment insurance payments will be fully financed by employer and employee premiums beginning Jan. 1, 1990.

* A new tax called the Goods and Services tax will replace the existing federal sales tax on Jan. 1, 1991 at a rate of nine (9) per cent on the vast majority of goods and services consumed in Canada.

Basic groceries, prescription drugs and medical devices will not be taxed. Residential rents, child care, legal aid and most health, dental and educational services will be tax exempt.

Drug round-up reduces chances of accidental poisoning occurring

Pharmacies across the province will act as collection centres for "dead drugs" this month.

It's part of the Alberta Pharmaceutical Association's second annual drug round-up.

The aim of the round-up is to help reduce the incidence of poisonings in the home and ensure the proper disposal of medicines.

"The program has been extremely successful in town," according to Laurie Tkachuk at the Value Drug Mart.

Tkachuk says people actually bring in old drugs year-round.

He urges people not to dump old drugs down the toilet or put them in the garbage.

"People are getting more environment conscious," he added.

The success of the drug round-up month has also been felt at Penney's Drug Mart.

According to owner/manager Gary

Hansen, people bring drugs in 12 months of the year.

"People are more aware. It's a way of safely disposing of them," he says.

The Poison Centre (PADIS) reports there are 400 drug poisonings in children under the age of five reported in Alberta every month and medicines are the most common cause.

During the first province-wide drug round-up in 1988, 2,400 litres (eight tonnes) of dead drugs, old, used or outdated medications were collected. The oldest item returned was a laxative dated 1910 and one family returned 67 items.

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

Const. Doug Hill may hold a local record.

The RCMP officer has guarded our streets for nine years, probably longer than any other officer.

This is even more of an achievement considering he's a travelling man at heart and prone to itchy feet every four years.

Hill came to this, his first RCMP detachment, after a long career as a military police officer. Every four years he was transferred to new posts in Egypt, Norway, Ontario and Quebec and said travelling became a way of life.

Now, after putting two children through the local school system, Hill is on the road again.

The officer will transfer to Sherwood Park June 15. Although he'll miss Drayton Valley, he says it will be a good move.

The fish and wildlife office has nesting bird boxes at their office simply for the taking.

Fred Kreiser, fish and wildlife officer says they have 19 wren boxes, 15 bluebird and 30 bumblebee boxes to give away.

Kreiser says the first priority will be given to groups or organizations. Any left over will be given to individuals.

"We would like to give them to organized groups because head office would like records of the use of the boxes by birds," Kreiser said.

The office does have unassembled boxes with plans of construction if any individuals are interested in having one but who are not interested in recording the data of the birds' activities.

Kreiser points out the birds do not come with the boxes.

Schools will examine an ungrading system

By Sue Kenyon

Some Alberta and British Columbia elementary schools have changed to an ungrading system.

So far though Twin Rivers schools will continue in the traditional fashion.

Ungraded schools simply refers to those schools where no grading exists. Instead of having grades 1-4, there is just a continual evaluation process happening. Once a student successfully completes certain tasks, they move on to another task, rather than the next grade.

Superintendent Dr. George Bevan, of the Twin Rivers school district says School District 85 has not gone to the ungrading system because they inherited the County of Parkland system when they took over the school district. He did say though it will probably be something the new superintendent will be looking at in depth.

Chamber of commerce wants $5,000 grant

The Drayton Valley and District Chamber of Commerce has asked the MD for a $5,000 grant.

President Grant Monsour and Don Regenwetter, a director, appeared before the municipal district council last Wednesday.

Their visit was following up an earlier request for funding. Monsour outlined some of the problems the chamber was going to encounter financially. Namely, the STEP program, that will see the chamber get funding for just one student instead of the usual three to work in the tourist booth.

It was also Monsour's wish the MD will get involved in some of the chamber's economic development plans.

Reeve Henry Rondeau told the chamber representatives the matter hadn't been discussed yet. But, that they will look at the request.

The town contributes $5,290 to the chamber on a yearly basis. This is figured out on a per capita basis.

New junior 'B' team planning for next winter

By Frank Ryan

Plans are well underway to ice a junior 'B' hockey team in Drayton Valley next winter.

Bill Ballas, a life insurance salesman who moved here nine months ago is president of the new group.

He is joined by druggist Laurie Tkachuk, Petro Can employee John Dyck and coach Randy Rook.

Ballas says the team will not have any association with the Devils or Blades who have iced a junior 'B' team here in the past.

Bill Ballas
President of new group

A name-the-team contest is being planned.

The Drayton Valley entry has already got the nod to rejoin the Heritage loop.

A 40-game schedule is expected to start in mid-October with training camp scheduled a month earlier.

Ballas says the team has received excellent response from the town.

The juniors are asking for seven hours of ice time next season.

Besides their ambitious plans to ice a new team, complete with new uniforms and a $30,000 budget, the executive plans to make application to host a major tournament.

Application will be made to host either the junior 'B' provincials in 1989-90 or the Western Canada junior championships in April 1991.

The juniors are looking for people to serve on their executive. If you're interested, a meeting will be held Tuesday, May 9 at 12 in the Drayton Valley Hotel dining room.

Highland dancer Shannon Bredin heads to national finals for sixth time.

Outstanding young dancer named provincial highland champion

Shannon Bredin, Drayton Valley's outstanding highland dancer has earned another trip to the national finals.

The 15-year-old Bredin collected four gold medals and the provincial championship for 15 and under competitors at the provincials held recently in Red Deer.

The gold medals came in fling, sword, seann truibhas and reel four dances.

Later this summer the Drayton Valley miss will be off to her sixth Canadian final.

It's being held in New Brunswick this year.

Bredin is one of 11 members on the Alberta team that will travel to the national finals.

While many sports are winding down, Bredin's hectic highland dance season is just beginning.

On the average, she attends 18 meets per year.

The Grade 10 student doesn't spend all her time concentrating on dancing. She's also planning her future.

That involves going to university to get a medical degree. "I want to be a sports doctor," she admits.

Combined with that career, Bredin plans to work getting a highland dance judging certificate.

But for now, it's practice, practice, practice.

Rook heads new team for '89

By Frank Ryan

Randy Rook is looking forward to the 1989-90 hockey season.

Rook, who lives in Spruce Grove and works in town, has accepted the coaching reins with Drayton Valley's new junior 'B' hockey team.

The 28-year-old Rook has an impressive list of hockey credentials.

His junior career included a stint with the New Westminster Bruins.

From there he played with Paul Coffey in Kingston, Ont.

In 1979 Rook, a defenceman, was drafted by the Toronto Maple Leafs.

He went to the Leafs' camp, but unfortunately only appeared in six exhibition games.

Rook finished that year with the Leafs' farm team in the American Hockey League.

He attempted a comeback with the Leafs the following season.

But, after five knee operations, he was advised by the Leafs of the situation and decided to quit.

Last season Rook coached

Randy Rook
the midjet AA Spruce Grove Blazers. They missed the playoffs by a single point. "I want full control of the team," Rook says.

So, it's his intention to fill the dual capacity of coach and director of player personnel.

"My goal is to get one player on a Western Hockey League club. I want to advance their careers," Rook says.

"I plan to run the team the way I was coached," he added.

While the hockey season is still a few months away, Rook is already looking to securing ice out of town for a pre-season camp.

Because of the trade fair, installation of ice in the sports centre will be delayed until mid-September.

No men's soccer this year?

By Delsaine Robinson

Work experience student

The Drayton Valley United men's soccer team is not sure if play will resume this year.

The team collectively decided to take a year off last season as the majority of the players could no longer make the necessary commitments. The team was practicing three times a week and playing tournaments nearly every weekend.

If the team does resume play they hope to take things on a much less competitive level.

Meanwhile, attempts are underway to form a recreation league that would consist of local teams.

Volunteers required

The drive to bring in volunteers to help with the Zone 5 Summer Games has been stepped up.

About 8,000 volunteer registration cards were mailed to Stony Plain and area residents.

The goal is to round up about 500 volunteers to help run the Games July 14-16.

Volunteers are being sought to help with a wide range of athletic events, everything from synchronized swimming, slow-pitch, rugby and tennis.

About 3,000 athletes from Zone 5 and the greater Edmonton area are expected to attend the games.

Anyone interested in joining the Games is asked to call 963-0988.

Players leave town

Several Drayton Valley baseball products will be playing out of town this summer.

Joey Hutzl plans on joining PBI in Morinville. They are members of the Sunburst Baseball League.

Seven others — Cory and Kevin Dusterhoft, Chris Hutchinson, Kevin Bergquist, Jason Kipling, Jerry Bartlett and Trevor Fedorus are expected to suit up with the Stony Plain midgets.

Justin Pysar, who played with the Easyford Colts in the Oilfield League played winter ball in California.

Teams tie for top spot

Two teams are tied for top spot in the eight-team Drayton Valley Ball Hockey League.

Both Black and Yellow won a pair of games last week. White, Grey, Red and Orange split their games while Green and Blue were winless in two outings.

Games are played every Monday and Wednesday night in the sports centre.

The first of four games starts at 6 p.m.

League president George Spentzos was extremely pleased with play during the first week.

"It went well. No rough stuff. I'm really happy," he stated. The league is made up of both experienced and non-ice hockey players.

Spentzos says a lot of the players are from the recreation league.

One familiar name with the Black team, is Trent Pankevics, a former all-star in the Heritage Junior 'B' League with the Drayton Valley Devils.

He notched two goals in the Black's opening night 7-5 win over the Whites.

Referee Kevin Thompson follows up play.

Curling club announces its league champs

The Drayton Valley curling club has announced the champions in its league and playoffs.

Bruce Clemmer's rink of Donna Clemmer, Earl and Debbie Nixon won the Monday mixed.

The playoff winner in that league was the Merle Baird foursome that also included Lorna Baird, Howard and Carol Cockwell.

Dwight Kuzek, Jack Zingle, Duke Anderson and Roger Ganske teamed up to win the Tuesday men's league title.

The playoffs were won by Grant Rylance, John Cameron, Neil and Robert Letourneau.

Elsie Dusterhoft skipped her rink to the Tuesday afternoon ladies' championship. Other members of the rink included Penny Spencer, Debbie Miller and Hannah Jones.

The playoffs were won by Mary Alice Snell, Irene Obst, Marg Hansen and Ivy Selin.

Regular season champs in the Wednesday ladies' league was the foursome of Marlene Samis, Nancy Samis, Verna Radowitz and Ethel Streit.

Playoff winners were Cindy Vowk, Linda Jamieson, Jane Hasselbarth and Shirley Cuirysek.

And, in the Thursday open, the rink of Joe and Jan Melnyk and Norm and Sherry Dusterhoft won both the league and playoff titles.

Winners of the 29-inch color television were Marg and Wendy Pigeon of Jasper.

Mark Stewart of Drayton Valley won the $1,000 draw.

Kreiser hoping for more help in near future

Help is hopefully just around the corner for the Drayton Valley Fish and Wildlife office.

Officer Fred Kreiser is anticipating an announcement that will allow the local office to hire a full-time secretary and see the appointment of a much needed second man.

While both needs were discussed at a recent fish and wildlife meeting in Lethbridge, Kreiser realizes it could be spring before either appointment is made.

At the present time the Drayton Valley office is open afternoons, five days a week.

Meanwhile, Kreiser has been busy addressing a beaver problem, stocking area fish ponds and conducting school tours.

Still waiting for approval

The Eldorado Parents Association is still waiting for word about their playground proposal, Howard Pearson, principal of the school says.

Pearson says the metal playground which they are hoping to install at the school will cost about $40,000.

The parents' committee has applied for a Community Enhancement Grant worth $20,000 supplied by the provincial government. Pearson says the committee is still waiting to hear back as to whether they have been accepted.

The remaining $20,000 will come from the Twin Rivers school board, the town and the committee, Pearson said.

The committee's proposal went into the provincial government March 1 and Pearson remains positive the committee will get the grant.

Ponoka gets new range

The Powerhouse Further Education Council won't be offering its adult learn-to-golf lessons this year.

That decision was apparently made by the Powerhouse executive.

So, if you're looking for lessons, call Mike Townley (542-3602) at the Drayton Valley course.

Birchwood Village Greens, located at Lindale, is offering its $5 golf game (nine holes) again this year.

This offer is good Monday through Thursday.

A new driving range is being built at the Ponoka club. The $45,000-project should be ready by mid-summer.

Fairways West, located on Highway 22 near Alder

Flats, has set its tournament dates.

The annual ladies' tourney is booked for July 22-23 followed by the men's a week later.

If you're looking for exercise, Fairways West will offer that. It's an 18-hole layout covering 6,873 yards.

Another 18-hole course you might want to try is Black Bull, located next to the resort community of Ma Me O Beach.

It's 6,200 yards long. The longest hole is the 15th which is 482 yards and the shortest is the 170-yard sixth.

Minor hockey wants concession

The Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association has some ambitious plans.

Fourteen people who attended the association's annual meeting last Wednesday, heard of plans to bid for the concession in the sports centre.

Newly-elected president Kevin Henry told the meeting that it was the executive's desire to submit a bid to the town in August.

By operating the concession using volunteers, Henry hopes minor hockey can become self-sufficient.

If minor hockey is successful in its bid attempt, they will be looking at operating the concession 70 hours per week. The plan is to have two teams share the workload weekly.

Henry presented a number of examples where minor hockey were involved in the concession operation.

In Rocky Mountain House, they clear $50,000 while Innisfail's net gain in 1988 was $27,000 and Lacombe had a gross of $70,000.

"It's there. I don't see why we don't go after it," Henry stated.

Following a lengthy discussion, a motion was made to proceed with the concession bid.

If their bid is accepted, minor hockey says the revenue would help in getting the second ice surface covered and help bring fees down.

The association also plans to have more control over sponsors' money next year.

Andy Davidson, a director, stated the situation had gotten out of hand.

"It will be nice to have more control over the sponsors' money," out-going president Lanny Schultz says.

There's also plans to purchase same colored jerseys for the travelling teams. These will be the Los Angeles Kings colors.

It appears the association will start the 1989-90 season with some money in the bank.

The meeting heard there's $7,606 in the bank.

"This should be awful close to what we'll have to start next season with," Schultz stated.

Rick LaPointe is the new vice-president.

Due to the poor turnout, several positions on the executive still have to be filled.

Pin Point

By Frank Pavlick

Canada's Sports Poet

The game of bowling is a blast,
Fast lanes of live and learn,
Where timebomb tickin' alley cats,
Can hardly wait their turn.

The gallery is filled with glee,
When some high roller falls,
And with a look of sheer contempt,
Starts saying things to balls.

Sometimes it keeps one wondering,
Regardless of who wins,
How such a long and rumbling noise,
Could miss so many pins.

A warning to beginners that,
The game means hangin' loose,
That bowlers with the widest throws,
Must have the best excuse.

And yet no matter luck or skill,
With score sheets false or true,
They all come back to try again,
And see what they can do.

Ride for Cancer May 7

This year's Trail Ride, For Cancer will be held at Willey West Park.

The ride is scheduled for Sunday, May 7.

Last year the ride raised $8,350 for cancer.

Richard Taturo, director of public works for the municipal district, told last Wednesday's council meeting he was concerned about what the horses might do to the park.

He also expressed his concerns over the new road (off Highway 22) into the park.

Taturo recommended to the organizers that horse trailers refrain from using the road.

Jill Lorenz, representing the trail ride, said the organizers were looking at leaving the horse trailers at an adjacent property.

That concern and others will be addressed by the trail ride committee and the MD.

Picnic tables have been set up in the park and the cooking facilities will also be available.

Bowl-a-thon cancelled

The Shangri-La Lodge bowl-a-thon that has been held the past two years won't be held in 1989.

Mary Ayotte, activity coordinator at the lodge says there were several reasons the bowl-a-thon has been dropped.

One of the organizers' biggest concerns was getting people involved.

Another was the major construction project underway at the lodge and the effects it may create.

Two years ago the mid-May classic raised $43,000 which went toward the purchase of a new bus for the lodge. Last year's event raised $21,000.

Jim Brooks, left, is presented with a CAODC award by Jim Wedman, safety supervisor.

Company honors employees for low-accident rate in '88

Hi-West Well Servicing held its first annual awards banquet recently and honored its employees for accident-free work days.

The company has had an awards program since 1986, but this was the first banquet, according to office manager Lois Baird.

Baird said the company has a total of 19 rigs, 16 of which went accident-free in 1988.

"We were second place in our category (11-20 rigs) for CAODC (Canadian Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors)," she said.

CAODC issues province-wide awards, plaques and scrolls for rigs that go accident-free.

Hi-West also had its first in-house safety program and presented 43 safety awards at the banquet. Employees won jackets or watches plus cash awards through the in-house program.

Breton students discover Japan's culture

Breton elementary school students will be learning something entirely new over the next nine months.

Shinobu Urai, a Japanese teacher, will be teaching them about Japanese culture, and somehow it just doesn't seem like work.

She will be teaching them about daily life in Japan, food, origami (the art of paper folding), and how to make paper balloons. Urai says that even sleeping arrangements are different in her country. The Japanese sleep on mats on the floor rather than in beds with mattresses.

Canada is "quite different, wide place," according to Urai.

She says the school system in Japan is very different from Canada. "Canadian students have more free time than Japanese. I like the Canadian school system," she says.

Urai says she chose Canada because she has been to the United States and "there are not so many books about Canada."

Origami is one of the many arts Breton elementary school students will learn from Shinobu Urai.

Getting to know Landlord Tenant Act may save headaches

The inevitable relocations that come with spring may make knowing the province's Landlord and Tenant Act a necessity.

While most sections of the lengthy act are straight forward, some are obscure and often overlooked by either party involved in a rental agreement.

It may not be readily known, for instance, that a landlord must give 90 days written notice before raising his tenants' rent.

If the renter has paid an increase without the full three-month notice, he is entitled to a refund.

A renter who's just signed an agreement with a new landlord may not be aware of his rights concerning the document. A copy of the signed agreement must be returned within 21 days or the renter is within his rights to temporarily refuse payment of rent.

There are a few other circumstances, however, that a renter can withhold payment.

A renter may assume his only responsibility is prompt payment of rent each month.

But he is also obliged to keep the apartment, house or condominium in a "reasonably clean condition."

This may be difficult to determine, however, since, by law, a landlord is not permitted on the premises, unless he has consent from the renter or an adult person lawfully on the premises, the landlord cannot drop by for an inspection.

Of course there is an exception to the rule if the landlord has reason to believe an emergency requires him on the premises. He may also enter if he believes the tenant has vacated the premises.

Municipal Involvement Week

"Something to build on"

Town council plans to continue with its Municipal Involvement Week activities.

That recommendation was contained in a report to council last Thursday.

"It's something we can build on," says recreation director Paul Nielsen.

"It's an excellent start," Councillor Tom McGee stated in reference to the school tours that were part of this year's activities.

The report recommended that council continue with the pancake breakfast, but look at a scaled-down version of the tours.

Schools will be encouraged to book tours of town operated facilities throughout the year.

It was also felt the annual presentation of the athletic achievement awards needed a big push.

exception to the rule if the landlord has reason to believe an emergency requires him on the premises. He may also enter if he believes the tenant has vacated the premises.

Once the renter's given notice he is leaving, this rule no longer applies. A landlord then has free access to make repairs or show the place to prospective renters provided he has given notice of his intentions in writing, included a "reasonable time of entry," and has served that notice at least 24 hours before he actually enters.

These are just a few of the many sections that landlords and tenants may not know exist.

A complete copy of the Landlord and Tenant Act can be purchased through the Landlord and Tenant Advisory Board in Edmonton.

AGT commemorates new service

A happy Breton family was presented with a complementary telephone last Tuesday as a result of being randomly selected to be the first Breton exchange residents to have their telephone line converted from multi-party services (party-line) to individual line service by AGT.

Darryl and Bonnie Hayduk, son Kiel and daughter Joy-Lyn, have lived approximately 10 miles outside of Breton for the past eight years and have had multi-party service throughout that time.

Darryl Hayduk was pleased with the change. "It's really good. It's more convenient."

He also said he is happy he will no longer have to go through the operator every time he makes a long-distance telephone call.

Darryl and Bonnie Hayduk and family accept free telephone from Doug Wetter.

Liver recipient thanks family

Tragedy enables others to live

By Frank Ryan

The organs of a nine-year-old Drayton Valley boy who died in November have been donated to the Human Organ Procurement and Exchange (HOPE) program.

Archy Ganes, a student at Evergreen elementary, inhaled a balloon he'd been chewing and later died.

The incident took place during a noon-hour break.

The young boy's liver is in the body of a 14-year-old Ontario boy, his cornea was donated to the Eye Bank and his pancreas has been used in research.

Some of Archy Ganes's skin has been banked and his heart valves are being preserved and stored at a United States lab for future use.

Su and Don Ganes have already seen proof of their earlier decision to donate the organs to HOPE.

They received a letter from a woman known only as Nancy, who was very thankful after receiving one of the kidneys.

The second kidney was also transplanted.

After hearing about donating organs from a friend, the Ganes approached their doctor.

"The doctor was most appreciative," Su Ganes says.

"I hope people will take donating organs more seriously," she added.

Despite the tragedy of losing their son, Su Ganes says, "It has touched so many people deeper than we anticipated."

Statistics show that in Canada, balloon deaths are ranked number 1 in non-food items that kill children.

In the U.S. 110 people have died in the past 10 years for the same reason.

Oil Wives rock to Beach Boys

By Darlene VanEmber
The beach party was the theme of our April 10 Oil

Wives meeting. Ladies formed groups to participate in the contests. A frisbe-throw which wiped out small duckies, tested one's accuracy.

The bean-bag toss into small buckets tested one's patience.

Bouncing on a pogo stick, one found a new meaning to balancing.

The football toss had everyone scoring big. Look out Eskimos.

Mini-golf had one member screaming in delight with her hole-in-one, while the rest took the endurance test. Beach Boy music playing in the background set the mood. All who dared tried their luck at the fish pond. Proceeds went to the travel fund.

Executive members related their jobs in nursery rhymes. Encouragement was given to all members to try one of the positions.

Election of new officers will be held this month.

The next Oil Wives meeting will be held May 8 at the Elks Hall. Remember your fashion show items.

MD looks at value of building

The Municipal District of Brazeau wants to find out how much its office building is worth.

An appraisal on the building, formerly occupied by the County of Parkland, is expected in the next month.

"We want to know what we're sitting on. What do we have and what's it worth," says municipal manager John Erickson.

The MD may be faced with some major decision-making after that appraisal is known.

At the present time, space is a problem. Both the main and top floors are being utilized and the MD is currently expanding into the basement area.

Erickson says the MD might be looking at making some modifications to the present building, depending on what it's worth.

Or, they might have to look into leasing other space in town or building.

Grand opening June 17

The grand opening of the town's new $1.6 million Civic Centre is set for Saturday, June 17.

It's also the same day Amoco will celebrate its 100th anniversary.

According to a report to town council last week, Amoco has indicated a keen interest in sharing the day's activities.

The official opening will include the official ribbon cutting and a unique hose cutting to mark the opening of the fire hall. A short program will include greetings from the mayor and other dignitaries.

An open reception will be held in the fire hall with live entertainment. Tours of the building will also be conducted.

Take care — the forests are everyone's responsibility

On May 11, 12 and 13 Grande Prairie's Evergreen Park fair grounds will be the site of the 2nd biennial Northern Alberta Forestry show.

The city of Grande Prairie has an historic involvement with the forest products industry being the home of Canada Forest Products' (Canfor) milling and plywood operations and Procter and Gamble Cellulose Ltd.'s pulp and sawmill operations. The Alberta government and major forest products companies have recently announced many new forestry projects in the area.

The Northern Alberta Forestry show will be held during National Forestry Week in Canada (May 7-13) and promotes this year's theme: Your Forests - Your Responsibility.

Show visitors will see equipment displays and demonstrations covering a large spectrum of the forest industry. All major equipment suppliers will be represented.

In conjunction with the forestry show the Rocky Mountain section of the Canadian Institute of Forestry will present day-long seminars for all those wishing to attend.

The grandstand show will be a highlight of each day at the Evergreen Park fair grounds. The show will consist of active equipment demonstrations, horse loggers demonstrations, CL215 water bomber demonstration, rappel fire crew demonstration, Canadian helicopter demonstration, reforestation demonstration and more.

The campers are coming

After a 13-year absence the Battle River Tourist Association cavalcade will visit Drayton Valley May 27-28.

Between 60 and 70 recreational vehicles are expected to participate in the annual cavalcade.

It was the association's first cavalcade, 13 years ago, that visited Drayton Valley.

The purpose of the cavalcade is to introduce people to what there is to see and do in Battle River Country.

Bill Hughes, chairman of this year's cavalcade was in Drayton Valley last Wednesday to check on local arrangements for their visit. He was accompanied by Bryce Woodrow, association president and manager Sylvia Clemens.

Natalie Gibson, head of the chamber's tourist committee is making the arrangements for the cavalcade's visit.

The cavalcade is scheduled to leave Camrose on the morning of May 27 and proceed to Wetaskiwin to inspect the site of the new Reynolds Museum. Then it's on to Winfield for lunch. From there the caravan will proceed toward Drayton Valley, hoping to arrive about 4 p.m.

As in the past, cavalcade members will do a little main-streeting in town. After that, some local entertainment has been planned followed by a weiner roast.

The agenda for their second day, although not final, will likely include participating in the Elks pancake breakfast, a church service at the campground and to take a number of tours. These will include the Pelican Spruce Mills oriented strandboard plant, golfing, swimming, bowling, fishing and a tour of the town.

Clemens said the parking spot, located in West Valley Park, is an excellent location.

Ensure insurance policy has sufficient coverage

A standard homeowner policy provides basic insurance coverage for your home and its contents. However, most policies limit the amount that will be paid for certain types of personal property. For example, if your jewelry or furs are stolen, insurance coverage may be limited to $2,000. Other types of property may be totally excluded from the policy.

You can insure costly items for their full value by having them insured specifically (scheduled), on a personal articles endorsement. The endorsement can be added to your homeowner or tenant insurance policy.

There are two reasons for adding a personal articles endorsement to your policy. One is to guarantee a higher amount of coverage for certain possessions. Any restriction of amount payable that's noted in your homeowner or tenant policy is removed with respect to the scheduled items. The second reason is to cover your possessions against loss or damage in a greater variety of circumstances.

Items often scheduled include jewelry, furs, sports equipment, tools, musical instruments, stamp and coin collections and fine art.

In most cases, coverage is based on actual cash value. For some items, the actual cash value varies over time due to depreciation (a loss in value), or appreciation (a gain in value). For example, normal wear and tear depreciates a fur coat, so the actual cash value reduces over time. On the other hand, jewelry may increase in value due to higher market prices for precious metals and stones.

It is your responsibility to establish a cash value for the items to be insured.

In the event of loss, the insurance company is obligated to pay the actual cash value or replacement cost at the time of loss, even if the item was insured for a higher amount.

Municipal district split in two

The Municipal District of Brazeau interested in joining the Battle River Tourist Association.

However, there's one major hurdle to overcome.

Half of the MD is located in Battle River and the other half in the Evergreen Tourist Association.

"We'd like the membership to cover the entire area," Reeve Henry Rondeau told Battle River manager Sylvia Clemens last Wednesday.

"We want our MD to be served by one. It's very important for us to be under one," he added.

Sylvia Clemens
Battle River manager

The MD plans to pursue the possibility of getting its entire area in Battle River. "It's a unique challenge,"

Clemens told the municipal district council.

"It seems to be a unique challenge to everyone," Rondeau remarked.

If the MD were to join Battle River they would be looking at a membership fee of 10 cents per capita. Membership in the Evergreen Tourist Association is $1 per capita.

Sixty-seven municipalities within the Zone 5 boundaries, including the town, are currently members of Battle River.

STEP grant not enough

A cutback in STEP grants is going to have its effect locally. The chamber's tourist committee that uses STEP students to work in the tourist booth applied for three. They got one.

"It's definitely going to be a problem," says Natalie Gibson of the tourist committee.

Gibson says the chamber will either have to look at cutting back the hours at the booth or finding other people in the community to put in some volunteer hours.

"We'll try and work around it," she added. Joe MacLellan, director of the Pembina Educational Consortium also finds himself in a dilemma. He applied for four and also got one.

Both the town and the MD received four STEP students. Originally, the town expressed hope in getting permission to hire 12 students through the program and the MD wanted 10.

Despite the cutbacks, MD municipal manager John Erickson says they should be able to get by. This will be possible with the addition of two SEED students and another through a recreation experience program.

The cutbacks are expected to add extra pressure to the chamber's Hire A Student program.

Local farm store a possibility

Both the town and MD are looking into the possibility of getting a UFA Farm Supply store for Drayton Valley.

During a recent trip to Calgary, the MD talked with UFA officials.

"It's not looking too bad. We had a good chat," admits MD municipal manager John Erickson.

Erickson says getting a UFA Farm Supply store in Drayton Valley is still a possibility.

The town has been looking into this for some time.

The prospect of a store was discussed at a recent local advisory committee of sub-district 10 of the UFA.

Lars Larson of Alder Flats informed the advisory committee the Edmonton store will have to be relocated due to expansion of the Capilano Freeway. He suggested Drayton Valley as a possible location for the store.

The MD plans to stay in touch with the UFA about the prospects of a supply store in Drayton Valley.

☐ Building this year ☐ Don't propose to build yet

Of consuming interest

Year after year, government after government, Canada has built up a debt that now totals over 320 billion dollars. So that today, one third of every tax dollar is wasted just paying the interest on this massive debt. Let's stop short-changing ourselves. We've got to deal with the debt now. That way we can guarantee our social programs in the future. And that's in everybody's best interest.

Later in the meeting, Councillor Tom McGee

Oats industry study recommendations released

A study commissioned by Alberta Agriculture to overview the oats industry was released May 4.

Oat Marketing and Processing: A Western Canada and Alberta Perspective looks at the challenges and opportunities in the industry and makes specific recommendations for producers, agri-business and government.

Need for the study was identified by a department oats steering committee chaired by Stan Schellenberger, chairman of Alberta Agriculture's planning secretariat. Other committee members are Alberta Grain Commission chairman Ken Boswick, Garry Benoit and three market development trade directors: Doug Bienert, Dianne Hayward and Elton Dunc.

Council receives four painting bids for lines

Who should get the tender to paint the traffic lines in town?

That's a problem administration has been handed by council.

During last Thursday's council meeting four bids were received, ranging from a low of $5,850 to a high of $35,215 by the lone Drayton Valley applicant.

The town handled their own line-painting last year at a cost of $13,500 for two coats.

Two years ago, when bids were accepted, the price was $6,500.

If the town was to consider it again this year, council heard they would be looking at $8,000 plus another $4,500 for a new painting machine.

Several members of council expressed their concerns over the wide range in the quotes.

As a result, the final decision was left in the hands of administration.

"You name it, I do it"

'Jack of all trades' a busy lady

By Susan Moscicki

Can a person have too many irons in the fire?

Perhaps not, but Carole McLeod definitely has her fair share, and she's not complaining.

"You name it, I do it," she laughs. Carole raises dogs, does handmade leatherwork, knits with her knitting machine, and does some woodworking, among her many other projects.

"My dogs are my priorities," she says. The Buck Lake resident has been raising dogs for about 22 yrs. She raises purebred registered pomeranians (long-haired toy), papillons (long-haired toy with butterfly ears), and more recently started raising shelties as well.

The fluffy little dogs are bred to show, as pets, and even make great watchdogs, according to Carole. "They mostly make a noise and might bite if cornered, but they're not intentionally mean," she says.

And mean they're not. An average of about 18 of the tiny dogs enthusiastically greet you upon entering Carole's home, and leaving without taking one home is not an easy task.

Leatherwork is another of her loves. Carole makes purses, wallets, belts, halters, bridles, clocks, saddles, and more. And every thing is handmade.

"I don't have them (most of the items she has made), somebody else does."

She also repairs leather items and patches shoes.

"It's just a hobby," she says. "I'd starve to death if I had to live off what I make (from the leatherwork)."

Knitting, the new-fashioned way, is a more recent pastime for Carole. She acquired a knitting machine and has been busy creating artistic sweaters for family birthday presents, as well as a happy-faced doll which she says her granddaughter calls "Raggily Ann."

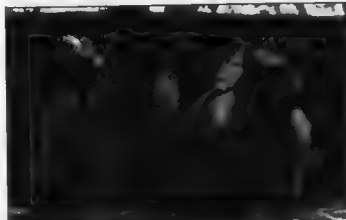

"I haven't sold any sweaters (yet), but I made quite a few."

Carole's other projects are numerous. She is a lady who will never be bored.

She is a truly versatile person, and in the future, when talking about Carole, we might be inclined to call her a jack of all trades.

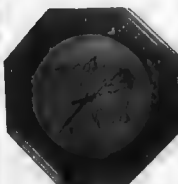

Carole has not finished this log cabin kit yet, but enjoys working on it.

The papillon, right, and the pomeranian breeds grow to about eight to 10 inches in height and weigh between five and seven pounds.

Carole McLeod displays Raggily Ann, her knitted creation.

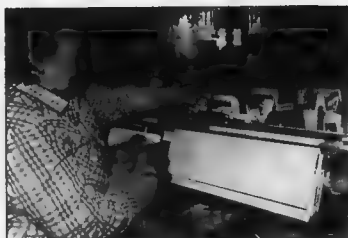

This clock has a tooled-leather face.

All Carole's work is handmade.

Saddle up.

Carole works on her knitting machine (with a little help from her furry friend).

Home of the Week

This lovely victorian-style two-storey home shows with real pride of ownership throughout.

The bright kitchen has bowed windows and french door onto large patio deck, oak cupboards and a sunshine ceiling.

Sunken mainfloor family room has a marble tile fireplace. A cozy living room and formal dining room add ample family living.

The entrance from the front veranda is a ceramic tile entry with oak library panelling and circular staircase leading to the second floor, three spacious bedrooms and plant/reading area.

The master bedroom is deluxe with three-piece ensuite and walk-in organized closet.

This delightful family home is priced at $146,900 with Venture Realty.

Homeowner programs applications available

The provincial government has released details of two homeowner programs announced during the election campaign. Over 250,000 homeowners are expected to benefit from the Alberta Mortgage Interest Shielding program and 36,000 Albertans from the Alberta First Home program.

Both programs were effective March 1 and applications will be accepted until Feb. 28, 1991.

Interest shielding
Homeowners who are obtaining a new mortgage for the purchase of a home, renewing their mortgage or have a current mortgage interest rate above 12 per cent will be assisted up to a ceiling of 17 per cent.

Family first-home
The first-home program assists first-time home buyers with a $4,000 interest-free loan or by paying the interest on the first $4,000 of a first mortgage. Purchasers are eligible if they take possession of the home between March 1, 1989 and Feb. 28, 1991.

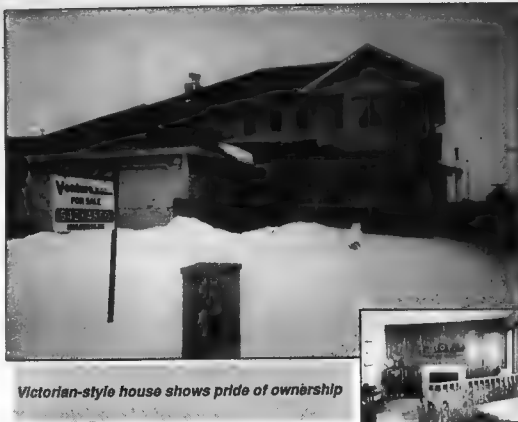

All applicants will be automatically considered

Any applicant for the program will automatically be considered for assistance under the Alberta Mortgage Interest Shielding program.

Application forms are available at participating financial institutions.

Twenty-three financial institutions operating in Alberta, including all major chartered banks and trust companies, Alberta Treasury Branches and the Alberta credit union system, are committed to participate in the programs.

*Financing offers and factory rebates are available exclusively. These qualified retail buyers choosing a reduced financing rate, in lieu of rebate, are eligible for a 9% financing rate over a maximum 48 month term. For longer term loans, the rates are 7% for loans for a term of 25 to 36 months, and 8% for loans of a term of 37 to 48 months on all new Jeep Cherokee and Jeep Wagoneer vehicles. Consider a 4x4 and a 4x2 longbox model. 9% financing rates are available on all new Jeep Cherokee and Jeep Wagoneer vehicles. Subject to Chrysler Credit Canada (L2) approval. Offers exclude item order and lease vehicle and are for retail purchases on eligible vehicles only. This offer cannot be combined with other programs previously advertised, and may not be combined with any previous offers. Example: If the amount financed is $10,000 on the purchase of a car for a term of 24 months, the financing rate would be a 9% APR with a monthly payment of $447.37 for 24 months. Total amount to be repaid $10,724.88. Cost of borrowing $724.88. Assuming a return of $300 on the alternative, should you choose a reduced financing rate instead of the rebate. Legislation requires that the amount of the rebate must be included in the cost of borrowing in order to arrive at an effective interest rate. In the example given, the effective rate of financing would be 12.17%. Example of a financing rate including the cost of borrowing would be $7,248.88. Example: $10,000 financed for 48 months at 9.9% monthly payment is $233.15. Cost of borrowing is $2,181.30. Total payable $12,181.30. The total taken would be $7,248.88. Furry friends

This pooch didn't hesitate to give the little calf a big, wet kiss when he found the calf taying by himself. Perhaps man's best friend is sensitive to loneliness. Upon seeing an animal console another in such a manner it is really hard to believe they do not have some way of communicating with each other. Maybe we can all learn something from the unselfishness and compassion of our furry friends.

Nomination deadline May 31 for Junior Citizen of the Year

Do you know a young person who befriends the lonely, helps the elderly and disabled, or who contributes to the community in a special way?

Enhancing the lives of others through their cheerful enthusiasm and selfless contribution, these young people deserve to be recognized.

You can help recognize these caring individuals by nominating them for an Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year award. Sponsored by TransAlta Utilities and Alberta Power in cooperation with the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association, the award acknowledges the unique contributions of young people throughout Alberta. Ten awards are presented annually.

If you know of a special person or group of young people between the ages of six and 18 who deserve to be honored for their community service, enthusiasm and caring attitude please nominate them for an Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year award.

At a special luncheon in their honor in September, recipients of the award receive a framed citation presented by the lieutenant-governor of Alberta, a cash award and an exclusive pin.

May 31 is the deadline for nominations. Nomination forms can be picked up at The Western Review or at your local TransAlta Utilities office.

Clark signs air agreement

External Affairs Minister Joe Clark signed a new bilateral air services agreement with Hiroshi Kitamura, ambassador of Japan last month.

"This agreement is a breakthrough for business and tourism links that will enable Canada to take better advantage of the dynamic economic opportunities in Japan," said Clark. Clark noted in particular that Japan has been identified as the overseas market with the greatest potential for generating increased tourism to Canada. Japan is by far Canada's largest trading partner in Asia and the third largest source of tourism to Canada. In 1988, 330,000

Japanese tourists visited Canada, spending an estimated $250 million.

Canadian Airlines International will begin non-stop service from Edmonton to Tokyo June 23, marking the first trans-Pacific service to Alberta. Calgary will receive same plane-through service via Edmonton to Tokyo.

Canadian and Japan airlines will increase the total number of seats available this summer by 20 per cent over last summer's levels.

Canadian will be introducing its new B747-400 aircraft in services to Japan in autumn 1990.

Isley named new Alberta Agriculture minister

A new team of minister and associate minister has taken over the helm of Alberta Agriculture.

Ernie Isley, the new minister of agriculture and Shirley McClellan, the new associate minister, were sworn in along with their 25 cabinet colleagues April 14. They take over from Peter Elzinga, now minister of economic development and trade, and Shirley Cripps, who retired.

Agriculture is Isley's third cabinet portfolio.

The Bonnyville M.L.A. was first elected in 1979 and took the reins of the Manpower ministry in 1982. His most recent cabinet post was Public Works Supply and Services from May 1986.

McClellan is a relative rookie on the political scene but not to agriculture. She farms with her husband and son in the New Brigid area.

She was elected in a November 1987 byelection in the Chinook constituency.

Footwear blamed for accidents

By Samia Valleevand
Putting your best foot forward can be hazardous to your health.

Some Canadians have found this out all too painfully. Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada has received more than 80 complaints in recent years from consumers who have blamed their footwear for causing accidental slips and falls.

The majority of injuries involve women's shoes. Most often, the culprit is the heel lift — the thin piece of material that is on the bottom of the heel. The problem is not confined merely to thin 'stileto' heels. Nor is spending more any guarantee of safety. A Vancouver-area woman suffered a dislocated shoulder and nerve damage

Tourism 'dramedy' video promotes importance of Alberta hospitality

'Our Own Little Holiday' is a half-hour television program produced by the Tourism Industry Association of Alberta.

The program will air as a public service on Alberta network stations May 15 to 21 as part of National Tourism Awareness Week.

The 'dramedy' features the adventures of a family of four as they serve customers in their own retail/service station business before embarking on a weekend holiday. Their holiday experiences illustrate to them the importance of hospitality.

The program is a followup to the Alberta Hospitality Test which aired in 1987 just prior to the Olympics. Our Own Little Holiday is intended to maintain the awareness of all Albertans of the importance of hospitality to the success of tourism in Alberta. By focusing on Albertans taking an Alberta break in their own province, Our Own Little Holiday increases awareness of the importance of that market in Alberta.

God speaks in many ways

By Pastor Glen Lonie
DV Alliance Church

One of the most perplexing mysteries to the human mind is the silence of God. If God exists, and if He desires that we have a relationship with Him, why does He not communicate unmistakably and powerfully to us?

If only God would speak, we rationalize, we would be quick to respond.

Yet I wonder if we are being honest. Perhaps the problem is not God's silence but rather our deafness.

Upon serious reflection we must acknowledge that God has spoken and continues to speak in many ways. Let me list some.

The design of the universe, the diversity of plant and animal life, the complexity of our own human bodies all point our attention to a Designer. Human personality with its richness of emotional, intellectual and moral capabilities should tell us that the Creator must be at least as complex. Silently yet eloquently God speaks through the created order.

God also speaks through

His book. The Bible is a book about which most people have strong opinions and yet are often woefully ignorant. It is absolutely unique among books. Its own claim is to be God's message to the human race. It gives answers to the gnawing questions of life: What is God like? What is the meaning of life? What is the purpose of suffering? What is man's destiny? How can I know God personally?

Surely when we examine the Bible with honest investigation we realize God is not silent.

Then lest we should misunderstand God chose to speak to us in person. Jesus Christ came to our world so we might hear God speak. The Bible records His words. History attests to His deeds. His death for us tells us of God's love for us. His resurrection stands as a permanent witness to His power over man's greatest enemy — death. The fact is that God has spoken. The question is, are we listening?

BRTA approves projects

Battle River Tourist Association (BRTA) members were updated on several major programs and made a number of decisions as they met in Leduc last month.

The affair which attracted over 80 people was hosted by the city of Leduc.

Acting on recommendations from BRTA executive members, gave administration the green light to move on several projects including an awareness video overviewing the work of BRTA; the 1989 advertising program; updating the Battle River Country marketing plan and looking into the possibility of having a full-scale tourist information centre incorporated into the preliminary plans of the Reynolds-Alberta Museum development.

BRTA manager Sylvia Clemens reported on a number of provincial meetings and the Tourism Industry Association of Alberta (TIAA) annual conference on tourism held in Medicine Hat early in April.

In other business members heard a detailed update on the community tourism action plan program by Rob Grifone of Alberta Tourism. Any community wishing information on the CTAP program should contact Grifone at 427-4340.

Two requests for letters of support were approved. One was from the Black Bull golf course, Ma-Me-O Beach requesting support for the expansion of their golf course. The other from Stettler, seeking support to their recent request to Premier Getty in regard to the stabilization of Buffalo Lake.

Safety video aims at understanding hazardous material

Alberta Occupational Health and Safety has completed a new video program entitled, 'WHMIS - Working for You.'

The video was produced by Alberta Occupational Health and Safety to provide employers and workers with another tool for understanding and implementing the workplace hazardous materials information system (WHMIS) at their places of work.

WHMIS is one of the most important developments in occupational health and safety in recent years. It is a pan-Canadian hazard communication system designed to ensure that all work sites have information on hazardous materials. WHMIS came into effect in Alberta March 15.

The 18-minute video program provides a basic introduction to WHMIS, its development and purpose, and the three major components of the system: labelling of controlled products, material safety data sheets and worker education.

Alberta Occupational Health and Safety has made arrangements with the Alberta Association of Safety Personnel (AASP) to distribute the video.

For information on ordering the video, interested employers or workers can contact Alberta Occupational Health and Safety at 427-5549.

Andrea Crowe, Grade 1, is one of the many children who dressed up in old-fashioned clothing.

Students experience the 'good old days'

The 'good old days' were relived by Breton elementary school students recently at Old-Fashioned Day during Education Week (April 24 to 28).

Students were split up so that each teacher had a few students from every grade level, simulating the one-room classroom effect.

The children and teachers dressed up in old-fashioned garb and spent the day without lights on in the classrooms. A bar-social was also held.

Grade 4 teacher Donna Hamilton said this is the second such event. She said an Old-Fashioned Day was held three years ago to promote the history of the Breton area, and was so successful it was decided it should be repeated every third year.

Dangerous Goods Awareness Seminar

This is a 3 1/2 hour seminar designed to help people identify D.G. classifications and identify potential responses and assistance in dealing with accidents involving D.G.

The seminar will be held at the Elks Hall at 7 P.M., May 9, 1989.

There is no charge, certificates will be given to participants.

Spring cleaning? Don't throw it out — recycle

Spring is the time of year when many people undertake a major cleaning project around their home.

This year in the Drayton Valley community there will be some new options for disposing of articles that are no longer needed in your home.

As part of this year's Environment Week project the Pembina Institute for Appropriate Development, with the support of the Alberta Special Waste Management Corporation, is sponsoring a toxics roundup. The toxics roundup is only one aspect of the Environment Week project. Other activities include a paint exchange and a materials exchange. These ventures will be explained in more detail in the information package to be delivered to most Drayton Valley homes.

Before you take boxes of unused materials to the dump, consider what might be dangerous to the environment or what might be of use to someone else. If either one of these possibilities exists please hang on to those articles for a little while longer and either list them in the materials exchange, or paint exchange (if they are still useful), or dispose of them safely at the toxics roundup.

As you clean out the garage, basement, attic and shed, remember many of the items could be used by someone else. Offering someone the opportunity to reuse a product reduces the strain on the valuable resources needed to produce new items and helps reduce the ever-increasing landfill problem.

Activities will be carried out over the period of a month rather than compressed into one week with each week of June concentrating on one area.

The first week will highlight energy and water conservation. Water conservation audit kits will be delivered to the schools. Local merchants will be displaying energy and water saving products available to help residents save water and energy.

Week two will concentrate on the theme of reuse. A small sell, swap or trade booklet will be distributed with listings for used or no longer needed resources and by-products. Anyone interested in listing an item in the booklet or requiring more information please call the Pembina Institute at 542-6272. A paint exchange is also planned.

The third week will deal primarily with upgrading the recycling program already in place, expanding it to include more of the business sector in Drayton Valley. Information on recycling materials other than paper will also be provided.

The final week is centred around safe disposal of toxic products. A workshop on hazardous waste handling will be held in conjunction with the chamber of commerce and local industry.

Anyone who would like more information on the toxics roundup or any of the other activities of Environment Week contact the Pembina Institute. Speakers are available to come to your club or organization meetings and discuss this topic further.

Organ transplant numbers down

"An organ wasted is a life lost," says Bill Brady, president of Transplant International (Canada).

"We are concerned. The number of organ transplant operations seems to be levelling off because of fewer donors," Brady says.

Transplant International (Canada), supported by Dow Chemical Canada, is educating people about the need for organ donors. They want Canadians to know that signing organ donor cards saves lives.

"If only a small percentage of people who die each year in Canada became organ donors, many more people would have the opportunity of a transplant," says Leslie Beard, Western Canada Division spokesperson for Dow. "For those who wait, a transplant is not a luxury. It is a matter of life and death."

Dow's $450,000 donation has helped raise awareness over the past three years, but the work is ongoing. An unforeseen result of increased media coverage is the perception that organ transplants are routine procedures.

"For the families of recipients transplantation is far from commonplace," says Brady. "It is still the most dramatic and miraculous act in medicine today. And for the families of the donors, it offers the opportunity to change a tragedy into something positive."

In addition to signing the donor card on their drivers' licences, people wanting to donate should make their wishes known to their families.

Free trade should lower prices

By Fred Duck, CA

What does free trade with the United States mean for Canadian consumers?

Plenty.

Consumers are now paying tariffs on a wide range of products imported into Canada including food, clothing and computers. Import quotas also contribute to higher prices.

According to Statistics Canada, trade barriers cost Canadians $2.1-billion per year or about $80 per person.

The free trade agreement gradually eliminates tariffs and quotas, resulting in lower costs of materials and supplies to Canadian businesses. And lower costs should be passed on to the consumer.

Industry will sell more freely in the large U.S. market and should enjoy greater economies of scale as we will produce more goods at one time. If more goods are available to Canadians from both sides of the border, then businesses will be forced to offer better services at lower prices.

It is expected the average food bill per Canadian family will decline by $100 per year, that the cost of construction of a house will be from $5,000 to $8,000 less, and that it will cost at least $3,000 less to furnish a home and buy appliances.

Yet Canadian and American consumers may see these benefits eroded by continuing inflation, high interest rates and increased sales taxes. Large government deficits in North America, along with inflationary pressures result in higher costs of goods relative to the rest of the world.

Economic powers shifting

The economic powers of the world are shifting. The dominant industrial countries by the 21st century will likely be South Korea, Hong Kong, Taiwan and Japan. Income growth for Canadian and American consumers will be sluggish as we struggle to be competitive in the changing world by becoming more productive, controlling inflation, and dealing with our chronic budgetary deficits.

Free trade will remove import quotas and cut tariffs in stages over the next nine years, making businesses more efficient. Canadian companies will also have many more customers, creating economies of scale that should lower Canadian prices.

Yet free trade will protect Canada's huge investment in the U.S. while leaving our sovereignty and extensive and social programs untouched.

No more party line

Drayton Valley exchange party-line customers will have their lines converted to individual line services in the first quarter of 1990, according to AGT regional manager Doug Wetter.

Wetter says there are 1,224 rural multi-party service lines on the Drayton Valley exchange.

The conversion is part of a five-year program that began in December of 1987, and will end in July 1991.

YOU CAN'T BURN WITHOUT PERMITION

Before you burn any debris in or near any forest protection area, you must have a Fire Permit. However, although the Fire Permit allows burning at a particular time and place, you are still responsible for conducting a safe burn!

If your fire gets out of hand and causes damage, you could be fined, imprisoned and held liable for all costs involved.

Before lighting any Permit fire, check with your local District Forest Officer for the latest weather conditions and advice on conducting a safe burn. Never leave a fire unattended.

If you see smoke or fire in any forested area, call our Hot Line collect — call immediately!

Don't panic; trees will recover

Brown needles on your evergreen trees may be a sign of winter injury, but don't panic because the trees can recover.

"In most cases damage isn't severe enough to kill the trees. Needles that turn brown are dead and will fall off," says Pam North, information officer at the Alberta Tree Nursery and Horticulture Centre in Edmonton. "Severity of the damage will vary. Some plants may lose all their needles, others may lose just those on the ends of branches or on one side."

Winter injury can be seen as needles turn from green to light tan or reddish brown. Colorado spruce takes on a purplish color. This damage usually is at the ends of branches and moves inward. It is caused by desiccation, or drying out, of the foliage.

"Warm temperatures and reflected light off the snow cause the needles to lose moisture. With the ground still frozen, the roots are unable to replace this moisture and the needles dry out."

"Usually this type of damage is seen more on the south and west side of trees and on evergreens such as junipers and cedars planted on the south and west side of buildings," says North.

There are several ways to deal with winter injured evergreens, she says. "The trees shouldn't be watered until the ground has thawed out and it appears that moisture is needed."

Dead areas can be pruned, but North cautions to wait until you are sure which parts of the tree are dead. "Even if old needles are dead, trees still might get new growth at the ends of branches," she says. Light fertilization to stimulate growth can also be used, but not until mid-May.

North says another common spring problem is snow mould, a cottony white or grey film covering grass. The mould is a fungus that grows at low temperatures under the snow.

"It's been more of a problem this year because the snow has melted slowly," she says. In severe cases the mould can kill lawn, and if grass doesn't grow back, then it must be reseeded.

Sweeping or raking the mould is one way to control its growth. "As soon as you can walk on the lawn, get out and sweep or rake it to break up the mould. Raking should be done lightly, so the grass isn't pulled out. Breaking up the mould allows the grass to dry and stops the growth of fungus."

In areas where snow is melting slowly, North says to spread out the drifts to speed up melting.

Odds in Jaime's favor

By Belinda Atkinson
Jaime Gilbert is back and ready to fight for a new cause now that her five-month struggle for life has ended.

"I want to go back to school and I really want to go back to the same class," the 12-year-old girl demanded last Wednesday.

Jaime hadn't even unpacked from her 26-day trip to two San Francisco hospitals but the tests and treatments to correct Arterio Venous Malformation (AVM) were out of her mind.

Instead, she was full of energy and excited that the matting of arteries in the brain would no longer keep her from Evergreen school and the friends she'd been denied since a collapse Dec. 7, 1988.

Doctors from the Stanford Clinic and Berkeley University will allow Jaime to return to school after the May long weekend. However, they've issued a stern warning that she refrain from any activity that would raise her blood pressure.

"I think that's ridiculous," she responded to a reminder from mom that physical education class is out of the question.

And mother Jane Robinson is doubtful Jaime will be able to catch up on missed assignments and rejoin her class until annual angiogram tests and checkups reveal the arteries are no longer constricted.

"We won't know if there's been any (positive) result for two years," Jane said.

There is also a chance the still-experimental treatments could cause hemorrhaging and possible brain damage or death but Jane is optimistic after hearing the university's high success rate.

"They've treated 300 patients and only three have had side effects," she said.

"The odds of (the treatment) not working are very slim," she said.

Complaints force study

By Belinda Atkinson
Numerous complaints of dust and health problems have forced two government agencies to conduct an in-depth air-quality study.

The departments of health and environment will begin testing indoor and outdoor air quality in Drayton Valley this week in a first combined effort to determine the cause and extent of the problem.

Ed Collom, assistant director of environmental health, admits the full scope of the project is still undetermined.

Until toxicology reports are in place, he said it is impossible to say how far the provincial government will go to clean up the air.

If one industry is found negligent, Collom said it is within their power to enforce recommendations to alleviate the problem. He would not, however, speculate a specific cause for the poor air quality.

While many of the complaints have come from Hillcrest residents, the residential subdivision closest to Pelican Spruce Mills, Tom McGee, local representative for the West Central Health Unit, said the departments are correct to look at all possibilities.

He said emissions from gas plants west of Drayton Valley could also be at fault.

"Do people start worrying now or should we have been worrying 10 years ago?" he said.

However Pelican Spruce Mills Steering Committee member Scotty Dryden said simple deductive reasoning is all that's needed to point a finger at the mill.

"We never had problems until the mill was put in. You figure it out," he said.

Other Hillcrest residents were just as determined the mill was at fault for noise, dust and poor air quality that has become a part of their lives for the last two years.

"My biggest beef is the noise. You can hear it in the Twin Rivers board expects lean budget

By Sue Kenyon

The 1989/90 school board budget has not been released and will be submitted late to the Department of Education, Bill Weber, secretary treasurer told Twin Rivers school board members last week.

The board is presently working with two budgets. The current budget runs until Aug. 31 of this year and the 1989/90 budget will be in effect from Sept. 1 to Aug 31 of next year.

The 1989/90 budget should have been submitted to the ministry at the end of April but Weber says there is no problem with the lateness of the budget.

"We've requested a time extension in writing; they verbally agreed to they know it's coming," he told trustees and board members.

Dr. George Bevan and Weber told trustees the budget may be out, that by guessing expenditures, the board will probably find itself either a little over what they estimated or under.

Weekend fatalities total two

Two women were killed early May 7 in two separate car accidents in the Breton area.

Beth Holmgren, 52, of Lindale, was killed early Sunday morning in a two-vehicle accident one mile west of Lindale on a stretch of gravel road.

Holmgren and driver Cecil Ellis, 63, were travelling eastward when struck by a vehicle driven by Robert Larsen, 20, of Carletonwood.

Larsen, who was unhurt, was charged with impaired driving causing death and appeared in Leduc Provincial Court May 8.

Ellis is in serious condition in hospital and two passengers who were travelling with Larsen were treated for injuries and later released.

Breton RCMP are still investigating and additional charges may be laid.

Bettina Habel, 26, of Drayton Valley, was killed in a separate accident early Sunday morning when her vehicle left the pavement 12 miles west of Breton on Secondary Hwy 616.

Habel was the sole occupant of the vehicle.

Breton RCMP are investigating to determine the exact time and cause of the fatal accident.

Tri-Alta Tool is building a new office/shop in the northwest corner of town.

Town council and the chamber of commerce had a 'very good meeting' last week, according to several unnamed sources.

Sandy Buchan, president of the Drayton Valley Minor Baseball Association, reports approximately 280 kids have signed up this season.

The Drayton Valley Royal Canadian Legion Branch 26 reports memberships have reached 1,268.

However, about 10 per cent of the members haven't renewed their memberships.

People attending the recent minor hockey annual meeting were urged to send letters to Mayor Bob Mayhew, indicating their support to cover the outdoor ice surface.

Dan Sieben admits he's looking at plans for a new bowling alley in town. But, that's all he is saying.

About 150 kids, from grades 7 through 12, attended a two-day United Church youth rally in Drayton Valley on the weekend.

Owners of Birchwood Village Greens at Lindale, hope to have the official opening of their new $700,000 leisure centre next month.

Residents impatiently waiting for their assessment/tax notices will have to wait just a little longer.

The town hopes to have them out by the middle of the month.

Due to the delay, an open house set up to deal with assessment/tax questions originally booked for May 17-18 has also been delayed. A new date will be announced later by the town.

Pitching-in

The town's recreation staff took to the streets last Wednesday during national Pitch-in Week to clean up the town.

Good news in store for caterpillar foes

By Susan Moscicki
A forest tent caterpillar information seminar held in the provincial building last week indicated good news may be in store for the Drayton Valley area.

"Your egg bands don't look too healthy around here," said Jim Emond, tree pest extension officer with Canadian Forestry Service.

Emond said unhealthy egg bands are a good sign. He said it could indicate a virus which will eventually kill off the crawling pests that defoliate and weaken trees. "There could be a light at the end of the tunnel," he said.

Agriculture fieldman Barb Shackel said, "The MD (Brazeau) won't get into aerial spraying because of economics." She said the MD has back-pack and barrel sprayers for rent as well as safety kits for ground spraying.

Emond recommended ground application being done every 10 days until the caterpillars are gone.

Caterpillars are already beginning to emerge, said Emond. He maintained this indicates there will be some starvation because the trees have not budded out yet.

Janet McLean Mueller, training and extension officer with Alberta Environment Pest Management branch, said the only product approved for aerial application is B.t.(generic name). It is a biological insecticide that is natural in the environment. B.t. apparently kills only caterpillars. Products used in the past killed off insects and were also dangerous to wildlife.

Aerial spraying of B.t. causes cessation of feeding (Cont'd on page 6)

Budget down to bare bones - Strand

"Only when this board has worked a full year with its own expenditures can we get a factual budget," Bevan said.

Presently the budget is made up from figures the county of Parkland used.

The way the budget looks now, is not good. Although figures have not officially been released, trustee Carolyn Strand was a little concerned over the "limited" budget the board was looking at.

"I guess we will just have to struggle, but it's scary."

"We seem to have $698,000 surplus. That is not much, we are on the bare bones. I guess we will just have to struggle but it is scary because there are always unforeseen expenses coming up through the year," Strand said.

Vi Helm, chairman of the board explained that school boards are not like MDs. They do not usually have large financial cushions to work with in case of unexpected expenses.

"What happens when those expenses arise then?" Strand asked.

"They go into a deficit," Helm replied.

Weber said the board will hold another meeting when the budget will be finalized and released.

Residents point to mill

house at night," said John Jonson.

"It (building the mill here) was a definite mistake. Stupidity. Insanity. Criminal," he added.

However, Johnson said two members of the family who suffer from asthma have not complained of worsening conditions in the last two years.

Neighbor Janey Sellwood's biggest complaint is dust. She said rooms on the side of the house closest to the mill often need cleaning and a wiper is needed some mornings to clear sediment off the windshield of her car.

Residents are also aware the property values of their homes have been directly affected.

"Oh I know it has. I know houses down in this area don't sell," said Bobby Maconchie, adding she would be angry if she were trying to sell the house.

But she said she is not as upset as neighbors because of the economic benefits that have come with the mill.

Kindergarten increases demands in wake of closure negotiations

By Sue Kenyon

The Twin Rivers school board has had another setback in the early childhood education issue.

What seemed to be a closure of the community kindergarten in the midst seems further off now than before.

Up until last week Twin Rivers school board was under the impression the kindergarten was willing to negotiate terms of closure but their terms seem to have increased and become more stringent.

"There is a need to get closure on this and we should act because I don't know if we will get agreement the first time around," Dr. George Bevan, superintendent, told the board in a regular meeting last Wednesday. "Originally there were only four conditions. Those conditions looked open to negotiation.

With this new letter comes 10 conditions we never even knew about."

The 10 conditions outlined in a letter by Sandy Hamilton, ECS co-ordinator of the community kindergarten, are as follows:

The community kindergarten will sell equipment and the building to the board for $1; the surplus of funds of the community kindergarten remain with the kindergarten society and be used by September of 1990; that the board offer a full-time position, with a year's contract to Sandy Hamilton; that all staff positions for the new ECS be offered to those currently employed by the community kindergarten; that programming for ECS include home visitations; that all children be given a choice of a full or half-day (Cont'd on page 7)

Poplar Ridge road needs attention

"Better late than never." We've all heard that phrase at least a 100 times.

In many cases, if some little things had been done first, the worst might not have followed, and the phrase wouldn't fit.

Hopefully, something will be done before we are talking about the worst on the Poplar Ridge road.

If you haven't travelled that roadway lately, you're likely not aware of the five-day-a-week traffic.

It's a problem that needs to be addressed immediately.

Maybe, the situation wouldn't be as bad if the speed limits were reduced. This may only come with law enforcement.

But at the present time, traffic on that stretch of roadway between Pembina Resources and Mobil Oil is heavy, especially around 4:30 p.m.

Some days it resembles a freeway, as traffic roars down the road just to get to the red light on Highway 22.

In conjunction with the traffic and the apparent speeds, another problem is the absence of any sidewalks. It creates a dangerous situation for pedestrians.

The stretch of road in question is the responsibility of the municipal district.

With all the money they are spending on salaries and equipment, maybe they could find some money for sidewalks. Short of that, a curb along the Poplar Ridge road would help.

The MD might consider painting the centre traffic line and asking the RCMP to police the road.

Ignored deficits should be taken more seriously

Mayor Bob Mayhew says there's no cause for alarm.

Recreation director Paul Nielsen says the same about the $100,931 deficit recorded last year at the Park Valley indoor swimming pool.

Add to that figure, another $58,395-deficit for the arena.

Actually, it's alarming that the mayor and recreation director don't seem too concerned.

If the indoor pool is running up a deficit like $100,931 maybe it's time council gave the matter some serious deliberation during current budget talks.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

It's always encouraging to read about our young people in the paper.

Last week reporter Susan Moscicki featured Tineta Courturier, a young singer who's off to Nashville in June.

On the sports pages, was a story about Shannon Bredin, the Drayton Valley highland dancer who has earned a sixth trip to the Canadian finals.

During a recent council meeting, the winners in the municipal week poster/essay contest were honored.

Blair Trueman, a Grade 12 student at Frank Maddock high, winner of the essay contest, had the opportunity to read his award-winning entry out to the audience.

Nathan Bashaw and Lara Koehmstedt, the poster winners, were also officially recognized by the mayor.

Jeweller jeers at 'jems'

Supposed diamonds found two weeks ago by a Warburg boy have turned out to be valueless.

"The jeweller's words were quite crude after he examined them. Basically he said the plastic box they were sitting in was probably worth more," Corp. Gerry Tonn of the Thoraby RCMP said.

The 'jems' were turned over to police after a Warburg boy found them near the Thoraby elementary school.

Tonn says they will be held for two months for the owners to claim.

NSF cheques net jail term

A 24-year-old man pleaded guilty May 4 to seven counts of false pretences for writing bad cheques while living and working in Drayton Valley.

Kenneth Dunbar was sentenced to 14 days in jail on each count to be served concurrently on weekends in Lethbridge.

Board to approve pool

The West End Swimming Pool Society of Breton will be receiving written approval, in principle, from the Twin Rivers School board to proceed with building a pool adjacent to the Breton high school.

Carolyn Strand, trustee, said this issue has been going on for some time. She told the board last week the construction had been approved in principle by the county of Leduc but the committees never got together to plan.

Strand explained they must have approval in writing from the school board before the pool committee can go after any major grants which might help finance the project.

Pipeline between Caroline and Boundary Lake will be located 14 miles west of Drayton Valley.

Pipeline proposed for Drayton Valley

A proposed pipeline right-of-way will be located 14 miles west of Drayton Valley, according to Foothills Pipelines Ltd. supervisor of public and regulatory affairs, Bob Oldridge.

The Calgary-based company will seek permission from the Northern Pipeline Agency for an extension of the Prebuild of the ANGTS (Alaska Natural Gas Transportation System) facilities.

The Prebuild extension would be about 407 miles in length.

Oldridge said there has not been an application in as yet. The proposed extension would go from Caroline to Boundary Lake, where it will connect with another proposed pipeline — the Mackenzie Valley pipeline.

The Prebuild extension would be sized to accommodate gas flows from both the Mackenzie Delta and Alaskan Prudhoe Bay, and would be approximately 407 miles in length.

The pipeline from Mackenzie Delta to Boundary Lake (Mackenzie Valley Pipeline) would be a 1,023-mile-line.

In a news release, C. Kent Jespersen, president of Foothills Pipelines Ltd., emphasized the overall project, if approved, would greatly contribute to the expeditious and economic delivery of gas both from the Canadian and US frontier breakdown, and death.

Timing is of the utmost importance when spraying caterpillars, said McLean Mueller. The product only works when the pests are half an inch to three-quarters of an inch long. "And don't apply if rain is forecast within 24 hours."

She said if a rain occurs six hours after application the product will still work, but it is not a good idea to spray when you know rain is forecast.

McLean Mueller insists B.T. is a quality product, better than products used in the past. "We call the old stuff Spray and Pray," she laughed.

Forest Protection Alberta

(Wetaskiwin), and West Central Air Spray (Stony Plain) were two aerial sprayers represented at the seminar. Representatives noted that costs vary depending on how great an area will be sprayed, and recommended that several people in one area get together to decrease cost per acre.

Family Day added to list of province's holidays

Next year schools will be in for another new holiday.

The provincial government has announced a Family Day to take place sometime in February.

A date for the new holiday has not yet been announced but with the added day off, it will leave only 17 school days in the month of February.

Conditions added to proposal

program, and that in-home or centre-based programs special needs with professionals be offered.

Hamilton is asking for full busing to be provided for both full and half-day students, that the class sizes not exceed 25 students, the program have a special local advisory committee elected by parents of children enrolled and the committee's mandate include having input of the ECS budget. They want to have a representative on ECS staff hiring committee, and be responsible for raising additional funds and oversee expenditures of funds in consultation with administration.

The eighth condition is that the ECS registration and tuition fees collected by the school be allocated to a special budget administered by the advisory committee and the committee have decision making power over that portion of the budget, that the advisory committee be consulted on all major program and facility decisions and lastly, the Twin Rivers school board pay all legal and administrative costs associated with the transfer.

"...they might find they do not have the right to spend the surplus as they wish"

Dr. George Bevan pointed out that with the term that the community kindergarten keep all their surplus and dispose of it as they like, may cause problems.

"They will have to establish that Alberta Education has no claim on that money and they may find they do not have the right to spend it as they wish," Bevan said.

Bill Weber, secretary treasurer said he was under the impression there were certain regulations ECS had to follow when closing down.

The board has decided to consult with a lawyer over the terms and conditions submitted by the community kindergarten.

Farmer's Day which is scheduled for June 8, 1990 has been designated a holiday but schools will be open, however regular instruction will not take place.

"It will be more like a sports day," Dr. George Bevan, superintendent, said at a regular school board meeting last Wednesday.

Shotgun regulations adopted by council

The County of Parkland council has passed a motion on the use and handling of shotguns for their county patrol.

The policy states only shotguns issued by the department will be used by the officers while on duty.

The shotguns that have been issued are 12-gauge Remington 870 magnums. Constables are provided with four rounds of ammunition.

Forces like the County of Parkland Patrol were given the authority to carry shotguns in their cars by former Solicitor General Marv Moore. This became effective Jan. 1.

The shotguns are to be used for animal control purposes and are not intended to replace sidearms, which are now not allowed under the new Police Act.

The policy outlines

Trustee Carolyn Strana, said she has received a number of complaints by parents over the issue of Christmas holidays this year.

Christmas holidays begin Dec. 25, which is a Monday so the last day of school is Dec. 22. School is scheduled to open again Jan. 5.

"I've heard from many parents that they would like more time with their children before Christmas rather than after," she told the board and fellow trustees.

Other trustees said they had not heard any feedback on the Christmas break schedule and that it is the same in surrounding jurisdictions.

procedures for the care, use and storage of the guns. As well, it emphasizes the shotguns are to be kept out of public view as much as possible.

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

Cpl. Dave Caporale wouldn't be chosen for a part in Dirty Harry.

It would just be too difficult to imagine the happy-go-lucky officer asking someone to make his day.

That's the impression one gets when the officer explains why he'd prefer to live in a small community.

"You get to know people and it's a friendly atmosphere," he says.

This neighborly attitude left Caporale with fond memories of past postings in four largely native communities.

He thrived on elders' stories and started learning Cree before his transfer here five years ago.

Now, Drayton Valley is home for him, wife Bev and children Scott and Janice, and he hopes it will be for some time to come.

Owen to leave Pelican Mills

Al Owen, former owner of Pelican Spruce Mills will be leaving his present position with Weyerhaeuser Canada later this year.

Owen, former owner of Pelican Spruce Mills operations in Edson and Drayton Valley is currently Weyerhaeuser's Alberta division general manager.

On Aug. 1 he will be replaced by Fred McDougall, the current deputy minister of forestry, lands and wildlife, who will leave that job June 30 after 30 years with the government. McDougall has been the deputy minister for the past 11 years.

Owen sold his mills in Edson and Drayton Valley to Weyerhaeuser late last year.

Town drinking water to compete in city

The town plans to submit an entry in Alberta Environment's drinking water challenge.

Eighteen communities, including Drayton Valley and Breton, have been invited to compete in the Edmonton/northeast regional challenge May 17 in Vegreville. The winner will advance to the provincial finals to be held in Edmonton in June during Environment Week.

Each centre will submit two samples to the Vegreville competition. They will be checked for such things as odor, taste, color and clarity.

Manjeet Saran, the town engineer, is looking forward to the competition. "Our quality of water is pretty good," he says.

Some of the other centres Drayton Valley and Breton might meet at the Vegreville challenge include Camrose, Wetaskiwin, Grande Centre, Lloydminster and Hinton.

Curling club seeks rink funds

Now that the footings are poured the Drayton Valley curling club expects to see more financial support for its new six-sheet rink.

Curling club president Bruce Clemmer says he has talked to a number of major corporations and expects to see some assistance coming shortly.

Clemmer is keeping his fingers crossed that if the anticipated funding comes in as hoped, the club may be able to complete the entire building by Christmas.

At the present time the club has the funds to finish the lounge and recreation area. Phase two of the project would include the floor, ice plant and roof.

Besides the local support, the curling club has sent in a couple of submissions to the government.

"I'd like to build it without borrowing the money. That way, it won't create any extra burden on the users," Clemmer says.

It is also Clemmer's hope, once the new rink is completed, the Drayton Valley club will be in line to host some major playoffs.

Although the curling club executive is anxious to get into a new facility, they can play in the existing rink for another winter.

The property where the existing rink sits has been sold to the provincial government for $140,000. That does not include the building.

The government doesn't want the property until June 1990.

Once the new rink is completed, Clemmer expects to see a renewed interest in the game. However, he's more than pleased with the 400 who signed up for the past season.

Baseball pitcher's troubles mounting

It was a rough start to the midget baseball season for pitcher Cory Dusterhoft.

Dusterhoft, one of several Drayton Valley players returning for a second season with the Stony Plain Cubs, dropped a 9-3 decision to Sherwood Park in their league opener.

After retiring Sherwood Park in the first inning,

Dusterhoft ran into trouble in the second.

The Park loaded the sacks on a hit and three walks which produced their first run. The next hitter cracked out a triple and the score was quickly 4-0. The next batter up lined a double and another run crossed the plate.

In their second game against Sherwood Park, the Cubs fell behind 3-1 early but managed to get a tie in the end.

Catcher Trevor Fedorus, another Drayton Valley addition, got the Cubs rolling with a triple and scored on a bunt single by Dan Rychlik.

The Cubs tied the contest in the sixth on a walk, a stolen base and a run scoring single by Jason Kipling.

Things didn't come easily for the Cubs as pitcher Kevin Bergquist loaded the bases in the bottom of the seventh with none out. He got one batter out on strikes and the next two hit balls directly to the outfielders to retire the side and preserve the tie.

Kipling and Bergquist are also from Drayton Valley.

Fastball in full swing

The eight-team Evergreen Men's Fastball League season is underway.

Teams in the league this year include Drayton Valley Knights and Mobil Oil, Buck Lake Lakers, Nojack Suds, Wabamun Whitecaps and Drifters, Paul Band Generals and a second team from Paul Band.

Games are played every Monday and Wednesday night.

Tomorrow (Wednesday) night the Knights travel to Buck Lake, Mobil Oil host Nojack, Paul Band General play the Whitecaps at Wabamun and the Drifters travel to Paul Band to play their number 2 team.

Summer programs starting

By Pat Cameron
Great news.

We are now taking registrations for all of our summer programs.

The summer sessions shape up this way: session 1 - July 3-14; session 2 - July 17-28; session 3 - July 31 to Aug. 11 and session 4 - Aug. 14-25.

During these sessions, we will have lessons for all ages and all levels. Come in and see our selection before you decide which one you like.

We are also offering adult lessons mornings and evenings. The adult lessons will be every morning from July 3 to 14 from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. During the evening, we will have two sessions for adults over the summer. The first one runs from July 3-26, Monday and Wednesday evenings from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. and the second one will be from July 31 to Aug. 28, also from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. The second session however, will only consist of eight lessons, so will be pro-rated.

Call by the pool for information on these lessons. Special news for Splash and Dashers: we are now open at 6 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings. If the response is good, this may continue in upcoming schedules.

Also, our leisure swims on Friday do not begin until 6:30 p.m.

Attention all moms. Come down to the pool on Sunday, May 14 for our Mother's Day swim. During our family swim from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. we will have coffee, tea and cake. Remember, you must bring your children.

It's still awfully cold in local waters, so be aware of the dangers of hypothermia. We have some excellent handouts and pamphlets on this as well as boating safety. Be sure to take advantage of these freebies. Congratulations to all of our 'lifeguard for a day' contest winners. Hope you had as much fun as we did.

Club proud of its competitors

50 Years of Hockey
When I was just a little girl
I can remember very clear
As hockey season came
From somewhere beyond
Came Foster Howe's voice (loud and clear)
Why did we have to be so quiet?
Just to hear - He shoots, he scores,
And then my Uncles cheers.
The Maple Leafs they must win of course
I knew because my Uncle said so
What was a score? What was a puck? Who were the Leafs?
Who was Eddie Shore?
That old Marconi Radio never showed us anymore
It was only a voice we must listen to Oh, how I hated that voice!
We must be quiet and didn't have no choice
Then I got married.
My Husband was not a hockey fan.
For a time we didn't really care
How the Stanley Cup was won.
But lo and behold we had a son,
And then came mistake number one.
We got a T.V.
Then just for fun
Our son played hockey
We didn't care who won.
Then that's where the whole thing got out of hand.
The voice isn't Howe's anymore
There're still the Leafs, but no Eddie Shore
I still must be quiet and have to stay out of the way
Because now there are pictures and he must not miss the play.
My Husband is louder than my Uncles ever were.
At least I know now what it means when they score.
When that voice hollers out - He shoots, He scores -
And I hear my Husband's loud cheer of delight
I give a big sigh because I know
At least it's all over for tonight.

The DV Gymnastics Club held an annual general meeting April 27 to close off the year.

Even though there was a lot of advertising, various newsletters and reminders sent home, we still, unfortunately, had only two parents attend.

As a result of this recurring problem, the executive has decided to re-schedule the annual meetings to registration night in the fall sessions beginning this fall.

The club hosted a fun meet competition against Rocky Mountain House April 29 in which six girls came to compete against our five.

All competitors presented routines on the balance beam, floor exercise, uneven bars and vault horse.

We were very proud of our girls. All placed first to third in at least one event.

Both audience and other gymnasts were especially impressed by our gymnast Tara Winttingham who took first place in every event and first all-round with a score of 34.6 out of a possible 40.

Excellent performances were also given by: Kerri Meston, who earned two first place finishes, one second, one third and second in all-round ribbons; Nikki Reich, who took two seconds, one third and a second all-round; Paulette Davidson, who received a second place ribbon; and January Brunbitt who earned two third place ribbons.

The club is looking forward to hosting two more meets next year to give more gymnasts the opportunity to revel in the glory of winning a competition event. "Oh, what a feeling!"

We would like to wish everyone — students, parents, coaches, executive, volunteers — a great summer.

Eldorado gets grant

The Eldorado parents committee has received approval of a $20,000 Community Facilities Enhancement Grant.

The money will be spent to construct new playground equipment.

The approval from the provincial government is contingent on the school board's approval of a construction grant of $5,482.50 which makes up their share.

At a recent board meeting a recommendation was carried to authorize construction to go ahead and provide the $5,482.50 for the project.

164 commercial vehicles checked

A two-day Motor Transport checkpoint in the Drayton Valley area turned up some alarming statistics.

During the two-day checkpoint, at the junction of highways 820 and 22 (Lodgepole) and highways 621 and 22 (Cynthia) Motor Transport checked 164 commercial vehicles.

One hundred and twenty-six vehicles had equipment offences.

Sixteen were operating without proper authority, such as permits.

Nine others didn't have proper registration and 20 were tagged with dimension offences.

Twenty-six vehicles were given the end-to-end safety check, and everyone failed the test.

There were also 29 dangerous goods offences.

In all, Motor Transport issued three prosecutions and 29 warnings.

Mike Anderson, the MD's special constable, says the trucking industry around Drayton Valley needs to tighten its belt.

"Most of the industry is very good. However, some of them know they are running illegal," Anderson says.

Anderson will be running a number of random checks in the area in the weeks ahead and in some instances, will be assisting Motor Transport.

Distance education a possibility

The Twin Rivers school board will be applying for a provincial government grant to implement a Distant Education Centre in the Breton high school.

Dr. George Bevan, superintendent, said the one-time start-up grant may bring in about $35,000. From there the board can apply for a yearly operating grant.

Bevan told the school board at a recent meeting that if the grant is approved the board could look at starting the Distant Education Centre as soon as September of next year.

"It doesn't have to start up in September but to get the grant the program must be implemented sometime in 1989/90.

Distant education is similar to correspondence however instead of receiving lessons and results through mail, the centre would fax lessons so students would get immediate results.

Committee wants portables inspected

Concerns have been brought to the Twin Rivers school board from the Eldorado Parents Association in regard to the condition of portables used by the school.

The board has decided to meet with members of the association.

Dr. George Bevan said the portables were a subject discussed at the early childhood education special meeting. He said at that time, the board told those who attended there is no structural problems with the portables.

"There aren't any problems structurally, but we will have to meet with them," Bevan said.

In a letter to the school board, Gail Woynarowich, president of the parents association said they feel the structural integrity of the buildings is less than adequate.

Woynarowich pointed out four points which leads the association to believe structural problems exist.

She says that because the buildings have no water or toilet facilities, and because the portables have poor heating, unhealthy air circulation and poor atmosphere they would like the board to call in a building inspector to assess the situation.

Edmonton line painting firm fired over unsatisfactory performance

An Edmonton firm hired by the town to paint the traffic lines has been handed its pink slip.

According to Manjeet Saran, the town engineer, work started by Brian Cuthbertson was not satisfactory. So, after one day on the job, work was suspended.

Saran says it hasn't been determined how much of the $5,850 contract Cuthbertson will be receiving. The town engineer says some of the traffic lines that were done, were okay while others were not acceptable.

As a result, the town has hired Lafrenz, another Edmonton firm, to complete the job. They had the second-lowest tender at $8,038.

Saran told The Western Review Lafrenz took the job for less than the contract price because lines that were already painted won't have to be done a second time. But he didn't have the actual contract price.

Lafrenz does a lot of highway line painting and according to Saran, have done the Drayton Valley job in past years.

It's the town's intention to use asphalt paint to cover over some of the mistakes and re-paint them.

Lafrenz could start work in Drayton Valley next week. This all depends on a number of other line painting jobs they have lined up.

Howse Pass will be 'enormous' benefit to Alberta

By Pat Bell, Editor
Leduc Representative
The executive of the Leduc chamber of commerce has passed a resolution supporting the continuation of the controversial Howse Pass portion of the David Thompson Highway between Rocky Mountain House and Golden, B.C.

Chamber president Doris Smith handed a letter of support to Pat Henry, executive director of the Red Deer chamber, during a general meeting of central Alberta chambers recently in Leduc.

Smith notes in the letter, as a major link, the Howse Pass would provide an outlet for the industry and resources of the provinces and would also save 1 1/2 to two hours of driving time alone between Leduc and Golden for trucking companies, tourists and salesmen.

Agreeing with Henry, she notes the route that cuts through central Alberta would also benefit the provinces of British Columbia and Saskatchewan, and adds the scenic route and the winter sports potential would also be appreciated.

Henry told visiting chamber representatives the pass would shorten the distance between Edmonton and the Okanagan Valley by 148 kilometres. However, the federal government will not permit construction on the portion of the route through the national park, out of concern for the environment.

"It's such an environmentally sensitive issue as far as the government is concerned," Henry says, but adds, "No one is going to allow it to go through if it is not environmentally accepted."

The Leduc chamber letter endorses the efforts of the Howse Pass Association formed at Red Deer in 1970 as a non-profit association dedicated to construction of the future. The Howse route extends east from Golden to the Saskatchewan River Crossing, through Rocky Mountain House, Red Deer, Statler and on to Provost and the Saskatchewan border.

"The Howse Pass route would provide a viable alternative to twinning the TransCanada (Highway). The cost of upgrading the TransCanada is so horrendous that you can only conclude that the Howse route is in the national interest," says Henry.

If only 10 per cent of the TransCanada traffic was diverted to the Howse Pass, it would allow over 300,000 vehicles a year access to central Alberta, he says. "And if only 10 per cent of these people stayed in Alberta an extra day or two, tourist benefits to our province would be enormous."

Henry says the cost of constructing the pass would be considerably less than 100 million.

For every dollar spent, $1.6 would come back in terms of benefits to this tourist zone, Henry admits.

A camping cavalcade to the pass is scheduled for mid-August.

Fires cost landowners

By Christina Vanzella
Stony Plain Reporter

A bylaw for the County of Parkland which would have landowners pay for the costs of putting out fires that occur on their land, whether they started them or not, is scheduled at the next county council meeting.

A submission to council prepared by fire chief Ken Saulit said the authority in the bylaw would only be exercised in cases of flagrant disregard for proper fire safety.

It would be used where repeat offenders were involved and cases where there has been an obvious disregard and lack of caution when starting the fire.

The proposed bylaw would charge $100 per hour per unit for each fire truck called to the scene.

The bylaw allows for some judgement says county Reeve Ron Pollock.

Repeat offenders who start fires that get out of control cost this municipality money unnecessarily in the area of fire control, Pollock added.

New name official

The County of Parkland has received confirmation from the solicitor general's office that its new name for the county police department is suitable.

The former County Police will now be officially known as the County of Parkland Patrol Department.

When the new MD assumed duties for the county in Drayton Valley last July, the police moved their office to Tomahawk. They also have an office in Stony Plain.

Members will be allowed to wear their current cap and collar badges as the new ones have been delayed in delivery.

Nomination deadline May 31

There is still time to nominate an exceptional young person for an Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Award. The deadline is May 31.

Eligible for the award are Albertans ages six to 18, whose cheerful enthusiasm and selfless commitment enhances the lives of others and contributes to the community. These people are not superstars or attention-seekers. They are caring individuals who are rewarded by the act of caring and giving.

The Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Awards, sponsored by Alberta Power and TransAlta Utilities in cooperation with the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association, recognizes and rewards exceptional young Albertans for good citizenship and community volunteer involvement.

Award recipients are selected by a panel of newspaper editors and publishers from the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association.

At a special dinner held in their honor, award recipients receive a framed citation from the Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta, a cash award and an exclusive lapel pin.

Every person nominated, whether they are selected for the award or not, receives a personalized certificate by mail.

Why not nominate a young person for the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Award. Nomination forms are available from this newspaper, or your local TransAlta Utilities office.

Sale attracts hundreds

Buck Lake News

By Joan Elmont

In spite of chilly weather the annual Buck Lake sale brought out hundreds of would-be bargain finders.

There were bargains galore, including barbecues at less than half price. Beautiful musical instruments found new players, including a very unusual autoharp.

With something to suit all tastes it is a very favorable sale.

Funeral services were conducted by Pastor Herb Heinemann of Drayton Valley, at the Buck Lake Hall on April 27 for long-time resident of the area Julium (Joe) Walters who died in the Breton Hospital April 22.

Plants oldest living things on earth

Without plants, there could be no life on the earth. The oxygen in the air we breathe comes from plants. Our food comes from plants - or from animals that eat plants.

Scientists believe that there are more than 350,000 kinds of plants, but no one knows for sure.

Some of the smallest plants - called diatoms, can be seen only with a microscope. A drop of water may hold as many as 500 of these tiny, single-cell plants.

The largest living things are the giant sequoia trees, found only in California.

Plants are also the oldest living things on earth.

Plants play an important part in the cycle of nature. They grow by taking energy from the sun, carbon dioxide from the air, and water and minerals from the ground.

During the cycle, plants supply us with food, and give off the oxygen that we breathe.

Smoothing the way

A town employee smoothed down the old turf last week on a baseball diamond near the Drayton Sports Centre. Once renovation is complete it will be time to play ball on what one worker called a 'renovated' diamond.

Why? because a mother's work is never done. She works from day all right to dust and mend to wash and dry to scrub and rub, even in the tub. She cooks my meal everyday. She buys my shorts, shoes and pants and she even buys me things I don't deserve. She gives me a good education. She disciplines me when I've done wrong. I sometimes think she is not fair but sometimes I think she's fair which I could repay her somehow, but and mom is mom so all I can say is Happy Mother's Day.

Sewage plant expansion imminent

Town council wrestled with the population issue in deciding on its $1,638,000 sewage treatment plant expansion.

Several of the proposals they looked at were geared for 9,000 people. One was set up to handle a population of 8,000.

However, that was basically ruled out by ISL Infrastructure Ltd. in their recommendations to town council.

It was felt by reducing the capacity to handle 8,000 people would be defeating the purpose of the expansion.

And, the town could possibly be faced with further expansion sooner than desired in order to accommodate the growing population and additional areas that require the service of the facility.

Once the tenders are in and everything is acceptable, work could start in late May or early June and be completed by October of this year.

ISL plans to have a man on site daily to record and monitor the progress.

Councillor Tom McGee questioned the firm's time lines at the last council meeting.

"With normal weather conditions it can be done," Frank Lutz told council.

Pot-luck supper a success

Moon Lake News

By Alma Johnson

Dick and Zetta MacRae have returned home after a week in Victoria, B.C. visiting Laura and Larry Woods and son Kenneth.

Norm and Alma Johnson have returned after a very enjoyable week visiting friends in Campbell River, B.C.

A miscellaneous bridal shower was held at the hall on April 23 for Jennifer Lindsey, bride-to-be of Frank Burns Jr. Approximately 30 ladies came to present her with gifts and enjoyed visiting, coffee and lunch at the close of the afternoon.

Norm and Alma Johnson drove to Sanguo recently to visit with Dan and Debbie Burki and their family.

The pot-luck supper held at the hall April 30 was quite well attended. The winners of the ticket draw were Jennifer Cherrington, who won a homemade cushion and Sharon Dean who won a home-sewn apron. The proceeds go to the ladies club to help put on the annual senior citizens supper held every year.

Carter and Dianne Woloszyn and family of Stony Plain were visitors at his parents, Stan and Margaret Woloszyn, on a recent Sunday.

Little builders

Little Limited Builders Company was busy last week laying a concrete foundation for one of the many new houses in town.

Hire A Student looking for businesses

The Hire A Student program is now in full swing at the chamber of commerce.

Organizer Tracy Vatter said numerous students have already shown interest.

Response among the business community has not been as vocal yet, she said, because few managers are aware the program is going.

New computer program will aid firefighting

A small but powerful ally will be teaming up with staff of the Whitecourt Forest this fire season — a computer program designed to size up the potential seriousness of a fire, to help place firefighting resources ahead of it and to recommend exactly what resources will be needed to suppress that blaze.

The program, called the Intelligent Fire Management Information System (IFMIS), has been designed by Fire Research personnel at Forestry Canada's northern centre in Edmonton.

IFMIS development for about three years. Its purpose is to assist fire dispatchers process the avalanche of data that pours in once a fire is spotted; for example, weather information, predicted fire behaviour, forest inventory data and locations of gas plants or towns in the area.

Then the program helps in marshalling and dispatching the most effective team of firefighters and equipment to the area. In the last year a new component of IFMIS has been added — preparedness planning.

This component kicks in right after the first report of a fire, once estimates have been made of its size and how fast it might spread.

Using maps of the area, the preparedness planning component helps to determine where firefighting resources would best be placed adjacent to a fire, to prevent it from escaping and becoming a larger, more serious problem.

The test of IFMIS in the Whitecourt Forest this summer will be an operational trial, comparing how well the complete program works with the Alberta Forest Service's current fire dispatch system.

Other components of IFMIS will also be evaluated this summer at the provincial forest fire centre in Edmonton, and in the Grande Prairie Forest. The development of IFMIS by the Northern Forestry Centre is part of a long-standing tradition of fire research and technology transfer work pioneered by Forestry Canada across the country over the last 50 years.

Industry need clears the way for new lease administrators

When oil companies merge, industry's need for lease administrators increases — and Calgary's Mount Royal College is readying them for their tasks.

Lease administrator and geological assistant are two streams in the college's one-year petroleum science certificate program which began in January 1989. The program is for people who want to enter the oil industry or advance their careers in either of these areas.

The lease administrator stream is the result of "sheer demand" from industry, according to Wayne Haglund, chairman of Geology and Petroleum Sciences. The geological assistant stream was a natural consequence, and both were designed with assistance of an advisory committee of industry professionals.

The certificate program allows people to gain a foothold and possibly move up in the field, while also giving people who work in the industry, but not necessarily in these areas, an opportunity to change career focus.

Veritable romp off planned in Stony Plain

The world grape stomping competition will be held June 9 in conjunction with Farmer's Day in Stony Plain.

The competition will take on a different format this year.

There will be no separate stomping divisions such as farmers, businesses or such. Instead of the categories, it's a romp-off.

Organizers decided to drop the various categories because it made running the event too complicated.

Instead, groups will just have to show up and check into the Centennial Arena by 6 p.m. to get ready for the big event at 7 p.m. Teams are asked to pre-register.

staff at the Drayton Valley and District Health Complex in the critical care unit.

The Grade 9 students are anxiously preparing for their trip. They leave May 13 for a stop at Mt. Robson, three days in Vancouver, a trip to Seattle and Grand Coulee Dam.

They will also travel through the Crownsnest Pass and Frank Slide, a trip to Head Smashed in Buffalo Jump and a visit to the Glenbow Museum in Calgary.

The students will return to Tomahawk on Victoria Day.

As the last pot-luck supper and dance was such a success, another has been arranged for Saturday, June 3.

Plan to bring the whole family for this fun-filled event. All members of the community are welcome. You don't have to have children in school to attend. Music will be supplied by the Killips. See you at 6:30 p.m.

The one-act play, A Twist of Fate, presented at the open house was a huge success. All who attended enjoyed the production very much. Grade 9 students are preparing another production to be presented to students and parents in the last part of June.

The kindergarten class recently enjoyed a tour of the Tomahawk fire hall with Ted Bustin and Wade Trimble and a tour of the Carl Goertz dairy farm.

Bert Thiessen was the winner of the treasure hunt held during Education Week. Mrs. Thiessen received a copy of Bill Cosby's book Fatherhood.

The poster sale held in March netted $85 to be used to purchase videos.

Don't forget the Mother's Day pancake breakfast, May 14 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Agriplex. Come out and enjoy the dad's cooking.

Finding sales, bargains a 'social experience'

By Sue Kenyon

Searching through 'one person's junk to find your treasure' isn't the only attraction of garage sales, and we learned last Saturday it can also be the social experience of your week.

Accompanied by fellow employee Donna Hanson and $20 to spend we headed out to see what bargains we could find.

It isn't just jars, pots, toys and clothes offered anymore at these sales. Last Saturday, if you really had the shopping bug you could get a pool table for $450, a 1980 trailer for $7,900, a pick-up truck liner for $80 or a tent for $150.

Interestingly enough, we were told by Marvina Lindahl that it isn't the big stuff people are looking for.

"...good stuff...but people are going for the junk..."

Lindahl was holding a garage sale and she was having problems selling her hide-a-bed.

"There is really good stuff here but you know, they go right for the junk," she said.

As for the items being offered, as you can guess, there was just about everything. It was the prices from one garage to the next which seemed to fluctuate.

On 50th Ave. there was a lady's three-speed bike going for $65 and a 10-speed we saw at another sale was going for $40. So it is wise to shop around.

As for our shopping, I didn't buy anything. I was more interested in watching what other people were buying, for example like Hanson.

When we returned to work Monday morning our editor received $19.75 back from his $20. We hit almost a dozen sales and she bought some saucers for the office for 25 cents. They were on sale for 60 cents but Hanson is a tough shopper.

She did spend $10 out of her own money. She bought a crock pot for $8 and 11 wicker plates for $2.

Dickering is another aspect of garage sales and what deal you get largely depends on your own personality. Hanson got money off everything she bought. She refused to pay top dollar, however when a Yashica camera and case was on sale for $100 Marc St. Laurent paid top price.

"I think it's a fair price so I don't think I'll dicker with them over it," he said.

Louise Sims said she got top dollar for everything she sold. No one dickered over her prices she said.

There were about 15 garage sales advertised last weekend, and we came across others that weren't in the paper. There were a lot of people out and many people did really well with their sales. It seemed to be the weekend for sales, and the weekend for shoppers.

So whether you call it garage sale, yard sale, or rummage sale, if you're looking for a bargain or just plain bored over the weekend — try your luck at the garage sales.

Marc St. Laurent paid top price for this camera.

Most garage sales went on throughout the weekend.

Blake Manning was pleased to find this train set for $5.

Eager consumers were in their glory with the many garage sales held last weekend.

Timely tips for thrifty shoppers

Some tips for successful garage sale buying:

- * Buy a newspaper: A newspaper makes it easy to plot your route. Pick the sale that sounds as if it has most of what you're looking for, or the sale that opens earliest, and start from there.

- * Get there early: Garage sale shoppers who begin their quest after 10 a.m. might as well stay home. Dealers sometimes descend before the break of day, trying to intimidate garage sale sellers into opening early.

- * Examine the item carefully:

In furniture, check the feet for cracks. Look for spots that might have been repaired with wood putty. Check to make sure all legs, drawers, handles and other parts match. In glassware or lamps, check for small chips and cracks. Hold items up to a light.

- * Always ask questions:

If you see a bed you'd like to buy, there may be a matching dresser inside the owners might consider selling as well.

- * Never assume something isn't for sale:

If you see it, and you're interested, ask. The prospective seller may have thought the price you want is junk and didn't bother to include it.

- * Learn to dicker:

It's good to have at least one family member who knows the fine art of dickering. Many people aren't too sure how much they should ask for an item and usually they are determined to sell their stock, so try anything.

Renovations increase re-sale market value of older home

There are many different reasons for renovating a home. They include those unfortunate mishaps like fire or flood which leave the owner with no choice but to renovate, the need for additional living space, and just the desire for a change in lifestyle and surroundings.

Whatever the reason, more and more Canadian homeowners are choosing to renovate. Residential contractors are busier than ever remodeling kitchens, enlarging bathrooms, finishing basements, changing exteriors, installing pools and educating consumers.

The number one reason for renovation according to the 1989 renovator survey sponsored by Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation and Alcan Building Products, is to increase the overall value of the home. Many sources, including trade magazines and industry-related studies, agree that renovation does more than increase the value of a home on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

In most cases, any form of renovation that increases the appeal of a home will ultimately increase the demand for that home and drive its price upward. All industry reports clearly show that a major renovation of a kitchen can substantially increase the overall value of the home. Similarly, if someone has decided to sell their home, refurbishing the exterior of the house with an attractive contemporary siding can help increase the value of the house because the better it shows, the quicker it sells — and closer to the asking price.

The renovation survey, which covered all 27 urban areas of Canada, reported an increase in the value of renovated houses across the country by 16.3 per cent from the previous year. The average age of the houses being renovated was 24 years old and the length of time that the owner had lived at the house was 10 years.

Home of the Week

...great starter home, step-saving kitchen featured

This great starter home for a young family has a nice floor plan. The 1,080-square-foot, 11-year-old bungalow has three bedrooms four-piece bath and a two-piece ensuite off the master bedroom.

The step-saving kitchen has ample cabinets and the l-shaped living/dining room features a built-in china cabinet. The bright living room with southern exposure looks onto a park across the street. The basement is partly developed with roughed-in double plumbing for a third bathroom.

A large double, insulated, heated garage comes with the home. There is also extra parking for a motorhome or trailer. The back yard is fenced with a lane access. The home is close to the hockey arena.

Cyclists should ride defensively

May has been declared the second annual Motorcycle and Bicycle Safety Awareness month in Alberta.

"Safety for all road users is always a priority for the department but during the summer months, motorcycles and bicyclists are especially vulnerable," says Transportation Minister Al Adair. "It is their responsibility to ride defensively at all times and the motorist should drive with more courtesy and caution."

Preliminary statistics for 1988 show 31 motorcyclists were killed and 752 were injured in Alberta last year, while six bicyclists were killed and 683 reports injured. "Many collisions involving these two-wheeled vehicles happen simply because drivers couldn't see them on the road. Reducing these figures requires awareness on the part of everyone."

Vehicle drivers are reminded to watch for motorcycles and bicycles and show the same respect for them as any other vehicle on the road.

Bicycle riders must abide by the same traffic laws that apply to other vehicles and should also make an added effort to be highly visible.

Motorcyclists are urged to take a recognized training course and to wear a safety helmet and protective clothing.

New journalism bursaries to be awarded annually

The Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association (AWNA) and Alberta Energy Company Ltd. (AEC) are teaming up to establish and annually sponsor journalism bursaries which will be available to readers of Alberta's community press, including The Western Review.

The bursaries are named in honor of the late Chuck MacLean, recognized as a dean of Alberta community newspaper editors. He died suddenly last September. He was publisher of the Tofield Mercury, the Wetaskiwin Times and the Canrose Canadian newspapers, past president of the AWNA and a founding director and president of the Canadian Community Newspapers Association.

Two $1,000 bursaries would be awarded annually at the discretion of the selection committee established by the AWNA.

Nominations would be submitted each year by AWNA members, including this newspaper. Deadline for nominations is June 30.

Eligible nominees are Albertans who are graduating high school students intending to pursue journalism studies; existing journalism students, or staff members of AWNA members who wish to return to school for refresher courses. The studies must be pursued through an accredited post-secondary Alberta institution during the year of, or following, the nomination.

The award(s) will be presented at the annual fall convention of the newspaper editors' association. Persons wishing to nominate someone from this newspaper's circulation are encouraged to send their names to Frank Ryan, editor, who will submit it to the editors' association.

Pep rallies highlight Education Week

Breton high school celebrated Education Week with a series of pep rallies to mark achievements and efforts of the past year.

The rally was opened by Mr. Mussen who gave a summary of past scholarship winners. Another event highlighted was the band concert given last June at the elementary school. Band leader Mrs. vanTol mentioned there was a shortage of boys in band and hopes to see more out in both band and drama in the future. "After all," she joked, "I coached Kurt Browning in clarinet for four years and look where it got him."

Mr. Pewtress gave a salute to Dallas Ekstrom who was stage manager for the drama department for the past two years and constructed some fantastic scenes for both The Hobbit and Narnia. This year the junior high will present three short comedies and the senior high is planning a spoof on Hamlet. Watch for dates at a later time.

This year's high school golf tournament will be held in Stony Plain and Mr. Waldron is hoping to take both a female and a male foursome to compete.

The Western Review, Drayton Valley, Alta., May 9, 1989, Page B5

This year the senior trackmeet will be held in St. Albert May 24 and the junior meet will take place at Frank Maddock high in Drayton Valley on May 25.

Mr. Hilker presented his championship junior high softball team who finished first in the league last year with a trophy provided by the junior high students' union.

Both junior and senior high students' unions were featured with an introduction of the executive and a list of fund-raising activities and expenditures. The junior high is wrapping up another successful magazine campaign with a profit showing of over $1,800.

The high school grad committee is also having a busy time at present with graduation being on May 12. Ceremonies will be held at 8:30 p.m. at the Breton high school gymnasium and are open to the general public.

The carnival was a great success again this year with more winter events being held. Carnival king and queen were Dave Baranuk and Pam Cropley.

Orlene Sargeant, Marina Ward and Karen Wall did well at a provincial typing competition held in Edmonton recently.

Canada Post records high performance

Canada Post Corporation has recorded an all-time high level of performance in the first quarter of 1989, according to the latest Clarkson Gordon report.

The report from the public accounting firm appointed to independently measure Canada Post's delivery performance system, covers the period from January 1989 to March 1989.

According to the report, on a national basis, 94 per cent of the mail for the same urban centre was delivered within Canada Post's two-day commitment; between urban centres in the same province, 95 per cent was delivered within the standard of three business days; and between urban centres in different provinces, 86 per cent within the four-day commitment.

These results compare with respective figures of 92 per cent, 93 per cent, and 95 per cent for the fourth quarter of 1988.

When compared to the same reporting period a year ago, January to March 1988, when the respective figures were 90 per cent, 89 per cent, and 93 per cent, the corporation has made significant improvement.

New logo pins now available

Fourteen members attended the Alder Flats Agricultural Society regular meeting last month.

An architect has inspected the hall and made up a rough drawing for people to inspect with a view to extending the Birch Room to make a larger facility.

The Alder Flats logo pins have arrived and are now available at $3 each.

Information on the current Rural Education and Development Association program was passed on to the school.

The county tourism action plan is not yet accepting proposals but they hope to obtain funding from this plan to build a roof over the bleachers.

A proposal was made for $2,500 to repair the inside rails of the race track and to build a three-tier set of bleachers on the north side of the arena which could be used both for the race meet and also for viewers of the ball games.

Additional volunteers for the various race meet activities were designated.

A proposal was made for a permanent sign advertising the race meet and rodeo.

If you have any ideas for tourism attractions for the area such as trail rides, day-campground, ski trails, etc., the agricultural society would like you to bring them forward at their next meeting. Regular meetings are held on the third Thursday of every month.

Grade plan future

Some of this year's grads already have their futures planned.

Carla Becker has been accepted for a two-year course at the University of Lethbridge which will be followed with a further four-year course at Saskatoon.

Kalvin Banack has been accepted at the University of Lethbridge where he will pursue a four-year course in business management with a view to a career as a chartered accountant.

Alder Flats

By Joan Elmont

Kim Parker has passed the preliminary stages of a World/Canada youth interview and is destined for as yet unknown Third World country. In a program offered to youths from 17 to 20 years of age it is an opportunity to live and work with people who have a completely different lifestyle. Youth from reciprocating countries also visit Canada on the same basis.

Michelle Murray has been conditionally accepted into NAIT and plans to train as a dental assistant.

Shannon Chapchuk has been accepted at the University of Calgary and is enrolled in an architectural course where her first goal is a bachelor of science degree.

Renee Wilson is off to Lethbridge Community College to take a law enforcement course with a future goal of becoming a corrections officer.

Open house

An open house will be held to honor the 60th wedding anniversary of Gene and Ethel Seely at the Alder Flats Hall on June 3 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Everyone is welcome. No gifts please.

Seniors' Mini Games

The team of Alex Danyluk, Louis Thrower of Alder Flats, Vern Halliday from Mulhurst and Bill Fisher of Falun took first place at the regional level of the Alberta Seniors Mini Games in floor curling at Falun.

They also took first place in the zone playoffs at Big Valley.

Their next challenge will be the provincials on May 30 in Camrose.

Popular truck driver

Truck driver Howard Gibhardt accepted a plaque from Ann Krawchuk last Thursday after being chosen as the chamber of commerce employee of the month for March. The independent, 30-year veteran driver, who was named by three separate organizations as the perfect candidate, was bashful but honored he would be selected.

Religious consumers' shop around

By Rev. Barry Parker
All Saints
Anglican Church

It always strikes me as odd that our society today has such a hard time believing in the same concepts and understandings of God and His Son Jesus Christ that have been the cornerstone of our Judeo-Christian worldview for centuries.

First of all, recent surveys have shown 'religious consumers' in Canada today, are just that, religious consumers. Dr. Reginald Bibby, a religious sociologist from the University of Lethbridge notes today's churches are characterized by people who shop around and pick and choose beliefs, much as we do at a smorgasbord in a restaurant.

It seems there are no more certainties of faith anymore,

From the Pastor's Pen

everything is relative. This 'pick and choose' belief is summed up by the response that pastors often hear: 'Don't push your religion on to me, I've got my own beliefs!' The question arises then, are they Christian beliefs or are they something else masquerading as Christianity?

Secondly, in line with this mentality that believing in anything is alright, as long as it doesn't hurt anybody else, is the often-heard statement: "How can I believe in this Jesus Christ when there is no proof except in a collection of stories you call the Bible? How can I believe in something I can't see, feel, hear, touch or smell? When you prove all this stuff, then talk to me!"

Again, that is interesting, for we live in a society that suggests it's normal to spend $50 at Northlands Coliseum to watch the Oilers with 15,000 other screaming, excited people whose great aim is to cheer their team by making noise and making an arena-wide wave! That, apparently, is normal and quite rational, yet believing in Christianity is not!

The greatest danger in our society is not unbelief or disbelief. The greatest danger in our society is non-belief, the apathy of the spiritual side of life. If you spend your life picking and choosing your belief system, then what do you really believe in?

Women's Institute

Plant sale May 19

The annual plant sale will be held Friday, May 19 at the Derrick Mall from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The institute will hold its annual garage sale on Saturday, May 27 at 4307-47 Street. All donations are most welcome.

At the last meeting, a report on the constituency conference was given by Winnie Hammerlind and Olga Brown.

The next meeting will be a pot luck supper May 30 at Agnes Regenwetter's (4716-47 Ave.). Merilee Kostuk will be the guest speaker.

The Drayton Valley institute is planning a 35th anniversary tea on June 15 for all members, former members and friends.

Vehicles need spring cleaning, too

It's sometimes said the severity of a Canadian winter can be measured by the extent of salt and sand damage on an automobile's chassis and engine.

That's why, as winter gives way to spring, it makes good sense to give a car a complete clean-up and maintenance job.

An effective clean-up should involve three basic areas: the exterior, interior and the engine.

To remove salt and dirt from the chassis, a thorough car washing is recommended. A mild detergent (such as a dishwashing liquid) or a gentle auto washing product is fine.

After washing, it's important to ensure all detergent film has been removed by rinsing with a garden hose. The vehicle should then be thoroughly dried with a commercial chamois and checked for scratches and dents which could give rust a foothold.

sand and grit, and floor mats should be removed for washing.

Cleaning a car's engine is a step that is too often overlooked.

Removing accumulated salt, grease and oil reduces the hazard of fire and permits the engine to run cooler. It also means that an engine can be inspected, serviced or repaired with greater ease.

Fur coat up for grabs

Canada Post Corporation

"THE HOURS ARE A LOT BETTER."

Bev Hildebrandt, Clairmont, Alberta.

Registered Nurse Bev Hildebrandt is just one of a growing number of rural Canadians benefiting from increased access to postal products and services through a Retail Postal Outlet.

Retail Postal Outlets across the country offer Canada Post customers more convenience. As part of a local business, they are located close to other services in the community. Retail Postal Outlets are more accessible than former Post Offices. On average, hours of postal service operation in communities with Retail Postal Outlets have more than doubled. Now thousands of rural Canadians can buy their postal products and services on weekends and in the evenings.

AND WE'RE GROWING

In the next few years, the number of retail outlets in rural Canada will grow by 40 percent. Every week, more and more rural Canadians are enjoying the benefits of a Retail Postal Outlet.

*Canada Post Corporation is delivering on its promise.
We're in rural Canada to stay.*

SPCA urges caution at rodeos

The Alberta SPCA continues to oppose rodeo because certain events result in harassment of animals, and the possibility of pain, injury or death.

"The Alberta SPCA identifies calf roping and team roping as having significant potential for injury and stress for the animals involved," says SPCA president Joy Ripley.

Injuries occurred at almost 30 per cent of rodeos attended by SPCA special constables in 1987 and 1988. At 52 rodeos, 15 animals were injured, of which six had to be killed. The presence of a veterinarian is essential at all rodeo performances to ensure injured animals receive immediate attention. Over half of these rodeos had no veterinarian in attendance.

The Alberta SPCA recognizes that rodeos will continue despite opposition. Rodeo associations and participants must be diligent in their efforts to minimize the stress and possibility of injury to the animals used in rodeo.

The SPCA urges that: an independent veterinarian be present at all rodeo performances to provide immediate treatment for injured animals; regularly, every rodeo association critically review and upgrade its rule book to ensure that rules are in place for the humane treatment of animals; the rules governing rodeos be strictly enforced to protect the animals; and, all grounds and facilities be properly maintained.

The future is in your hands

By Blair Trueman

Do you remember sitting on the front step of your house as a young child, wishing you were older?

Time seems to go by sooner than we can blink, because before long we are wishing we were young again. In our age and time the future holds endless possibilities, but the future can also be a frightening thing for everyone at one point in their lives.

Education is the basis of everyone's future, whether you are a doctor or oil field worker. A good education is your ticket to your dreams. Tell me about it.

I just received my report card, and as I look at my marks and read the teachers comments, I realize that I'm in Grade 12, my final year, and that time is running out for me to make a last impression before I move on.

Everything I do now will reflect on what I will be able to do after high school, then the pressure really sets in.

Competition is what society is about today, everyone struggling to be number one. There is nothing wrong with this, but slowly along the way we are forgetting what we've got and how lucky we are to live in the country that we do.

The planet is starting to kick back after being used so long. People talk of the world or at least civilization as we know it ending with my life time. It makes me think, if this is true, then what am I doing here.

I should be exploring the world.

But no one really knows what's ahead of us, and that's the scary part about the future. We can't afford to worry about what we do not know for if we do our dreams will never come true.

Part of meeting the future is by overcoming life's challenges, and towards your own dream you can do this. We are given so much in life and so much is wasted.

I believe the future would be and will be great, because I'm not letting anything stand in my way.

Blair Trueman wins local contest.

Why my mom's special continued

My Mom is very beautiful and likes to play Duck hunt on the Nintendo. She also likes comedies on tv. We play pool and 500 four times in two weeks. We go out for supper sometimes and share a large pizza at coppers. My Mom is the best in the world.

Wayne Nelson
SB, Evergreen

My mom is the best mom in the whole world. One day when I was going to go skiing and when I found out there was none she let me stay over night at a friend's house. When she comes home from work she doesn't complain about making supper she just does it. When I am really sad and she comes home she helps me with the problems I can't handle. That's why my mom is the greatest.

Jennifer MacKinnon
Grade 5, St. Anthony's

My mom is special because she likes to ride horses with me, and when I'm bored, I ask her if she can play cards with me and she does. My mom is also very sweet because if my brother or I want something we must get it.

When schools over my mom buys us things for passing. Another reason why she is special is because she's pretty, lovable, and she likes to work. That is why my mom is so special.

Andrew Barrett

My Mom's so special to me because she put me in Neptunes. I like Neptunes because I get to go to other places to race. I to Hinton, Spruce Grove and Edison. She put me in pudu too. I love judo when you go to tournaments, that's why I still love her.

I like doing crafts with her for other people, to my sister and I and for our bedrooms. I also like making Christmas bead decoration crafts. I really like going to the craft store. I think my mom's special because she lets me help with her cooking and sewing. One time she made a cherry cheese cake and when it was done she put some on foil around it and put it in the fridge. Later on she took the foil off and about an hour later when we were going to eat it I opened the fridge door and the cake was flat. It was all over the place. All my mom said was "at least it's eatable." So she doesn't get very upset when her cooking goes wrong. I think mom is special because she likes fishing and ice fishing. My mom's special is so many ways. I could not say them all. In fact, I would be here all day! So I am going to write my thanks in a poem.

I am down
She will be around
When I am blue
She will be there, too

She works all day
And does not get any pay
She cleans, she scrubs
She will even clean the bath tubs
All I can say is thank you very much
And that you got a magic touch.
Happy Mother's Day Mom!

Paying more, getting less coffee?

By Samia Vallemand
Are you getting fewer cups than usual from a package of your favorite instant coffee?

If so, check the label: you may find there is less than there used to be. Coffee companies have quietly reduced the package size of their products for the second time in five years. While the companies insist prices have decreased as well, some consumers are wondering if they have been ripped off.

Until recently, coffee shoppers had to choose from a bewildering number of different-sized packages. The largest jar of a particular brand might contain 369, 227, 283, or even 200 grams of coffee. Trying to pick the cheapest coffee without a calculator was next to impossible.

The confusion goes back to the implementation of the metric system in Canada. The odd sizes have always bothered the Consumers' Association of Canada and it was hoped that as the metric system was phased in, food manufacturers would start using "hard metric" package sizes that would make comparison shopping easier — 500 grams rather than 454 grams, for example. It wasn't until last year members of the Tea and Coffee Association of Canada agreed on standard package sizes.

Judging by some of the letters that CAC has received, the size change has again caught consumers by surprise. The only coffee manufacturer to publicize the change was Nestle. If you think you are paying more than you used to, let your store manager — and CAC — know. Just phone 420-0747.

"You can't control the weather"

If you are clearing land now or have windrows and brush piles ready for burning, please remember: forest conditions remain very dry and extra caution is required.

Because of changing weather conditions and the potential for high winds, landowners should contact their local District Forest Officer prior to any burning.

Even after obtaining a Fire Permit, you are responsible for a safe burn. Make sure you are complying with all safety requirements, and never leave a fire unattended.

If you see smoke or fire in any forested area, call our Hot Line collect. Call immediately!

In Memoriam

THOMAS (Tuffy) Penny to the memory of our darling Penny, who passed away May 13, 1989. God save her getting hurt.

A cure was not to be.
 So he wrapped his arms around her.
 And whispered, "Come to life."
 She was someone we could talk to.
 That no one can replace.
 She someone who could laugh with.
 Till tears ran down our faces.
 She suffered much in silence.
 Her spirit did not bend.
 She faced her pain with courage.
 Until the day she died.

She tried to stay with us.
 Her fight was all in vain.
 God took her to his loving home.
 And freed her from all pain.
 Sadly missed by daughter Margie Galt; Mom and Dad; Bill and Phyllis Tully; sisters: Karen Brown and family, Irie Miller and family.

PLATZ, James Gerald (Jamie)

1975 (Mother's Day) 1987
 A CHILD
 "I'll lend you for a little time, Jamie! A child of mine," he said.
 "For you to love the whole while he lives.
 And mourn when he is dead.
 I may be sad or even angry.
 Or twelve or twenty-three;
 But will you, till I call him back,
 Take care of Jamie for me?
 He'll bring his heart to gladness you.
 You'll have Jamie's lovely memories
 As solace for your grief.
 I cannot promise Jamie will stay, since from all earth returns.
 But there are lessons taught down there I want Jamie to learn.
 I've looked the wide world over,
 In search for teachers true;
 And from the throngs that crowd Bill's
 I have selected Larry, Cora and you.

Now will you give him all your love,
 Nor think the labor vain.
 Nor hear him when he comes to call.
 To take him back again?
 I feared that I heard them say,
 "Dear Lord, 'Thy Will Be Done'!
 For all the joy that Jamie shall bring.
 The risk of grief you'll run.
 You'll shelter him with tenderness,
 You'll love him while you may;
 And for all his happiness you've known,
 Will you leave the bitter grief that
 But should my angels call for Jamie,
 Much sooner than you planned,
 Will you leave the bitter grief that
 And try to understand?"
 Sadly missed and forever yours through all Eternity

How will you give him all your love,
 Nor think the labor vain.
 Nor hear him when he comes to call.
 To take him back again?
 I feared that I heard them say,
 "Dear Lord, 'Thy Will Be Done'!
 For all the joy that Jamie shall bring.
 The risk of grief you'll run.
 You'll shelter him with tenderness,
 You'll love him while you may;
 And for all his happiness you've known,
 Will you leave the bitter grief that
 But should my angels call for Jamie,
 Much sooner than you planned,
 Will you leave the bitter grief that
 And try to understand?"

Proprietor Shirley Long makes visiting her store a pleasure.

Country convenience, local history found at Pendryl Store

By Susan Moseicki

The history of a small country convenience store in the Pendryl area goes back before some items in museums. Pendryl Store has changed location, buildings, and owners, but people in the area have been able to shop in the store since the early 1900s.

The store was originally located two miles south of its present location. The old Buck Lake dance hall was bought by the store owners at the time and moved to the existing site in 1964 or thereabouts.

The original owners Harold and Nellie Weaver apparently named Pendryl Store after a town in England.

The local post office was originally in the store, but current owner Shirley Long says the government started rural mail delivery about 20 years ago.

Long says the store was once the main centre for purchasing supplies in the area, but is now "basically a country convenience store."

"I can't compete with the bigger towns," she says.

Clientele is mainly local, highway traffic, and summer travellers, looking for convenience items or gas.

"I was raised in a store, and I hated it then," Long states. "But I wake up now and wonder what I would do if I didn't have to get up and open the store this morning, and it scares me."

She says she will continue running the store for a few more years before she considers selling it.

The eventual sale of the Pendryl Store will mean the continuation of local history and will preserve an amenity in the Pendryl area that people would be sad to lose.

Did you know there over 30 scholarships offered to 4-H members? Do you know what Selections is all about? Have you ever heard of PDP of W4?

If you answer no to any of the above questions, it's time to start asking questions to find out more.

4-H in Alberta offers a wide array of programs, camps and scholarships to all 4-H members and volunteer leaders. These programs are set up to offer something for everyone. Each individual involved in 4-H should have every opportunity to take advantage of as many programs and camps as possible to get the most out of 4-H.

Each program is a stepping stone to becoming a better, more mature and developed individual. They all offer unique learning experiences that cannot be found elsewhere and the chance to meet and make friends across the province and even across Canada.

Every month information is sent to each club leader to keep them informed on upcoming events and programs. It is up to the leader to pass on the information to all members and parents and to give everyone that is eligible the chance to take part in an event. The program should be fully explained for the benefit of newer members and parents who do not attend all meetings.

If you feel you are not finding out about all the wonderful things available to you, ask your 4-H leader for more information. If they don't know, contact your district home economist or your regional 4-H office where everyone is happy to help you.

Safety net programs preserved - Clark

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark says the 1989 budget marks the point where Canada as a nation recognized there is a threat to our way of life and that action must be taken now to maintain our standard of living and social problems.

The threat is the large and growing public debt that starts at $320 billion and grows by $80 million a day because of interest costs.

Clark says the total effect of the budget this year will almost offset the rise in interest costs for a deficit of $30.5 billion. Next year the size of the public debt as a proportion of the economy will stabilize with a deficit of $28 billion.

And by following the fiscal strategy set out in the budget the deficit will be cut in half in five years.

"The challenge is to make sure we stick to this course every year until the job is done," Clark says.

"This budget puts us on the right course with an improved ability as a nation to carry the debt and with a strengthened capacity to maintain vital social and cultural programs and other important public services," the MP added.

Clark says Canada's social safety net programs like old age security and family allowance will be preserved to assist lower and middle income Canadians but will not subsidize those with higher incomes. People with individual net incomes greater than $50,000 will repay these benefits at a rate of 15 per cent.

Annexation in works

By Belinda Atkinson

A year's worth of requests and five petitions will be addressed June 20 when combined hearings begin to annex land into the MD of Brazeau and County of Wetaskiwin.

In what one official describes as a widely-supported move, 102,938 hectares of land and 1,668 people will be considered for incorporation into the new MD. Wetaskiwin stands to gain 25,485 hectares of unpopulated territory.

"From the petitions, it seems most people support the annexation (into the MD)," said municipal manager John Erikson, "but we're dealing with such a major thing, I can't say the odd (person) won't be opposed."

The areas under consideration for the new MD are currently governed by four separate bodies: the MD of Clearwater No. 99, County of Wetaskiwin No. 10, County of Leduc No. 25 and County of Parkland No. 31.

The County of Wetaskiwin has requested to bring in land from the MD of Clearwater No. 99.

The local authorities board has reserved three weeks for the hearings to take place but Erikson doubts that much time will be needed.

"I can't see the hearings lasting more than one week," he said.

Project creates boom

By Frank Ryan

Hotels and motels in Drayton Valley could be in for a busy summer.

Several contractors hoping to land a major contract with Texaco, have been inquiring about hotel rooms in town.

Inquiries have been made for 120 to 150 rooms.

A decision on the contract is expected by the end of the month.

It's said to be a six-month job.

The major contract is all part of Texaco's $30-million upgrading project at their gas plant in West Pembina.

According to a Texaco official, the contracts for concrete foundations, structural steel and building have already been awarded.

The mechanical installation contract will be awarded before the end of the month.

The Texaco spokesman reached at his office in Calgary, was surprised at the interest the awarding of the mechanical installation contract was causing in Drayton Valley.

The Texaco project is also expected to create 17 new jobs with all those people expected to live in Drayton Valley.

Petro-Canada is also involved in a major expansion project at their Brazeau sour gas plant located southwest of Cynthia. Total cost of that job is $89 million.

Layoffs may affect locals

By Susan Mosciaki

A recent announcement that Mobil Oil will reduce their staff by 25 per cent may affect Mobil Oil employees in the Drayton Valley area.

Gerry Jelinski, area operations manager, said, "We have no definite number on who's going to be retired. There have been some voluntary early retirements." He did not give an exact number, but said there were "less than 15".

Jelinski said the employees concerned will be leaving June 1 to Dec. 31 of this year.

"We have no indication there will be any cuts at all (in the Drayton Valley area) — there could be, but we don't know as yet."

Voluntary retirements reduce the number who leave involuntarily, said Jelinski, adding that employees who accepted an early retirement offering will be receiving "an enhanced retirement package."

Check stops stepped up

Drayton Valley RCMP officers will step up check stop patrols to combat an increase in drinking and driving offences.

According to Corp. Tim Valamianick, an unusually high number of drinking and driving charges two weekends ago kept officers busy and prompted an overall increase in patrols.

Throughout the weekend, he said seven people were charged with impaired driving and eight 24-hour licence suspensions were given out.

RCMP are continuing their investigation and additional charges may be laid.

Winfield school loses Grade 12 students

By Susan Moscicki
Winfield area residents who have been fighting to keep the high school grades in the Winfield school have won a battle, but they have not yet won the war.

Bill McCarthy, superintendent of Schools (County of Wetaskiwin) said the high school grades 10 and 11 will remain at Winfield school for another year, but the Grade 12 class will be redirected to another school for the upcoming school year.

A group of concerned parents and taxpayers in the Winfield area has been fighting to keep the high school students in the school and to implement a distance learning education program.

McCarthy said no decision has been made by the board of education for a potential consortium to put together a package for distance learning.

Evelyn Mosier, a Winfield resident, said, "We are going to go ahead and try to press for the distance learning program to go ahead in the school."

McCarthy said, "We are pursuing with vigor the centralized concept of a school at Buck Lake (combining Winfield and Alder Flats high school students). Program-wise it would be much more viable if we had grades 7 to 12 there."

During the next school year McCarthy said, "We will get some indication from the buildings branch whether it is a possibility or not."

"If it's not, then a decision will have to be made by the board of education on closure and redirecting the students." Where they would be redirected to would be decided at that time, according to McCarthy.

There has been a massive drop in the student population in the Winfield school he says, adding the average total cost per year per student in Alberta is about $4,500, while the cost is about $5,000 per student in the Winfield school for staffing (teachers) alone.

Dangerous goods seminar well attended

By Sue Kenyon
Nearly 60 people attended the recent dangerous goods seminar to learn about classifying dangerous goods and possible responses to an accident involving dangerous products.

Dave Turner, coordinator of disaster services said basically the first two actions to take when dealing with such an accident is to try and safely identify the product, assess how dangerous the situation is and then initiate the appropriate measures to take.

Such products transported in this area coming under the heading of dangerous goods are propane, gasoline, and a number of chemicals. Turner said there are many toxic gasolines and in the event of an accident one of the first things to be discovered is if the product is toxic.

"If you just run in and you are handling a toxic product, you could die from it," Turner said.

The other danger is many of the products shipped are highly flammable and could be ignited by simply a hot exhaust.

Of the 57 who attended the seminar, 27 bought a guide to initial emergency responses, on sale during the evening.

Turner said the book also provides a 24-hour emergency number in the event of an accident dealing with dangerous goods.

The seminar was given by Ray Hayden, training instructor with Alberta Public Safety Services from Edmonton.

Turner said another seminar will be held this fall dealing with basic rescue procedures.

The seminar was attended by many members of the RCMP, ambulance crews and almost all the firemen.

Grass fires concern MD

An increasing number of grass fires is causing some concern for the municipal district.

To assist with its fire prevention the MD plans to purchase three pumps, 1,500 feet of fire hose and 25 hand pumps at a cost of $11,000.

The pumps will be stationed with fire departments in Breton and Drayton Valley and also at the MD office.

average of three to four (impaired charges) per weekend," he said.

"We're very concerned about the number of (offences) that are continuing. People still think they can drink and drive," he said.

Vatamaniuk said the detachment will maintain this higher profile as the weather warms and particularly during the May long weekend.

School boards to pay tuition

By Sue Kenyon

It will cost school boards to send out students to neighboring school districts if Twin Rivers is successful in setting up tuition agreements with neighboring jurisdictions.

Dr. George Bevan, superintendent told trustees the School Act now insists tuition agreements be made.

The tuition agreement would also help the board to identify non-resident pupils. If parents did not get agreement from their school board to send children out of the jurisdiction, it could now cost parents $1,700. With the board's agreement, the school board would pick up that cost.

Parents advertising for Mike and Molly

By Belinda Atkinson

Twenty-one days have passed since little Mikey and Molly went missing and their parents are starting to lose hope.

"They're family. You just can't up and replace a member of the family," said Sherry Webb last week.

"Before there were five of us in the family and now there are just three," she added.

Sherry and husband Chuck are running classified advertisements in the local newspaper asking for the return of their two pet cats.

"They were our five-year-old's pet cats and we know who you are. Hope you can sleep at night," is the message that will run for the next few weeks.

Sherry wouldn't comment on who she suspects has taken the two-and-a-half-year-old brother and sister nor has she gone so far as to confront the person in question.

Instead, she hopes the strong words will be enough to make the person realize how devastated the family has been since the disappearance of the orange-colored male and sleek, grey female.

"Rachel has been really upset. It's hard to take at that age," she said. "Her pets are her life."

Sherry said the hardest part is trying to explain to her daughter why the cats aren't around. With their first cat, Mark, who died of feline leukemia, she said at least Rachel could understand what had happened.

"How do you explain something like this? I guess it's just that there are mean people in the world."

"Do people think cats are just something you can get rid of and never mind the family?"

When asked what she would say to the person who's taken Mikey and Molly, Sherry paused and said, "Just please bring them back. I just want them to come home."

Rodeo coming soon

Look out Calgary Stampede, here comes the Drayton Valley rodeo.

That's the message coming from local chamber of commerce members who are planning a local stampede week to coincide with the Lions' rodeo June 9 to 11.

"I figure if we're going to have a rodeo we might as well have a stampede week," chamber of commerce president Grant Monsour said last week.

Monsour says the chamber has discussed cordoning off main street for daily pancake breakfasts or possibly transferring it to various businesses in town each day.

"The United Church puts on a breakfast during the rodeo so I figure why not put a little extra effort and time into it," he said.

The chamber will also begin a promotional campaign encouraging business people and the general public to dress western throughout the week.

Lorna Martin, new FCSS coordinator

Lorna Martin coordinator at FCSS

Lorna Martin is the new coordinator of Family and Community Support Services. She lives here in Drayton Valley and worked previously as a nurse.

Martin says her role with FCSS will consist of implementing a program under the direction of council and the MD of Brazeau. At this time though she admits she is still just getting organized since taking the position and studying the concept of FCSS and getting to know its history.

Martin has been hired on a half-time basis and she says she is very excited about her new position.

"I am really pleased and excited to be involved in such a worthwhile project; especially since I am coming in on the ground floor level, (so to speak) and will be able to watch this program grow and develop," Martin said.

Opinions

Patience will be needed this camping weekend: ease up on gas pedal

The weekend will be a busy one.

Typically, the long weekend in May signals the start of summer.

It's the first long weekend people rid themselves of the 'cabin fever' tag and head for the great outdoors.

Many of the campgrounds will be full and there will be lots of sporting activities to satisfy almost everyone's needs.

With it, look for lots of traffic on Alberta highways.

Being the first real long weekend of the summer, it's a good time for drivers to practice a little patience.

Patience will be needed when you find yourself behind that recreational vehicle that just won't get over.

A lot of drivers take foolish chances on our highways, passing when unsafe to do so, just to get a car or trailer length ahead of the other guy.

So ease up on that gas pedal, and don't be in such a hurry.

There's a major slow-pitch tournament scheduled for Lindale and area golf courses will be busy if the weather man cooperates.

Add to this, the official opening of the Willey West campground that will attract some traffic and the usual weekenders that head out to the Brazeau recreation area.

The May long weekend is just a start in another summer of hectic traffic headaches in the area.

It will really get going the weekend of May 27-28 when two caravans, totalling 100 recreation vehicles in all, come-a-calling.

Heritage 'B' Junior hockey

Future won't be easy for new hockey executive

Bill Ballas, Laurie Tkachuk, John Dyck and Randy Rook have a big job ahead of them.

The four have made a decision to ice a junior team in Drayton Valley in time for the 1989-90 Heritage Junior 'B' season.

Ballas, Tkachuk and Dyck will be responsible for putting the nuts and bolts together while Rook will handle the coaching reins.

I'm not sure if anyone has told them or not, but it won't be easy.

We didn't have a junior team this past winter. Two reasons for this was a lack of players or someone to take on the responsibility.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

If a junior team is to come back next winter, one has to wonder about the future of the midget team.

It will also be interesting to see how many of the junior team members come from out of town.

Work commitments have always been a problem here, especially with junior age players.

Rook has set some ambitious goals for himself and his players.

He wants to advance the players' future, by getting at least one player on a Western Hockey League roster.

That's a big jump for any player coming out of junior 'B' hockey.

One thing Rook may look into, is getting more Alberta Junior Hockey League and college coaches out for a looksee. That sounds more realistic.

Reader suggests realistic alternative to new budget

Dear Editor,
(An open letter to Joe Clark, Yellowhead MLA, PC)

I heard Mike Wilson say that anyone criticizing the budget should have a realistic alternative. I feel that qualifies me to make some suggestions.

Every dollar of tax increase must directly decrease the deficit below the deficit of the 1988 budget.

Every cut to service (Via Rail, defence, tax-backs) must be applied to the deficit.

All sales of Crown corporations and other assets must be applied to the debt.

Dispense with all subsidies to private companies and Crown corporations in competition with the private sector.

Have every ministry reduce their budget by 10 per cent, either by cutting staff or salaries or both.

Put people on sick leave on the same basis as those on UIC. If they are sick for six weeks, pay them from that point on.

Thank any civic service union that wants to strike for helping the country solve its fiscal woes.

I know that all of these suggestions work because I have used them as a small business operator to survive the climate created by Ottawa. Every cent I raise pays fixed expenses or debt, as does any money I save through making equipment last longer or using cheaper supplies. My personal pension will be in place when I sell out. I have sold off equipment and laid off staff to save money and pay bills. It is four-and-a-half years since the PCs, with the largest mandate in Canadian history, took office. The deficit is as high as the last one brought down by the Liberals and the debt is twice as high as it was under the Liberals.

The PCs are on centre stage now and making a show for the gate crashers while ignoring the paying customers.

It was noted during the free trade negotiations the American representatives arrived in taxis or small personal cars while the Canadians had limousines. While every small business and working taxpayer ends up with less disposable income we see our representatives getting larger salaries, tax-free allowances and travelling grants.

I believe any pension received by any person in public service that is not personally funded, should never exceed the national average income.

I wrote in early 1986 saying the time left for the PCs to make the hard and unpopular decisions was running out and it is over three years with no improvement in the deficit yet. Reducing it by $7 billion per year would have seen it eliminated this year.

Don't you realize that the people who voted for responsible financing didn't and won't vote PC, and the rest of us are not getting what we voted for?

There is nothing wrong with Conservative policies. Why don't we see them enacted?

Rex Gray

Bandwagon prices upset reader

Dear Editor,

I see the oil companies have jumped on the bandwagon once more.

No sooner was the budget announced, and the one-cent per-litre gas tax was put on to the price at the pump, together with two or three cents more for good measure.

No doubt they will come up with all sorts of reasons for this, mainly the price of a barrel of oil. This, however, has remained around the $19-mark for some time. Indeed, when the price was $28 per barrel, gasoline prices were cheaper than today. Even when the price fell to below $14, we only got a few cents reduction. Could it be that in addition to the government tax increase, they are also passing on their increased corporate taxes?

Whatever the reason, the customer (as usual) is on the losing end. I walk a great deal, and I shall be doing even more, and the car can stay in the garage.

Plant sales uprooted

Dear Editor,

"How to win friends and influence people."

For 30 years the Drayton Valley Women's Institute has sold plants, mostly perennials grown in their own gardens. We used to sell in front of the old Blocks store, then in front of the second Blocks store.

For the last 10 years we have sold plants in the Derrick Mall. We thought we could this year but as the saying goes, "All good things must come to an end, sometime." We have been told we cannot set up for our sale in the mall — regulations won't allow it.

Did you notice the Pembina Nurseries had to move to the far end of the mall, away from the line of traffic?

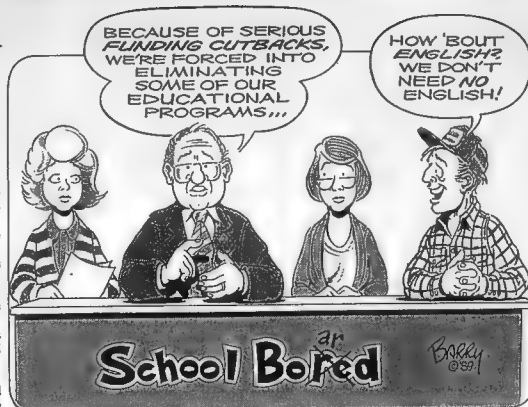

It was very annoying, when we were giving away daffodils for cancer donations, we were told to set up half-way down the mall, again where not many shoppers are walking.

Is this how the businesses are catering to the people in this town?

We still plan to have the plant sale on May 19, but just where has not been decided. Watch for notices posted around town or phone 542-2485 or 542-4123.

Sorry for the inconvenience.

'Dead drugs' roundup successful

Local pharmacies are so far reporting a healthy response to the Great Annual Drug Roundup.

"Every year people are becoming more aware that there are better ways to get rid of drugs than to flush them down the toilet," said Gwen Reynolds, pharmacist with Penney's Drug Mart.

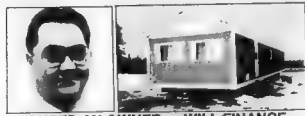

Half way through the month-long, province-wide campaign, Reynolds and other local druggists have collected 10 jugs filled with old, unused and outdated medications.

This response, they say, is a sign people now realize "dead drugs" are not just a nuisance but a danger that is responsible for an average of 400 poisonings per year.

According to Christopher Graham, chairman of the fifth annual campaign, response has been good across the province.

Only five days into the roundup, he said 20 litres of various drugs had already been collected.

At the end of May, all dead drug containers will be collected and sent to the Alberta Special Waste Management Facility in Swan Hills for proper disposal.

RCMP officers find satisfaction in rural Alberta

By Susan Moseicki
From minor traffic offences, to serious criminal offences, it is the duty of four men to police the 1,050-square-mile area within the jurisdiction of the Breton RCMP detachment.

Corp. Bob Pumm, Const. Dave Heaslip, Const. Peter Clark, and Const. Steve Shamber have what Heaslip called an "esprit de coeur" (they work well together), and enjoy their jobs immensely.

"If I didn't I wouldn't be doing it," says Shamber. He says he gains satisfaction from "the feeling that comes along with helping people".

Shamber has been with the Breton detachment for three years, and has been in the RCMP for almost 10 years in total.

"I like policing in rural Alberta, and that's where I expect to stay," he says.

Although Shamber loves his job, he would like to see a change in "the attitudes of some people in relation to what they think a policeman is, and does, and should do".

Shamber says being a policeman is stressful because "most of the people you have to deal with, you're dealing with them when they're at their worst and when they have a problem".

He would like to change the negative driving habits of the public to reduce the number of serious motor vehicle accidents.

"I enjoy close contact with small communities and I enjoy rural people," says Const. Clark, who has been with the Breton RCMP detachment for the past four years, and has been in the RCMP seven-and-a-half years total.

Overall, he feels satisfactions outweigh the more difficult aspects of policing, but says "the worst part of the job is notifying family members of the death of a loved one".

Clark says upon leaving the Breton detachment he would like to work in a small northern community, and would eventually like to work in a plain-clothes unit in a larger centre.

Const. Heaslip says there are many rewarding aspects to his job. "The harder you work at it, the more investigations come to a successful conclusion."

He says among some of the hardest things a policeman has to deal with are children who have been abused, domestic disputes, marital disputes, and fatal motor vehicle accidents.

Heaslip has been in the Breton detachment for five years. He says he has been posted in 10 places in Canada over the 17 years he has spent in RCMP service.

Two public servants (secretaries), Natalie Szepezy and Catherine Schmidt, work in the detachment on a time-sharing basis, which they say works well for both of them. "It's great for working mothers," says Schmidt. "You can spend some quality time with your children."

Both women enjoy their jobs with the RCMP. "It's educational, interesting, and at times exciting," says Schmidt. "There's not often a dull moment here," Szepezy agreed.

The top dog in the Breton detachment is Corp. Bob Pumm, who has been in the Breton detachment for nine years, and in the RCMP for 21 years.

Pumm says he just wants to keep doing what he's doing. He is very happy working in the Breton detachment.

He doesn't dwell on likes or dislikes, but says one of the disadvantages in the Breton area is "just the large area itself, and the time it takes to travel that area".

Pumm says, however, that other detachments can be called in to help when necessary. "It's a matter of the police completing their job. If it's necessary to draw resources from Drayton Valley or Thorby, we do that. They come out and assist us."

Do the Mounties always get their man? "They do their best," says Pumm.

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

Corp. Tim Vatamaniuk is feeling reminiscent these days in the wake of an impending transfer to Magrath, Alta.

It will be a good career move, he says, since he will run his own two-man detachment. Yet it will be a sad change personally after eight years in a town he's grown to call home.

As for wife Marilyn, and children Sherri, 11, and Bobby, 8, he says there will be tears.

"This is the only home for (the kids). It's going to be hard," he says.

The officer admits Magrath won't be a permanent home either. The intention, he says, is to gain experience running an office and then, after three years or so, transfer again.

But after growing up in a small centre and good times here, he says he'll likely stick to small-town law enforcement.

Coach Loren Regnier talks to members of the swim club.

Going...

Neptunes diving into new season

By Susan Mosicki

The Neptune swim club dove into its 1989 season recently at the Park Valley pool.

The swim club will train five nights a week between May and the end of August, and will be involved in about 10 competitive swim meets throughout the season.

Coach Loren Regnier has been coaching the team for about seven years, and said it is his fifth year in the new pool.

He has a special love for this club going back "many, many years ago" when he originally swam in the club as a child.

Regnier said the first few weeks were spent "getting the kinks ironed out and teaching the non-swimmers how to swim", but that it will become much more difficult.

"The younger children can't do as much,"

he said. But according to Regnier, the older groups will swim as many as three- to four-and-a-half kilometres each practice. There are approximately 40 lengths per kilometre he said.

"There are very few sports in town that have athletes as physically fit. They're a well oiled machine," he laughed.

Regnier said praise is one of the most important tools to use when coaching.

"That's what they thrive on."

The children are the reason he keeps coaching year after year. "I like the children and I have a lot of fun at the pool. I tell the children I'm going to keep doing it until I get it right."

The club will start the first of the swim meets in the middle of June.

Local Special Olympics swimmers fare well at out-of-town meets

The Drayton Valley Special Olympics swim team members were excellent competitors in two swim meets recently.

In the 25-metre freestyle, Florence Church won first in Camrose and second prize in Edmonton.

Syd Howatt won first prize in the 50-metre freestyle event and Gerry Martin took second in the 25-metre freestyle at the Camrose meet.

Other winners in the 25-metre freestyle event at the Edmonton meet were: Dana Lindsey, first; Rainer Brewer, second; and Gerry Martin, second.

Brewer also took first prize in the 25-metre back event. Dale Howatt won second prize in the 50 metre freestyle.

Ribbons were awarded to these athletes for their achievement.

Coach Pam Champagne said the team will be going to the Special Olympics Summer Games in Grande Prairie June 23 to 25.

Coaching this team has special rewards according to Champagne. "I adore them. They're fun to be with and they're the most caring people I know."

Local Legion hits bullseye at competition

The Drayton Valley Royal Canadian Legion won this year's inter-branch dart competition for the sixth year in a row.

Also from branch 269 were teams placing second in zone 2 and fourth in division 8 in competitions throughout the year.

Dart club president Terrance MacDonald said the fall season will start up around the first or second week of September but the boards will remain playable throughout the summer break.

70 skiers register for new league

Response has been excellent for a Nancy Green Ski League at the Drayton Valley hill next winter.

Club president Dale Rendflesh says 70 skiers have pre-registered for the program. By the fall, Rendflesh expects to see this number top the 100 mark.

Parent response to the program has also been excellent as a complete executive is already in place.

The absence of the program in Drayton Valley in the past, has seen parents taking skiers to Jasper, Rabbit Hill and Lake Eden.

Besides seeing how much interest there was in the program, organizers want to see how many coaches would be required. The program calls for one coach for every 10 skiers.

The ski club is also looking at offering a racing development program.

Meanwhile at the hill, additional land will be cleared during the offseason, bindings will be purchased for the rental equipment and more lights will be installed.

Junior B wants championships

The Drayton Valley Junior B Hockey Club will apply to host the Western Canadian Junior B championship finals, it was decided May 9 at an executive meeting.

Executives also welcomed new assistant coach RCMP officer Grant MacDonald to bring the team in to next season.

Arrangements for next winter are currently underway with the team's recent registration into the Heritage League and application to the recreation director for ice time during the 1988-89 season.

The Summer Look

We feel that it is foolish to tone the muscles of the body and forget the most important muscle, our heart. This is why we insist on including the Schwinn-Air-Dyne bicycle with our seven motorized calisthenic tables.

The cycle will help promote better cardiovascular health, as well as exercising the legs, arms, upper and lower torso simultaneously.

O'Chiese Indian Band building outdoor recreation/culture site

The O'Chiese Indian Band will receive $31,200 to develop an outdoor cultural and recreation area near Rocky Mountain House, it was announced recently.

Career Development and Employment Minister Connie Osterman and Ty Lund, MLA for Rocky Mountain House, said the project will employ seven people for 16 weeks.

The money, which is being provided through the Alberta Business and Community Development (ABCD) program, will be used to clear a three- to four-acre site, build a ceremonial teepees, a firewood shelter, a concession booth and bleachers.

"Certainly, construction of this site will enhance community life for band members," said Osterman. "And it is an excellent example of how ABCD can generate jobs that truly enhance the long-term employability of participants."

"I am certain this site will be a valued component of community life for the O'Chiese Band," said Lund.

"We certainly appreciate the government's contribution to this project," said Pat McCarron, the band's manager. "This funding will allow us to proceed with this important project while providing valuable work experience for several of our members."

Choose flame retardant tents

Federal Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Bernard Valcourt reminds campers that tents not made with flame retardant fabric are easily ignited and warned owners of such tents to exercise extreme caution.

Every year, many Canadians die or are injured when their tents catch fire," Valcourt said.

Unfortunately, most of the victims are children.

"Sparks and ashes from a fire, a campstove or any naked flame touching the tent can ignite the tent and burn it to the ground in less than a minute, unbelievable as it may seem," he added.

In 1988, the Canadian tent industry switched to flame retardant canvas and nylon fabrics in response to stringent flammability limits proposed under the Hazardous Products Act. Flame retardant fabric does not catch fire easily and tends to self-extinguish when the ignition source is removed. This change in fabric is expected to significantly reduce the number of accidental tent fires.

To reduce the risk of fire and for a safer camping season, the following guidelines are recommended: never use candles, matches or lighters in or near a tent; do not cook or smoke inside a tent; build campfires downwind and well away from the tent; never leave a fire unattended; don't leave fuel inside a tent; refuel lamps, heaters or stoves outside and well away from open flames.

Consumers are also encouraged to check the label when buying a tent to ensure it is made from flame retardant fabric.

For further information contact the nearest office of Consumer and Corporate Affairs.

Canola seed samples proved safe, says Alberta Agriculture

None of the 1,300 certified and common canola seed samples checked to date have tested positive for virulent blackleg of canola says Alberta Agriculture's plant pathology supervisor.

"These results from the free testing program offered by Alberta Agriculture are very good news for Alberta farmers, and in particular for canola seed growers," says Susan Evans, of the crop protection branch.

Anyone submitting a canola sample for a germination test at a recognized testing facility can receive the blackleg test at no additional charge.

Announced in December of 1988, the blackleg seed testing program is part of a government response plan to prevent and control the fungus. Alberta Agriculture's crop protection branch has administered the testing program.

Evans credits seed growers for the testing results. "It's a reflection of crop management and quality of the seed offered for sale in this province," he says.

He also had praise for the seed testing laboratories that have participated in the program. Two are in Edmonton, Norwest and United Grain Growers. The second is Newfield Seeds in Saskatchewan.

"These labs were given little time to implement procedures to handle the workload, but to date each laboratory is well on line for their protected target analysis" he says.

Province-wide awareness about the destructive nature of virulent blackleg of the canola should ensure steps are taken to keep non-fested land free of the fungus, he added.

The fungus was detected in Alberta in 1983. It has been slowly spreading westward from Saskatchewan into ppst.

central Alberta over the last few years. The highly infectious disease reduces crop yield.

More information about the disease is available from Alberta Agriculture district agriculturists.

Combos, Dusters tied for top spot in league

The Combos and Dusters share top spot in the Drayton Valley ladies fastball league.

The Combos opened the season with a 35-23 win over Paul Band and downed the Panthers 27-11 in their second outing.

The Dusters also opened with back-to-back victories as they defeated Alder Flats 20-6 and Wildwood 27-8.

Wildwood evened their record at one-and-one as they whipped the Panthers 38-5.

The Panthers, Alder Flats and Paul Band were winless after the first two weeks of the regular season.

Roxanne Guyon, of the Combos, says spirit has been high so far with teams wanting to concentrate more on fun than on the possibility of winning.

"Last year it was very heated. This year, there's less competition and more enjoyment," she says.

'Klein should come clean' Sekura market report

Grant Mitchell, Liberal Environment critic, has called upon Environment Minister Ralph Klein to come clean and tell Albertans the "whole story" behind Alberta's decision to accept PCBs from Quebec based on humanitarian grounds.

"There are just too many discrepancies to believe the story we are being given by this government," began Mitchell. "On the one hand, we're being told our plant does not have the capacity to handle our own waste problem, so we must add a $9.4-million expansion to the Swan Hills Special Waste Management plant. And yet, we are willing to bring PCBs from outside the province to handle someone else's problem, for humanitarian reasons."

"Why is it okay for Albertans to have PCBs stored in their communities, but not for Quebecers?" questioned Mitchell.

Mitchell continued by saying there are only two possible reasons why the government is embarking upon this costly expansion:

The government was wrong in the first place about Alberta's waste disposal needs, and therefore should not be accepting anyone else's wastes until our own problems are solved.

And, the government is undertaking this expansion so it can accept wastes from all over the country, in order to ensure the plant can turn a profit, as it guaranteed its unnecessary private sector partner, Bow Valley Resources.

Mitchell called upon Klein to finally be up front with Albertans and to tell them the real story.

"I cannot believe that is just a mere coincidence the Alberta government is willing to accept a shipment of PCBs from Quebec, which might cost $10 million to dispose, just as Alberta needs to build a $9.4-million expansion to our own waste disposal plant, to handle our own problems," said Mitchell. "I just don't buy this humanitarian grounds' business."

Mitchell reiterated the Liberal Opposition's long-time position that Alberta should not accept PCBs from areas outside the province for any reason. He concluded by calling upon the minister of the environment to make a full public disclosure of all documents concerning expected levels of use for the Swan Hills plant, both when the plant was built and the new estimates which show the need for an expansion.

"We need to make sure this $9.4-million expansion is really needed and in the best interest of all Albertans and to do that, we must have access to these documents."

On offer at Sekura Auctions for Wednesday, May 10 were 385 head of cattle and calves and 79 head of other livestock. Good stock steer calves $100 to $105, some higher. Good stock heifer calves $90 to $102, some higher. Good 600-800 lb. steers $84 to $100 per 100. Good 600-800 lb. heifers $40 to $95, some higher. Agricultural software information available

Information and advice are the focus of two computer related publications now available from Alberta Agriculture.

The "Agricultural Software Directory 1989" lists almost 600 different agricultural software packages available from over 130 manufacturers in Canada and the United States.

"There's a tremendous array of choices in choosing computer software. The directory has listings for everything from financial record keeping software to educational software related to agriculture," says Beth Lausen of the farm business management branch in Olds.

For a copy of the directory contact the branch by writing Box 2000, Olds, Alberta. TOM IPO or by calling 556-4240.

The branch has also compiled selected articles from the last eight years of the "Compu-Farm" newsletter. "Compu-Farm Best of Volumes 1 - 8" contains articles on hardware, software and even a few lessons in programming.

"An interesting part of reading it is seeing how much the computer industry has changed and how much it has really remained the same," says Lausen.

"Compu-Farm Best of Volumes 1 - 8" is available by contacting the Alberta Agriculture Publications Office, Information Services, 7000-113 Street, Edmonton, Alberta, T6H 5T6 and quoting agdex number 818-23.

Genetic evaluation under way for swine breeding stock

Swine breeding stock tested in the Alberta Swine Improvement program will now undergo a new high-tech genetic evaluation.

Estimated breeding values (EBVs) will be calculated for backfat and growth rate, says Alberta Agriculture's Art Lange, supervisor of the swine improvement program.

A number of genetic factors besides the animal's own performance are included in the EBV calculation. Lange says most important is including the performance of the test animal's ancestors and siblings. Heritability (or how much of a characteristic is inherited), the amount of information available on relatives, the amount of genetic competition within herds and genetic trends in the breed are also taken into consideration.

"The advantage is that the EBVs estimate the real genetic value of a potential breeding boar or sow before he or she is put into service," he says.

Regional swine technicians can do the test and provide computer generated results right at the participating producer's farm, he added.

The test result for young boars and gilts includes measurements for backfat, growth rate, an index comparing the animals to others across Western Canada and a repeatability percentage.

For example, says Lange, an EBV fat reading of -0.8 mm means the animal is 0.8 mm genetically leaner than all of the pigs of the same breed currently tested in the program in Western Canada.

Similarly a growth rate of -6.4 means the pig has the genetic potential to achieve market weight 6.4 days faster. The index combines back fat and growth rate into a number and allows comparison to others in the same breed. The average index for each breed and sex is 100. An index of 139, for example, places the pig in the top 10 per cent of its breed.

Producers can get more information about the EBV program by requesting copies of the provincial probe report that is issued twice a month from Alberta Agricultural district offices, from regional swine specialists or technicians or by direct mailing.

Racer suffers injury

A 15-year-old girl suffered a concussion Saturday when she fell from her horse during Lindsale Days.

Tracy Lachance was competing in relay races when the horse she was riding came around the bend into the ring and Lachance fell.

Margaret Lachance, Tracy's mother says the fall was probably due to a combination of a loose saddle and a stirrup falling off.

"In those races your saddle is on the ground when you start and you have to saddle it up. One of her stirrups fell off and maybe when she realized her saddle was loose she tried to get more of a grip on the stirrups and of course there wasn't one there," Lachance said.

Tracy Lachance was unconscious for a few moments before coming to.

Events were delayed about 20 minutes until Lachance could be safely removed from the ring and was then transported to the Drayton Valley Health Complex by ambulance.

She was released from hospital Sunday. Margaret Lachance says her daughter did not suffer any other injuries other than the concussion.

Striving for better relations

National Police Week is May 14 through 20 this year.

Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey of the Drayton Valley RCMP said the purpose of Police Week is to specifically address bringing the police and the public to a better, closer relationship.

"We are always striving for good police and community relations."

He said Police Week is just a continuation of what the police do all year, and that the police have an ongoing involvement with the community.

Drayton Valley RCMP detachment tours will be offered throughout the week, and Humphrey said he encourages the public to come in and see the detachment. If a group would like to tour the detachment, Humphrey said a couple of hours' notice would be appreciated.

MD buys weigh scales

The municipal district has decided to purchase six portable scales at a cost of $15,390.

The scales to be used by special constable Mike Anderson, will be purchased from International Road Dynamics.

"In order to monitor the trucking industry, it is essential to have the ability to weigh and evaluate vehicle axle weights," Anderson stated in a report to council.

Anderson's report also stated, that although the International Road Dynamic scales are more expensive, they do have many distinct advantages over all the other models the special constable had seen and tested.

Only one other bid was received.

New animal control officer sought

The municipal district is looking for a new animal control officer.

The job will be put out to tender.

Council was informed last Thursday Dwayne Elliot, who had been the animal control officer, was considering leaving the business.

Councillor Jim Coombes suggested Mike Anderson, the MD's special constable handle the job.

"There's no way you can run him that thin," remarked John Eriksson, municipal manager.

Poplar Ridge and Violet Grove were mentioned as serious dog problem areas in the MD.

Water fountain awaiting town council's okay

The installation of an $11,000 water fountain in the Northview Pond is awaiting council approval.

Manny Deol, town manager, says once the budget is approved, installation will proceed.

Originally, the fountain was part of a $100,000 landscaping contract council okayed last year.

Farms to see research first hand

Demonstration plots will soon be set up where farmers will be able to see first hand, research on new techniques of farming.

The demonstration plots and other projects are what the agricultural service board in Drayton Valley is working on. The board will take research findings and applying them to see if specific techniques really work.

"This way there is no cost to the farmer and they can see immediately what works and what doesn't," Neil Norton, chairman of the board said.

One project the board will be implementing this year is pasture rejuvenation. Norton said it has never been attempted in a grey-wooded soil area (Drayton Valley area) but the board is willing to give it a try.

Basically they will be looking at ways of rejuvenating hay pastures. They will be testing fertilizers and equipment.

Barb Shackie, agricultural fieldman said they will also be trying out a variety of oats and barley; testing fertilizer to see what brings the best effect.

The agricultural service board started up July 1 of last year and finally reached their desired membership Jan. 1, 1989.

The board receives most of its funding from Alberta Agriculture works as a liaison between the farmer and Alberta Agriculture.

Shackie says the most important thing now is to let farmers know the board exists and to get input from them.

"That is why we are here. To listen to their needs," Shackie said.

Other members on the board include, Councillor Wes Tweedle, Cecil Andersen, farmer; Bill Fleisher, farmer; district agriculturalist Gerald Laarhuis and secretary-treasurer Jeff Wardlow.

BRTA to hold meeting

The Battle River Tourist Association will hold its monthly meeting next Thursday in Tofield.

Dinner is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. in the Tofield community hall. The meeting will follow.

Battle River members planning on attending are asked to confirm their attendance by calling 672-8555 or 662-3269.

Building permits down

Total building permit value for the month of April is down $157,500 from the same period last year.

April permits came in at $675,000 in 1989, compared to $832,000 in 1988.

The total permit value from January to April was $3,319,000 this year, down from last year's figure of $3,642,300 during the same months.

"These evaluations are not exactly a good monitor," said Al Chesterman, building inspector.

He said business impact to stores, etc. is greater with a few $100,000 residential dwellings than a $1,000,000 commercial project.

Chesterman said he would like to go by units as well as evaluations in the future.

The new IGA store will up the evaluations by $1.1 million this month.

National Forest Week theme should prompt responsibility

"Even though almost one-half (44 per cent) of Canada's land area is forest covered, it is easy to take this national heritage for granted," according to the Canadian Forestry Association (CFA).

"While the economic benefits from the forest industry are plain for all to see, we also owe much to our trees and forests for other reasons."

Each year millions of Canadians and visitors camp and holiday in the lake-dotted forests spread across Canada. Not only in national and provincial parks, but in non-park Crown forests and in private cottages and campgrounds, the forest is the backdrop for millions of people seeking relief from the pressures of towns and cities.

Many kinds of growing things can be found in the forests of Canada. They harbor an almost endless array of shrubs and wild plants. These in turn provide food and shelter for hundreds of different birds and animals which live in the forest or on its fringe. The distribution, and indeed the very existence, of wildlife depends upon a suitable habitat.

But trees and forests are more than just living communities. Through the wonderful power of green leaves, and the amazing process called photosynthesis, water from the soil and carbon dioxide from the air are converted into wood substance, and in the process oxygen is released into the atmosphere. The leaves also breathe and give off cooling moisture. And when spring and summer come, the sheltering forest delays the melting of snow and holds the rain to help regulate valuable run-off to the surrounding watershed.

Trees and forests mean even more to Canadians. They have been the focus of much of our art, the inspiration for great and pleasing music, and the subject or background for much of our literature. They have transferred their magic to the very soul of our country.

"The gifts which our forests provide to every Canadian, indeed, to the world, are beyond measure" reminds the forestry associations. "Each of us should think carefully of this year's National Forest Week theme — Your forest...your responsibility. We all have a part to play in making sure that future generations can share, as we have, all those things which come from living in a forest nation."

Hog barn tour on bankers' agenda

A hog barn tour is the first thing on the agenda of an agricultural production course for bankers at Olds College this month.

"The course's orientation is so the banker can answer, 'Should I lend money for this farm project?' Being able to answer that question requires a good understanding of agriculture, and that starts behind the farm gate with the actual working of the farm," says Garth Nickorick, an Alberta Agriculture farm management specialist.

Usually about 75 people from banks throughout the province take part in the refresher course. The course starts May 28 and runs through June 2.

Farm tours are just one part of course activity. Course participants are provided with an 'agricultural lenders manual.' The 600-plus page binder covers all aspects of agricultural production in the province. He says the manual is also available to interested people not taking the course for nominal charge.

For registration information or to obtain a copy of the manual, contact Cindy Turner, Olds College Extension Office, at 556-8339.

Rural medical situation in critical condition

Alberta's two medical schools must offer specialized programs in rural medicine in order to prevent a critical shortage of rural physicians, according to a report by the Alberta Medical Association (AMA).

The report recommends "distinct rural residency training programs, providing training in the surgical, obstetrical and anaesthetic skills required in rural Alberta, be established at Alberta's medical schools."

According to the report, AMA president-elect Dr. Ronald Gregg called on the universities to "invite rural physicians to help develop a rural medicine program. Task force members are offering to do so."

"The AMA acknowledges a need to make rural training attractive to students," said Dr. Gregg. "We recommend a close look at a rural training bursary program, in which a student receives funding in return for a commitment to spend a certain number of years in a rural centre."

"While not all new physicians will stay past their initial commitment, there will be those who enjoy the variety offered by rural practice, and the positive aspects of a rural lifestyle, and will make a long-term personal commitment to rural medicine."

Of the 12 recommendations made in the report, five deal in some way with medical education.

As well as getting physicians into rural areas, the task force examined ways of enticing them to stay. The task force looked at: lifestyle demands of a rural practice; rural ambulance services; incentive programs and continuing medical education opportunities for rural physicians.

Included in the task force recommendations are: regionalization of services not currently available in rural areas; establishment of province-wide ambulance personnel standards; improved availability of continuing medical education opportunities, including establishment of a centralized locum registry which would provide temporary physicians to cover for ones wanting to take time off for continuing medical education or to spend time with family; and establishment of toll-free telephone number to major hospitals allowing 24-hour emergency access to specialists.

Farming upper 10 per cent of stressful occupations

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

Historically, farm life has been thought of as free and easy and that those living in the country have little stress.

On the contrary though, owning and operating a farm ranks in the upper 10 per cent of high stress occupations. With this in mind, farmers must understand why they farm, they must understand what stress is, and they must learn to handle stress in a positive manner.

Most families wouldn't be involved in farming if they didn't value the many positive features of the farming lifestyle. Many think of it as a wholesome place to raise a family and an opportunity to teach children values of independence, productivity, love of nature and morality. The farm lifestyle also allows the family to work together which can lead to a very cohesive and close family. At the same time though, this can be a cause for increased stress.

Stress is your reaction to demands that are placed on you. Simply stated it is a feeling or state of mind that tells you something is out of kilter. How you react to a stressful situation (such as a tractor breakdown in a busy time) will be different than how your neighbor may react. How you react is dependent upon your personality, as well as actions you have taken to minimize stress.

Successful stress management suggests there are a number of things you can do to anticipate and minimize the negative impact of a stressor. For example, weather is always a factor contributing to stress levels on a farm. Obtaining a crop insurance policy is therefore an action which can be taken successfully to manage and minimize your stress level. Keeping informed of upcoming weather conditions and planning your farming activities accordingly is another.

Although generally thought of as negative, stress is not always bad. We need a medium level of stress to provide a motivating force; to maintain an optimal level of physical and psychological functioning. With too little stress you may find you procrastinate and don't have the energy to complete even the simplest task. Too much stress, on the other hand, can damage health and prevent you from reacting rationally and making good decisions.

Part of successfully managing stress involves assessing and understanding your own optimal level of stress functioning. Do you have too much or too little stress? There isn't one ideal stress level that's good for everyone. It's important for you as an individual to get to know your own personal stress-comfort zone and then find ways to maintain your stress in this optimal range.

To help, I have a kit available titled "You and Stress". Give me a call at 542-5368 if you'd like to borrow it.

Two area Grade 12 seniors and four college graduates were among 39 students honored May 5 at Camrose Lutheran College's graduation ceremony.

As during the last 80 years the school has offered the final year of secondary schooling, friends and relatives gathered at the college's Convocation Centre to witness the milestone in the students' lives.

The Willey West Campground officially opened May 15, in time for the May long weekend, Terry Fleming with the MD says.

Fleming says there are approximately 40 campsites, two water wells, one boat launch, outdoor washroom facilities, a cook house and fire pits in all campsites.

The campground is not actually completed yet. Fleming says the park will probably be under development for the next three years, however, their grand opening is scheduled for sometime this August.

Don't send cattle out to pasture just yet

With the first sign of green grass each spring farmers usually get a strong urge to turn cattle out to pasture, but they should wait to help both their cattle and their grass says an Alberta Agriculture animal nutritionist.

"Even when feed supplies are plentiful, the desire to get cattle out of crowded, wet wintering areas is strong. However, cattle shouldn't be allowed to graze a pasture in the spring until there is a minimum of six inches of new growth," says Dale Engstrom.

Producers need to consider what an early pasture turnout means for both cattle and grass, he says.

"There is no 'free lunch'. What you might gain by turning your cattle out early, you may lose by suffering reduced grass growth, reduced weight gains and reduced fertility.

"New grass should be at least six inches tall before cattle are put in the pasture. If new growth is less than that height, cattle likely will be undernourished," he says.

In suckled cows, undernourishment means weight loss. Breeding can be delayed in undernourished cows that are less than 50 to 60 days post partum.

Engstrom says in one study cows that lost condition after calving required an average of 60 days to return to heat, while cows maintaining condition required only 32 days.

Pregnancy rates also suffer in cows that lost weight. In a 1980 experiment, embryo

June rodeo program set

The program has been set for the 20th annual Drayton Valley Lions Evergreen rodeo to be held next month.

The midway will open to kick off events Thursday, June 8.

A heavy horse pull and a ladies powder puff pull along with the annual fireworks make up June 9.

The annual Evergreen rodeo parade kicks off at 11 a.m. on Saturday followed by the crowning of the rodeo queen in the afternoon, just before the rodeo. The evening's entertainment includes pony chariot and chuckwagon races followed by a rodeo dance in the Drayton Sports Centre.

On Sunday, the final day, final performances at the rodeo and the wagon races are what everyone waits to see.

Organizers will be keeping their fingers crossed for some good weather.

mortality was 46 per cent in cows that lost weight after calving versus 24 per cent in cows that gained weight.

Yearling cattle are also affected by being turned out to pasture too early, he says.

"Yearlings tend to wander far and wide when they are turned out into large pastures with inadequate grass growth. The result is weight loss for the first two or three weeks rather than weight gain. With interest charges alone being 20 to 25 cents per head per day the financial consequences of weight loss are considerable.

Grass also suffers if it is grazed too early. When eaten off before it reaches a minimum of six inches in height, the rate and amount of re-growth is restricted.

"The yield of grass, and therefore, beef from the pasture for the rest of the year will be reduced. The extent of the reduction will vary depending how closely the first growth of grass has been grazed," he says.

Engstrom says producers do have an option if cattle have to be moved out of undesirable wintering areas before the pasture is ready.

"A small portion of the pasture could be fenced off and full feeding could be continued."

Video provides tips for horse show

As horse enthusiasts gear up for another season on the show circuit, they might want to view an Alberta Agriculture video with tips on loading and trailering their horses.

Safety, for the horse and handler, is the main focus of this video. Bill Collins, one of Canada's leading trainers, is featured in the 25 minute video. He looks at selecting the appropriate vehicle and trailer, safety features and how to drive so horses will always be good haulers.

Training a young horse to load properly and working with the problem horse is also covered by Collins.

Birth announcement

Jenny and Gus became the proud parents of little Hickory May 5 near Violet Grove. Kathleen McCalla, a friend of the donkey family, said neighbors have been dropping by ever since to welcome the youngster into the world.

Oats, a money-making crop?

Farmers are paying more attention to the potential of oats as a money-making cereal crop.

Currently, oats are a relative minor crop in Alberta totalling less than one per cent of all grain sales. But, premium prices for high quality feed oats for horses (pony oats) and processed oats for human consumption (milling oats), have made the crop more attractive.

Top prices also means buyers are looking for a top quality product says an Alberta Agriculture district agriculturist. "Grain buyers purchasing oats as pony and milling oats are looking for bright, clean oats free from mildew, smut and rust," says Harvey Yoder, Lac La Biche DA. "They prefer oats with less than one per cent wild oats, less than two per cent of other voluntary grains such as barley and a low percentage of green kernels.

"Buyers also want oats to have a good bushel weight generally 40 pounds or more, and millers prefer an oat with a low hull content and uniform kernel size."

Producing good quality oats requires good management and also some assistance from the weather. Oats thrive with moisture, moderate temperatures and a little wind.

Oats can be grown most successfully in the black and grey wooded soil zones of the province. These areas — an arc through west central and northeast central Alberta and the Peace Region — have fewer hot, drying winds.

Field selection is a critical first step in oats production. Flat topography, or a relatively uniform field is best. This will reduce the number of green kernels. For better production, the field shouldn't have a wild oat or volunteer barley problem or have been recently treated with soil incorporated herbicides for wild oat control.

Variety also plays a role in eventual quality. Select the variety you think will give the best results. Jasper is the latest early maturity variety suitable for short season growing areas. It matures the same time as Athabasca and has a higher bushel weight than all other varieties except Calibre.

If possible, sow early after the soil temperature is five degrees Celsius or higher. Seed two to two and one-half inches deep, or to adequate moisture for uniform germination. Some farmers have increased the seeding rate to reduce second growth. In 1988 Alberta producers grew 55 per cent of the Canadian oats total.

More information about oats production and varieties is available from Alberta Agriculture district offices and regional crop production specialists.

Where's the beef — Quebec?

Savoring the flavor of 'le boeuf de l'Alberta' was a special attraction in a major hotel chain in Quebec recently.

Despite the fact Quebec is Alberta's largest beef customer, there had never been an Alberta beef promotion in that province until this March.

The promotion was a cooperative effort between Alberta Agriculture, the Alberta Cattle Commission, Canada Packers and Quebec division CP hotels.

From March 2 through 23, menus featured high quality beef cuts and the promotion was also advertised in newspapers.

The dual focus on high quality value-added cuts, such as tenderloins and ribs which become filet mignon and prime rib on plates, and the food service industry is critical to market growth.

Quebec's food service industry already buys a lot of beef, but there is still room for expansion. Potential is especially good for selling boxes of the high quality value-added cuts that are certified grade A Alberta beef.

Part of the promotion was a beef cutting demonstration and seminar for chefs, food service managers and corporate executives. The seminar outline the many benefits of Alberta beef including genetic excellence and consistent quality.

"The promotion was deemed a success by everyone involved," says Dave Rous, Alberta Agriculture trade director.

This is one of 61 members who is looking forward to a new trap range resulting from a recent Sports Council grant.

The duck targets will be scurrying to a new, two-acre range by the end of the summer.

Home of the Week

Located on a quiet street in Hillcrest, this 12-year-old bungalow features a compliment of color and design. As you walk in the front entry your first glimpse of the living room is through a louvered partition. The earth-tone colors are most inviting.

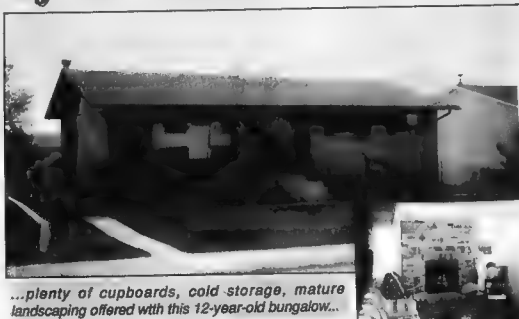

The dining room, although next to the kitchen, offers privacy from the kitchen and will accommodate a buffet and hutch. Plenty of cupboards, a quick-bite counter area and window to the south yard make the kitchen bright and convenient.

Three bedrooms, one-and-a-half bath, pantry and closet space complete the main floor.

The back entry has a closet area and landing larger than usual. The lower level stairs come into a carpeted recreation area. The family room, bedroom three-piece bath, large laundry room, cold storage and mechanical room complete the lower level development, in addition to the 1144-square-feet on the main floor.

The backyard with mature pine trees is fenced.

The home is offered for sale through Century 21 Hi-Point Realty Ltd. at the price of $81,900.

A fire can happen any time

Insurance is based on value

All too frequently we hear of people losing all their possessions in an apartment fire and not having insurance to cover the loss.

It's a mistake that many renters make - assuming that the landlord's insurance will cover losses to tenants' possessions.

It's a convenient assumption to make, especially when a renter may just be getting established and have barely enough money for a damage deposit, rent, moving expenses and the first month's groceries.

At a time when expenses are so high, it's easy to forget about insurance or decide to buy it "later".

But a fire can happen any time; it's not going to wait until you can afford insurance premiums. So consider what you would lose if all your personal property were destroyed. To get insurance coverage, as a tenant, you have to buy a tenant's insurance policy.

Basically, a tenant's policy covers your possessions in case of loss. It also provides some liability coverage for you. This is important because while the building owner may have insurance on the building itself, you could be held responsible for damage which you cause to the building.

There are two types of tenant's policies: a limited form and a more comprehensive form. The basic difference between them is the extent of coverage they provide in terms of the number of perils which they cover. And, as you might expect, the policies differ accordingly. Both the limited form and the more comprehensive form of tenant's package provide coverage for loss by fire.

You need to give some careful consideration to the type of tenant's package that best suits your needs. You also need to know the value of your possessions so that you can purchase sufficient insurance coverage.

Start by doing an inventory of your possessions. Do this by walking from room to room and making a list of absolutely everything that is there.

The amount of insurance you need is based on the total value of your possessions. Most insurance policies provide settlements based on this actual cash value.

Our moms are special

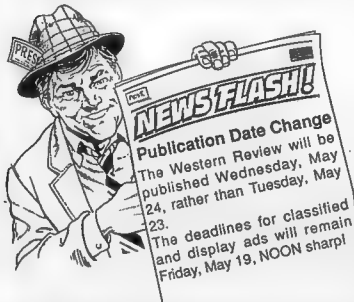

Alena Smith, left, and Craig Slene are the winners of The Western Review's 'Why my mom's so special contest'. They each received a Review Bear for their talents. (Perhaps their mom's are the real winners!)

My mom is not a big hit like Dolly Parton, but she is helpful. She has brown hair and she is about my size, but maybe a inch taller. She is pretty short. She is so honest no one would have to put her on a lie detector. She is so beautiful, she can beat the picture of the Columbia ice fields. She is so caring she would help anyone who fell off there bike. My mom is so nice she would give me a Nintendo or a computer. When I think of her I feel warm inside.

Craig Slene
6B, Eldorado

My mom is special because she's always around when I need her help, and she always makes us feel better when we have a problem. My mom's very loving and kind. She helps a lot of people. My mom is a good friend to all, she'll never make anyone feel not needed. She's hard working and lovable. My mom will help others, and she's someone who will share her problems with. She's co-operative and a fun person to be with. She likes flowers and she loves the country. She has six kids that she loves. She's funny and smart and she's always happy. She is always sweet to everyone, and she's kind to people she doesn't even know. My mom's special to me and the family. My mom also likes to knit blankets and she sews. My mom always makes our lunches in the morning, and she helps at the kindergarten when she brings Stacy to kindergarten. My mom's helpful and sweet. She came out of a restaurant to hug me when we were walking back from swimming. My mom works hard to clean the house we're at school. My mom is taking care to be a teachers aid. My mom likes to sing, and she enter for play's. My mom is someone with many talents and I love her.

Dirty finger can contaminate cosmetics containers

By Samia Vallemand
At last! After months of haunting the cosmetics counters you've finally found it — the perfect lipstick color for you. As you are about to try the tester, the question enters your mind: Just where has that tester been? They are a familiar sight at makeup counters and range from ordinary bottles of cologne to elaborate displays featuring open pots of foundation and blusher. Tests at U.S. universities have shown some may be contaminated by bacteria or viruses. All it takes is a dirty finger or a passing cough. Illnesses caused by contaminated cosmetics are uncommon, but they can be severe. One woman was reported to have suffered an ulcerated cornea from a makeup brush. Examples like that have prompted New York state to pass a law regulating the use of makeup testers. Due to come into effect in 1990 it will require companies to provide individual samples or to indicate on the packaging and on signs nearby how the testers are to be used.

The new law has been welcomed by cosmetic companies worried about being sued by infected customers. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is also considering drafting a similar law.

So far, there has been little concern expressed, in Canada. Within the Canadian Cosmetic, Toiletary and Fragrance Association there has been some discussion of dirty testers, but no action. CAC product information office would like to hear from you about this issue. Just phone 420-0747 between 9 and 1 p.m. weekdays — your collect calls are welcome.

Apply now for summer farm help

The provincial government has announced the start of the 1989 summer farm employment program.

Since its introduction 18 years ago, the annual program has provided summer employment for over 31,000 students while helping farmers meet their seasonal labor requirements.

Any full-time Alberta farmer is eligible to hire a student and receive assistance in paying his or her wages through the program. The Alberta government will pay half the employee's monthly wage to a maximum of $330 for each month of the program. Jobs will run from July 3 to Aug. 31.

Applications from both farmers and students will be treated on a first-come, first-served basis and must be delivered to Alberta Employment Service offices before May 31.

Application forms are available through Alberta Agriculture district offices or through local Agriculture Employment Service offices.

Student applicants must be at least 15 years of age. Farmers may not apply to employ family members.

Housing programs will aid quarter-million Albertans

It is with a great deal of honor I address many of you for the first time as your member of the legislative assembly. I see three primary tasks in my role as your representative.

First, I look forward to speaking for our constituency in the legislative assembly. Secondly, I will serve as an ombudsman — helping you cut through the red tape more effectively with government. And thirdly, I will strive to keep you informed of what's happening in the legislature. That's what this column is all about.

As your MLA, I'm pleased the government has introduced two important housing programs which will benefit over a quarter of million Albertans over the next two years.

The Alberta Mortgage Interest Shielding Program and Alberta First Home program offer great benefits to residents of this province. Homeowners will be shielded from interest rates higher than 12 per cent, and renters will be given assistance to purchase their own home.

Some important points of each program are:
 Alberta Mortgage Interest Shielding program: Approximately 250,000 homeowners will be eligible for this program. Mortgage rates will be shielded from March 1, 1989 to Feb. 28, 1991. Qualifying homeowners will be eligible to receive benefits equal to the difference between 12 per cent and the existing mortgage rate.

From the Legislature with Tom Thurber, MLA

Any existing mortgages on principal residences as of March 1, 1989 and all mortgages renewed after March 1, 1989 are eligible. If you take out or assume a mortgage for the purchase of a home after March 1 you are also eligible.

Alberta Family First Home program: This program will allow approximately 36,000 Albertans to receive assistance towards obtaining their first home. The program is effective March 1, 1989 and applications will be accepted until Feb. 28, 1991. First-time home buyers will receive $4,000 interest-free over five years to assist with their down payment.

There are two options to choose from.

Option one allows an interest-free loan of $4,000 to be applied directly as part of the down payment. The buyer repays the loan principal over five years in equal monthly installments.

Under option two the provincial government will pay the interest on $4,000 of the home buyer's first mortgage for five years.

The Department of Municipal Affairs has produced a brochure which provides general information on both programs. Detailed program information and application forms are available at participating financial institutions. It is important you check with your lender to determine whether you are eligible to receive program benefits.

Should you have any specific questions about either programs, such as your eligibility or how to apply, you can call the assistance number for rural Alberta: 1-800-282-9914.

If you have any other questions or concerns please don't hesitate to contact me at the Drayton Valley constituency office, 642-3355 or write to me at the Legislature Building, Edmonton, T5K 2B6.

No 'loopholes' in the Bible

By Tim Lees
Calvary Baptist Church
The time of year for income tax to be paid has passed once again (for most of us, at least). Someone rather cynically proposed that income tax returns be simplified and condensed into the following format:

How much money did you earn in the past year? Send it in!

Some people and corporations work hard at finding loopholes to avoid paying taxes. Experts are sometimes hired to find these loopholes, and find them they do. Sometimes more time is spent looking for loopholes than figuring out the taxes owed.

I'm not criticizing Revenue Canada nor those who look for tax loopholes. But I do have a concern for people who have a "loophole mentality" in their relationship to God.

From the

The Bible says Jesus is the only way to heaven and that we must turn from our sin and trust Him as our Savior. Jesus Himself says, "I am the way, the truth and the life, no man comes to the Father except by me." John 14:6. As hard as I look, there are no loopholes in the Bible.

I'm not surprised at how many people feel that when they die and stand at the judgement seat, there will be some other way to get in. "I'm sincere in my religion." "I have a good family life." "I'm honest." "I'm a helpful, community-minded person." "I was brought up in the church." These are all reasons people think will get them into heaven.

But the Bible leaves no loopholes. Jesus is the only way. Some might say, "I don't believe in the Bible." I would only ask them to make an honest study of the historical credibility of the Bible and its true account of the life of Jesus before declaring it to be untrue.

Can I ask you what you base your salvation on? There are no loopholes between us and God. Jesus is the only way.

Crushing contract awarded

The municipal district has awarded a $164,316 gravel crushing contract.

TBG Contracting Ltd. was officially awarded the contract during last Thursday's council meeting.

It was the second lowest of five bids received for the job. According to Richard Tatro, director of public works, a contract in the amount of $143,222 submitted by Tri-Dave Gravel Sales Ltd. couldn't be done by the deadline set by the MD.

Therefore, it was recommended to council they go with TBG Contracting Ltd. Anderson Sand and Gravel of Drayton Valley submitted a bid of $179,980 which was the third lowest bid.

Cancer ride nets $9,000

The Canadian Cancer Society was brought a few strides closer to finding a cure two weeks ago when 91 area residents headed out on an all-day trail ride.

Riders as young as five and as old as 77 hit the trails surrounding Willey West Campground to raise at least $9,000 toward cancer research, education and treatment.

"We had a great turnout. We thought there would probably be 80 (people) tops," said organizer Jill Lorenz.

Kay Baldwin, fundraising chairperson for the society, said the local ride and ones in area communities have helped generate much funding for the cause.

"In 1988, four trail rides raised $61,578," she said, adding researchers are making definite gains in finding a cure.

Lorenz said everyone enjoyed the six-hour ride, breakfast and evening pig roast and some riders have already volunteered to organize next year's event.

One of 91 riders hit the trail to raise money for cancer.

Some facts about asthma Annual deaths total almost 5,000

One million Canadians have asthma, 800,000 of whom are children. Asthma is the most common cause of pediatric admissions to hospitals.

There are about 500 deaths from asthma each year.

Hospital separation-admission rates for asthma increased by over 50 per cent for both sexes between 1979-82 and 1980-82.

Rates of death from asthma increased by nine per cent for males and 44 per cent for females between 1970-72 and 1982-84, with the highest increases for those aged 15 to 24 and 25 to 34 years.

All regions in Canada experienced increased death rates from asthma among people 15 to 34 but by far the largest increases were noted in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

For asthmatics, $17 million is spent on hospital care, $22 million for physicians, and $20 million for medications.

There are nearly 200 allergists in Canada to treat the four million people who suffer from allergies and asthma.

Twenty per cent of all children experience some form of bronchospasm — cough, wheeze or breathlessness — which are the precursors of asthma.

For more information on asthma, contact your provincial or local Lung Association.

All water accidents are serious

It is highly likely at least one Albertan will die in a boating accident this summer, according to statistics from the office of the chief medical examiner in Alberta. Between 1985 and 1987, 34 people died in boating-related accidents; 11 others drowned while swimming in Alberta's lakes and rivers.

If you are a boater, St. John Ambulance reminds you that all water accidents are serious. Not only do water accidents carry the risk of drowning, they may also be complicated by fractures, wounds and hypothermia. Water accidents present special hazards to boaters who must take care not to become casualties themselves.

Most water accidents that occur during recreational activities can be prevented by observing a few simple safety rules:

- learn to swim, swim only in safe water and do not swim alone;
- supervise others who are swimming;
- dive only in water where the depth, the bottom and the current are known;

- do not swim to rescue a drowning person unless you are a good swimmer and are proficient in rescue techniques;
- wear a life jacket or other personal flotation device when boating and waterskiing; avoid the use of air mattresses, inner tubes and inflatable water toys in deep water;
- know the waterway you are navigating and watch for natural hazards that may damage your boat;

- know the weather forecast and be prepared for storms or sudden weather changes;
- do not stand in a small boat and do not overload a boat;
- avoid the use of alcohol which may affect judgement and make boating, water sports and other activities more dangerous;
- carry a first aid kit.

First aid for boaters begins with the ability to administer artificial respiration. When breathing has stopped for any reason, mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration must be started immediately to prevent brain damage and death.

For the boater the risk of drowning and the distance from medical aid make the knowledge of artificial respiration a necessity.

War Amps key tags help young and old

The War Amputations of Canada's confidentially coded key tags for 1989 will be making their way to Canadians across the country during the next few months.

A look inside the The War Amp's envelope reveals a detailed package of information explaining how support of the key tag service helps a great many Canadians, young and old.

The phrase "young and old" illustrates how The War Amps can affect amputees in a positive way. A colorful pamphlet that accompanies the key tag shows a picture of war amputee Cliff Chadderton with child amputee Lindsay Hilton. Despite the many years that separate them, Cliff and Lindsay share a unique bond possible only between two amputees.

War Amps members, particularly Cliff as chief executive, are passing along their advice and positive approach to children like Lindsay all across the country. The teaching begins when these children enter the association's child amputee program (CHAMP); some join when they are as young as a day old.

Alberta's children are Alberta's future ...their future is science

The proposed network of Alberta Science Centres needs your vote of confidence.

What Science Centres are dynamic and fun places where science dominates and where scientists are heroes. Alberta's new Science Centres will feature exciting hands-on science exhibits and demonstrations. Advanced technology audio-visuals will entertain and challenge visitors. Our new Science Centres will showcase our scientific and technological achievements in agriculture, in energy, in forestry, in medicine, in the environment and in a host of other areas.

Where Our new Alberta Science Centres will be in Calgary and Edmonton with satellite centres in northern and southern Alberta. Mobile exhibits and programs will reach out to smaller Alberta communities allowing rural Alberta to share the benefits with their big city neighbours.

When Win a commitment to the project in 1989. Put the centres in place over the next five years.

Who Pays Two-thirds of the $100 million needed will come from provincial lottery income. This level of support would absorb only 10% of our lottery funds over the next five years. Corporations and foundations will contribute $10 million and federal government will be asked to provide the other $25 million from the programs already in place. Nothing would be funded from normal provincial tax revenues.

Why The benefits of this program are obvious. Science Centres are very successful tourist attractions. They enrich our education system. They stimulate young minds. They showcase technology.

Ontario has three world-class Science Centres. British Columbia is opening their brand new Science Centre in Vancouver next month. Saskatchewan recently opened it's new Science Centre. It is time Alberta got on the bandwagon. We are behind other provinces in Canada. Science Alberta will put us at the forefront of Science Centre activity in this country.

We need your help to make this happen. Please signify your support by filling in and mailing the coupon below.

Town sponsored essay contest, not chamber of commerce

The town sponsored the essay contest held during Municipal Involvement Week and not the chamber as indicated in the May 9 issue.

Blair Trueman, a Grade 12 student at Frank Maddock high, was the winner of the essay contest. His award winning article appeared on page B14 of the May 9 issue.

Mayor Bob Mayhew put up the money for the winners in the Municipal Week essay and poster competition.

Moonwalk a 'fun-raising' event

Buck Lake By Joan Elmont

the moonwalk as being a fun-raising event.

Miles/kilometres can be calculated by taking walks around blocks, through parks, and counting distances travelled while playing golf, cutting lawns or walking pets, says Glenn. Participants can walk by themselves, with friends or in groups at upcoming special events to be planned and presented by the West Pine Lodge Moonwalkers.

If you are an older adult, 55 or over and want to participate in this "sole-ful" event, call Glenn at 682-3960 for further information.

Bay being renovated

New walls and windows were installed at The Bay last week.

Improvements to the entrances were also part of the renovations.

According to manager Tom Woodward, some of the windows were leaking, which resulted in the decision to make the changes.

The building, which The Bay leases from a Calgary firm, was built in 1958. Four years ago the roof was replaced.

Home parties popular, profitable

Many companies are discovering that home parties are a profitable way to market their products.

The sale of kitchen wares, cosmetics, lingerie and jewellery has been successful in the home party environment.

The concept of home parties is a simple one, and familiar to most people, especially women, since most of the products sold this way are geared toward them.

The sales representative of the company contacts one person, who is typically already a client, or might be someone who has responded to a survey or been referred by someone else.

The sales representative offers to give the client a demonstration of the goods that she deals with, and requests that the client invite several of her friends along to view the demonstration with her.

There is usually an incentive or prize for the client who acts as host, whether it's a free facial, a kit of kitchen gadgets, or a piece of jewellery.

The guests who come to see the "demonstration", of course, are not just casual observers; the sales representative views them as potential clients. If all goes well, there will be several orders written up while the coffee and goodies are being served.

Many people have gone to these parties with no intention of making a purchase, but leave with the client copy of an order form, and one less cheque in their cheque books. How does this happen?

People may feel guilty and feel that it's part of their obligation to the host to make a purchase.

What happens if you make a purchase at a home party and decide when you get home that you don't want the item?

If your purchase amounts to $25 or more, you are protected by the Direct Sales Cancellation Act.

You are allowed a cooling-off period of four days to reconsider your purchase.

To cancel the order, write a letter to the seller and deliver it or send it by registered mail. Keep a copy of the letter.

In Memorium

DEDICATED TO THE MEMORY OF BETTINA HABEL. You have gone away and left us. We are saddened with heavy hearts. To see you laughing yesterday. Is to know you played your part. Although your part in life was short, it seems ages since we met. Through the trials of life. You sang, you smiled and you wept. You have gone away and left us. How I wish that we could talk. And to have just one more song, smile and walk.

I know you are happy now. Your smile, your laugh, your friendship, we will miss, but we hope we'll say farewell, and with that, a special Angel Kiss. Shauna

Dog beaten and left for dead in garbage

A one-year-old dog is recovering peacefully after being beaten and dumped into a garbage bin off 50th Avenue last Thursday night. Barb Cameron, 17, took the dog to a veterinarian after finding the dog.

"The dog was bleeding, and was left in a plastic bag. He suffered a concussion and the vet who treated it, is concerned if (the dog) may have suffered some internal injuries," Val Cameron, Barb's mother said.

The Camerons took the dog in and it is now resting at their house. The dog still will not eat, drink or go to the bathroom.

"It cries every time we leave the room. It just wants to be loved," Val said.

'Left in a plastic bag.'

Val said that it appears as though the dog had been kicked in the face as there are bumps on the nose and the dog's eyes run.

The Camerons have reported the incident to the RCMP and Corporal Dave Caporale says they are investigating the incident.

Undercover operation nets 14 drug offenders

By Belinda Atkinson

The Drayton Valley RCMP detachment waged its own war against drugs two weekends ago using under-cover police officers from Edmonton.

By Sunday evening, an undisclosed number of officers from Edmonton's drug section had charged 11 people with trafficking a narcotic and three with trafficking psilocybin (commonly referred to as magic mushrooms).

Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey said the local detachment and city police have been gathering intelligence on area drug activity for a number of months but decided to use out-of-town officers only to complete the final stage of investigation.

From Thursday night to Sunday, he said plainclothed officers purchased a "street level" or personal quantity of illegal substances from 12 adult male and two adult female offenders at area bars. Two were repeat drug offenders.

"A quarter ounce of hashish (worth approximately $80) was probably the largest purchase made," he said.

Humphrey said he was not surprised by the number of arrests nor would he believe the operation will put to an end drug-related crime in Drayton Valley.

"Word of mouth has gotten around but as far as it having any lasting effect on drug offences, I think that would be wishful thinking," he said.

"It's difficult to put a finger on it because of the transient nature of the community," he said.

While admitting it would be impossible to eliminate drug activity, he said the detachment will continue to monitor the situation and, if need be, stage a second operation.

It was just a nice evening ride for Gerard Nelson last Thursday but traffic along 50 Ave. slowed to a snail's pace as the Calgary electrician and clown took his last look around town. Nelson returned home Friday where he will rejoin the One Wheel Riders in the Calgary Stampede Parade.

Amoco planning major expansion

By Frank Ryan

Amoco Canada has announced plans for a major expansion at their West Pembina plant.

The plant is located approximately 100 kilometres southwest of Drayton Valley.

The expansion, scheduled for completion in 1991 is actually being undertaken by D.M. Wolcott & Associates of Calgary. Amoco Canada is the contract operator at the plant.

Company officials were hesitant to put a price tag on the project as it is currently out to bid.

Work is expected to start next month.

Once the expansion is completed the West Pembina plant will be able to handle 95 million cubic feet of gas per day, compared to 60 million at the present time. And, the expansion will allow for 450 tonnes of sulphur per day, compared to 300 tonnes at the present time.

Between 100 and 150 men are expected to work on the project at the peak of construction.

Living quarters will be provided on site for the crews.

The announcement by Amoco is the third for the area.

Petro Canada is spending $89 million to increase the

Local News Briefs

Three local businesses were scheduled to meet with the municipal district's agricultural service board to discuss concerns over a UFA Farm Supply Store for Drayton Valley.

The MD met recently with UFA officials in Calgary about the possibility of a farm supply store.

RCMP were called to the track south of the Frank Maddock high school last Tuesday, when a red truck was observed driving around the shale track.

The truck had left the scene by the time the RCMP arrived. However, they planned to investigate the resident's complaint.

Due to poor response, the Lions have cancelled the queen contest that was planned for next month's Evergreen rodeo.

Coordinator Stan Kurylo says he only had one inquiry.

It was the same situation two years ago.

Last year, four girls entered the contest.

"It's unfortunate," says Kurylo.

The last day of classes at Frank Maddock high is June 21 with final exams to begin the following day.

The Lions club held a workbee at the West Valley Park rodeo grounds last Wednesday.

Vivian Bredin has been appointed to the town's tourist action plan committee.

Chuck DeJong has joined the town staff.

One of his duties is to run a camera during council meetings.

Town council hopes to have a monument erected in front of their new Civic Centre by September.

The town is looking for a new animal control officer.

Dwayne Elliot, who was performing the services for the town and the MD, is leaving the business.

Hungry children prompt food bank

By Susan Moscicki

Two local women, outraged that low-income families in the area have no place to turn for emergency food supplies, recently contacted MLA Tom Thurber in order to get a food bank started in Drayton Valley.

Eva Flanders' heart was touched recently by a single mother welfare recipient who could not make ends meet on her welfare income and whose three children were going hungry as a result.

"I was unaware that there was a need," said Thurber. He said it was the first time he had been told that there was a need for a food bank in this area. "My concern is if there is a need for a food bank in the area, we should be looking at Social Services and seeing if there is something lacking in that area."

"A lot of people don't realize how many people do go hungry," said Flanders. "If a crisis comes up and they run out of food, there's nothing here for them."

Flanders said she and another woman, Catherine Meredith, had approached the MLA about the need.

"Cathy and I will get it organized," she said, but suggested others would need to become involved to keep it going. "This is an oil-rich town, and yet they don't help the little people."

Welfare recipients have a ceiling on the amount they receive for rent money, and with high rents, they have to compensate by taking the balance out of their grocery money, according to Flanders.

"It's the children that are more the concern," said Flanders' husband Gordie. "If the people in the community care about children - they're the future - you can't let them go hungry."

Who will run in the October election?

By Frank Ryan

Bob Mayhew is in.

Dave Lundberg is out.

And, Tom McGee, Howard Olson, Charlie Miner, Alex Salfi and Jean Saunders are undecided.

That's the current position of town council as they look ahead to October's municipal election.

"Yes, I've definitely made up my mind to run again," says Mayor Bob Mayhew.

"There are some things I want to do," he added.

While the mayor has made up his mind to seek re-election, Lundberg says he won't be seeking another three-year term on council.

"I've enjoyed it. I feel that I have contributed in some small amount," he stated.

However, Lundberg didn't indicate what his plans were.

"I haven't decided," remarked McGee.

Olson's plans are still up in the air.

"I definitely wasn't go to run. But I've been giving it some second thought. I'm leaning towards running again," he says.

Miner, who has been on council for nine years, says he hasn't made any definite plans. "I'm working on it," he stated.

Salfi expects to make a decision shortly.

Dave Lundberg

Bob Mayhew

"I should know by the end of the month," he says.

If Salfi runs again, it will definitely be for a councillor's position and not that of mayor.

Saunders is also undecided.

Before making any decision, she says her young family and full-time job at the Pembina Education

Consortium will have to be looked at.

In weighing her options Saunders said, "We've started a lot of things I'd like to see completed."

Several names of possible contenders have been mentioned, but none of them have been confirmed.

Moon Lake adds name to list for annexation

Add Moon Lake to the annexation bid going before the Local Authorities Board next month.

John Erickson, manager of the municipal district, confirmed late last week that a petition had been received from Moon Lake residents requesting annexation.

The annexation hearing is scheduled for Drayton Valley on June 20.

The two-member Local Authorities Board, who are government appointees, have already received the MD's annexation bid.

Erickson accompanied by councillor Neil Norton met privately recently with supporters of the Moon Lake petition.

"It was just to let them know the hearing was approaching and it was important they show up," Erickson says.

Erickson was quick to point out, that in the case of all the annexation petitions, the MD was not pushing the idea, but was following up on the people's wishes.

Amoco gas plant not only facility slated for major expansion in area size of their Brazeau sour gas plant and Texaco recently confirmed plans for a $30-million expansion to upgrade their gas plant in West Pembina.

The Amoco announcement will result in the expansion of existing facilities.

The expansion has been on the drafting board for two years.

The plant is located in an area which has been subject to substantial oil and gas activity over the past 30 years.

Amoco is working out details for an 'open house' next month, at which time details of their expansion will be explained.

Representative of Amoco Canada met with members of the Pembina Institute last Wednesday to discuss environmental concerns.

Amoco also discussed the project with town officials last week.

Wherever possible, non-permanent plant materials and services will be purchased locally by both the general contractor and subcontractors.

Impaired driver charged

A 20-year-old Carnwood man has been charged with impaired driving causing death after one person was killed and several others injured in a two-vehicle accident near Lindale recently.

Dead is Beth Holmgren, 52, of Lindale, a passenger in a vehicle driven by Cecil Ellis, 62. She died as a result of injuries sustained in the collision.

The accident occurred on a gravel road two kilometres west of Lindale when Ellis' eastbound vehicle was in collision with a westbound vehicle driven by Robert Larsen of Carnwood.

Larsen was not injured but two passengers in his vehicle were treated in hospital and released.

Larsen appeared in Leduc Provincial Court May 8, charged with one count of impaired driving causing death, three charges of impaired driving causing bodily harm, one count of driving while suspended and one count of driving with a blood alcohol level over .08.

Larsen reserved his plea and will appear in Breton Provincial Court today (Wednesday) at 9:30 a.m.
